If You Had a Friend

About to visit some section of country where malarial disease, either in the form of chills and fever or bilious remittent was particularly rife, what would be about the best advice you could give him? We will tell you—to carry along, or procure on arriving, that potent medicinal safeguard, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, known throughout malaria-plagued regions, here and in other countries, as the surest means of disarming the miasmatic scourge, and robbing it of its fell destructive influence. Not only does it fortify the system by increasing its stamina, but overcomes irregularity of digestion, the liver and the bowels, and counteracts the unfavorable effects of over-exertion, bodily and mental exposure in rough weather, or occupation too sedentary or laborious, loss of appetite, and excessive nervousness. The functions of alimentation, bilious secretion, and sleep have in it a most powerful and reliable auxiliary.

The King of Willows.

In a recent visit to Boston I was very much interested in observing the various kinds of weeping trees to be seen in that vicinity. Many that are not at all common, yet quite hardy withal, are to be seen planted in permanent locations and growing thriftily, says a writer in Vick's Magazine. The finest specimen I have ever seen stands close to the lake near the bridge, in Boston Public Garden. It is nearly or quite three feet in diameter, with a stem of three feet where it branches and spreads its magnificent drooping spray over a circle of seventy-five or eighty feet. Its height is about fifty feet. A drizzling rain prevented my sketching it, but I hope some enterprising horticultural journal will have it photographed and hand it down to posterity as the most perfect weeping willow ever grown—the king of the willows, in fact.

We quoted a current item about the experience of Dr. Alanus with a vegetarian diet, and his attributing disease of the blood vessels to his use of that diet. We expressed doubt of any relation of cause and effect between such diet and softening arteries. Now Dr. Holbrook writes that probably it is a "fake" item, since the German vegetarians never heard of Dr. Alanus, and no such name appears in their medical directories. — Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN.

FACTS AND FICTION FOR OUR FAIR FRIENDS.

Good Deeds of a Charitable Ex-Empress—Qualities of a Model Wife—Instructions Concerning the Education of Girls—Phrases Used by Dressmakers of To-Day—Some Paragraphs Pertaining to Womankind.

The ex-Empress Eugenie, now shorn of all her beauty and in bad health, was in her day one of the handsomest women of Europe, and dictated the fashions to the women of the civilized world. She was born of mixed Spanish and Scotch parentage, May 5, 1826, at Granada, Spain. Her father was the Count de Montijo, a grandee of Spain, and her mother, Dona Mannela Kirkpatrick Closeburn, was descended from an old Scotch Catholic family. The ex-Empress was educated in England, and while still very young met the future Emperor of the French, then an exile in that country. She was married in Paris, where she was then on a visit, in the early part of 1853, after the failure of negotiations for a union between the Emperor and a daughter of the King of Sweden.

In a short time the court of the Tuileries became, under her management, the most brilliant in Europe, in spite of the fact that the old aristocracy of France kept rigidly aloof. The Empress was a woman of great tact and was gifted with much ability in the management of social entertainments. She devoted herself much to charity and persuaded the Paris municipality to devote to the establishment of a female college a sum of 600,000 francs appropriated for a wedding present for herself. She also gave to the same object 100,000 out of 250,000 francs given her by the Emperor. She frequently visited the hospitals and charitable institutions, and to some extent softened the asperity of the feeling entertained by the Paris workingmen for her husband on account of the coup d'etat and the slaughter by which it was accomplished. During the prevalence of cholera she induced the Emperor to accompany her on a visit to the hospital where the victims were treated.

When the revolution of Sept. 4 overturned the empire after the surrender of Sedan she was obliged to seek safety in a precipitate flight. Since the war she has resided in England.

Dressmakers' Phrases.

The terms used by dressmakers are an unknown language to the uninitiated. "Drops," "bias," "side-forms," "kilt-," etc., are all readily understood by the sisters of fashion-molders. Other sisters, however, may be in ignorance of their true meaning, and to such the following definitions will be interesting:

A "drop" is a skirt made up of the dress material, independent of the lining, and then hung or dropped over it, from the same belt. A "bias," or "dart," is a seam taken in the front of a waist, which fits it to the figure. A "side-form" is an additional seam made under the arm, to give a smoother effect to the waist, and a "kilt" is a skirt entirely of plaits. There are various kinds of plaiting. Knife-plaiting is very narrow folds, all going one way, and pressed down. An accordion skirt is one in which the plaiting is done after the manner of an accordion. There are machines for doing it—indeed it cannot be done save by machinery and heat. Box-plaiting is a fold to the right and one to the left. The number of terms is infinite, and increases as fashion changes.

How Daughters Should be Educated.

To inaugurate an economical fashion is well; only let it be one of prevention, not of cure, says Mary A. Livermore in the North American Review. To rear a girl in absolute dependence, good for nothing, selfish in her aims, and exacting in her demands, is a sin against the daughter, and against society. To begin at her birth to economize and retrench in every department for the accumulation of money, that this monstrous perversion of her life may be accomplished and maintained, is grotesque and heathenish. Girls thus trained will fail of attaining a high order of womanhood. Their aims will be petty, their ideals low, and nothing very excellent can be expected of them in wifehood or motherhood.

Let the reform inaugurated be made fashionable and be carried on. Let us begin a system of ecomomy that will prevent the evil which our author only proposes to cure, and by an utter inadequate remedy. While we carefully guard whatever is womanly in our daughters, let them be trained to more of fibre and firmness. Educate them to self-denial if pecuniary circumstances demand it, and not to self-indulgence. Accustom them to be of service in the household, to regard economy as praiseworthy and even heroic, and to add to their other accomplishments a practical knowledge of work and the possession of some lucrative vocation or industry by which they can support themselves. Such girls, when portionless, will carry to their husbands dowries in themselves.

A Model Wife.

A model wife is the woman who looks after his household, and makes her hospitality a delight to him, and not a burden; who has learned that a soft answer will turn away wrath; who keeps her sweetest smiles and most loving words for her husband; who is his confidante in sorrow or in joy, and who does not feel the necessity of explaining her private affairs to the neighborhood; who respects the rights of husband and children, and in return has due regard paid to her; who knows that the strongest argument is her womanliness, and so she cultivates it; who is sympathetic in joy or in grief, and who finds work for hands to do; who is not made bitter by trouble, but who strengthens and sweetens under it; who tries to conceal the faults of her husband, rather than blazon them forth to an uninterested public; the woman whose life-book has love written on every page; who makes a home for a man, a home in a house and in a heart, a home that he is sure of, a home that is full of love presided over by one whose price is above rubies. She is the model wife.

Happy Marriages Without Dowries.

We are told that "the marriage rate is decreasing because there is so large a proportion of men who wish to marry, but cannot, because the intended father-in-law has not the means to give his daughter a dowry." If such a settlement for the bride is the only sure preventive against the husband's failure by overwork, then it may be that the marriage rate is decreasing. But we believe there are quite as many happy marriages and true homes among those who take a wife without a dowry as among those whose wives have large dowries—if, indeed, there are not more. Wives having none can aid their husbands by keeping house themselves—not having it kept for them—and they have less cause to fear failure for their husbands, either from over-exertion or pecuniary loss, than the more richly endowed wives who are governed by fashion or Mrs. Grundy. — North American Review.

A Matter of Sympathy.

We need abroad more of the spirit of the cultivated lady who felt her sympathies so awakened for a poor washerwoman, obliged to stand at the tub nearly all day, week in and week out, says a writer in the Chautauquan, that she made up to her the pay of at least two hours of each day, that she might have some time to care for and read with her children.

Wise Thoughts for Wise Women.

Discomfort destroys grace.

Dress changes the manners.

Taste is the fact of the mind.

The best lesson is that of example.

Effective clothing develops beauty.

Vanity ruins more women than love.

The profession of women is very hard.

Woman is loveliest in womanly attire.

Men make laws, women make manners.

Taste is the microscope of the judgment.

Modesty is the conscience of the body.

Folly always deserves its misfortunes.

Women dress less to be clothed than to be adorned.

Most women caress a sin before embracing penitence.

With time and patience the mulberry leaf becomes satin.

He who first invented raiment perhaps invented love.

Vanity is the only intellectual enjoyment of many people.

There is something of woman in everything that pleases.

We always find wit and merit in those who look at us with admiration.

The greatest evidence of demoralization is the respect paid to wealth.

With women the desire to bedeck themselves is the desire to please.

A fool always finds some one more foolish than himself to admire him.

The surest way to please is to forget one's self and to think only of others.

It is beauty that begins to please and tenderness that completes the charm.

The only way to please God is to follow the good inclinations of our nature.

Beauty is the first gift Nature gives to woman and the first she takes from her.

One can not imagine how much cleverness is necessary not to be ridiculous.

Society would be a charming thing—if we were only interested in one another.

What renders the vanity of others unbearable to us is the wound it inflicts on ours.

Enjoy and give enjoyment without injury to thyself or others. This is morality.

A woman whose ruling passion is not vanity is superior to any man of equal capacity.

A woman would be in despair if nature has formed her as fashion makes her appear.

There are three things that women throw away—their time, their money, and their health.

The change of fashion is the tax that the industry of the poor levies on the vanity of the rich.

A Young Great-Grandmother.

The youngest great-grandmother lives near Pomona, Cal. Her name is Francisca Cordolla, and her age is but 50 years. She was married when but 15 years old, and her eldest daughter married when she was a little over 17 years old. Mrs. Cordolla was a little more than 33 years old when she was a grandmother. Her eldest granddaughter was married April, 1889, at the age of fifteen years, and now a great-grand-daughter is born.

The Fame of Intellect.

Mrs. Lionchaser (giving a 5 o'clock tea)—Come, I want to introduce you to Professor Knowall, of England, who is delivering the fine course of lectures before the Institute, you know.

Mrs. Giddy—Yes, but before you take me up, tell me what he lectures on, so I can talk to him.

Mrs. Lionchaser—Bless me! don't you know what he lectures on! Why, I thought everybody knew that.

Mrs. Giddy—Well, I don't.

Mrs. Lionchaser—He lectures on—he lectures on—he lectures on the platform, of course. Come on.

No Place for Children.

If people wish to hire flats in this city and have no reference whatever "they can get there just the same," if they pay the rent, unless they are the unhappy parents of children. The great and only question is: "Have you any children?" And if, in shame and humiliation, the word "Yes" is lowly and meekly uttered, then the reply is: "We can't take you with children." The thought will come: "What would the world be without children?" All the same you can have them, but go out of the city with them until they are of age, for the landlords of New York don't want them.—New York Star.

Rheumatism

Is of two kinds, acute and chronic. The former is accompanied by high fever, and in the swollen joints there is intense pain, which often suddenly changes from one part of the body to another. Chronic rheumatism is without fever and not so severe, but more continuous, and liable to come on at every storm or after slight exposure. Rheumatism is known to be a disease of the blood and Hood's Sarsaparilla has had great success in curing it. This medicine possesses qualities which neutralize acidity, and purify, enrich, and vitalize the blood.
