

HIS LAST MARCH OVER.

BURIAL OF GENERAL W. T. SHERMAN.

An Impending Procession Escorts the Warrior to His Last Camping Ground—One Hundred Thousand People Do Homage to His Memory.

Lay him low; lay him low, Neath the clover or the snow; What cares he? He can not know— Lay him low.

Mid the thunder of cannon, the pomp of war, and in the presence of the civil and military dignitaries of the land, the Sherman funeral train rolled into St. Louis.

The display moved the multitude, a hundred thousand persons sitting on the spectacle in solemnity and silence. Perhaps the most impressive feature of the grand display was the appearance of the remnant of the battle-scarred legions who in their prime and vigor "marched to the sea."

nols, Iowa, Kansas and over half from Missouri.

Behind the Grand Army was a small body of men that attracted universal attention. In the center was a banner with the words: "Southern Historical Society." It was the ex-Confederate Society of St. Louis. The members, prominent citizens of that city, marched with bowed heads behind the man who, of all others, did most to overthrow the cause for which they fought and lost.

The fourth division was under command of Governor Francis and was made up entirely of militia.

The imposing cortege reached the cemetery. The bottom of the newly dug grave was covered with evergreen twigs and mosses. The American flags lined the sides—flags that had a history. The floral offerings were most magnificent. They came from all parts of the country. The soldiers formed in line east of the grave, while the family and friends of the General immediately surrounded it. The eight sergeants transferred the casket from the caisson to the bank of the grave.

In the shelter of an adjacent tomb the father, Sherman, the dead soldier's favorite son, hurriedly donned his priestly vestments and prayer book in hand, returned to the head of the grave. When the bearers placed the casket on the supports above the grave the bugles blew a call and the band played the first few bars of Pleyel's Hymn. As the sound Traveling Comforts.

Persons traveling by rail can now make themselves comfortable by the use of a patented portable elbow frame. These can be fixed so as to give the effect of the most cozy arm-chair, and the fatigue of a long journey is thus materially diminished. These elbows can be folded when not in use, and weigh under three pounds. A new device, which is adapted either for a bed or bath room, is a portable shampooing apparatus. This patent applies to a reservoir to hold either hot or cold water, and fitted with a spray fixed on an arm projecting from the reservoir. The arm is movable, so that it can be turned down, leaving a mirror, which is fitted to the reservoir, for shaving purposes or for general use. This handy shampoo is made entirely of metal.

The Parent of Insomnia.

The parent of insomnia for wakefulness is in nine cases out of ten a dyspeptic stomach. Good digestion gives sound sleep, indigestion interferes with it. The brain and stomach sympathize. One of the prominent symptoms of a weak state of the gastric organs is a disturbance of the great nerve center, the brain. Irritate the stomach, and you reduce equilibrium to the great center. A most reliable medicine for the purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is far preferable to mineral acids and powerful narcotics which, though they may at first excite a reaction upon the brain, soon cease to act, and invariably injure the tone of the stomach. The Bitters, on the contrary, restore activity to the operations of that all important organ, and their beneficial influence is reflected in sound sleep and a normal state of the nervous system. A wholesome impetus is likewise given to the action of the liver and bowels by its use.

Everybody Has His Own Fence-Maker.

The use of picket fences, made by weaving wood or iron slats between strands of wire, has become so extensive that a new industry has been created in their manufacture by machines by which this kind of fencing can be woven in the field. Ordinarily, fencing of this sort is purchased in long rolls and put up by farmers, but there are now several types of portable machines which enable a man to make his own fence, without from any hardware store, and using slats from the nearest saw-mill. Some of the machines are ingeniously automatic in their working, as they feed and count the pickets, twist the wire, measure the fencing and wind it in rolls.

A Mechanical Stone-Braker.

There is in use in London a machine known as the macadam scarifier, which possesses great advantage over hand labor in the breaking up of roads. It is operated by a small traction engine, and will do from 2,000 to 2,500 superficial yards of road in a day, the depth of the work being entirely adjustable, and varying as desired from 1 1/2 inches to 3 inches. It also enjoys the advantage of being able to be operated at night, when traffic does not interfere with work of this character, a thing practically impossible with ordinary labor.

An Anti-Germ Earpiece.

The earpiece of the phonograph has to be held so firmly to the ear that it is said to be an easy transmitter of disease. Now a Pen Mar, Penn., inventor has taken up the trouble and got out an earpiece that they say will make the earpiece of contagion absolutely impossible.

Canada is a 'Pretty Big Place.

The area of the Dominion of Canada is estimated at 3,379,000 square miles, or, including its water surface, 3,519,000 square miles. It is the largest of all the British possessions, constituting 40 per cent of the empire, the total area of which is over eight million square miles. Canada lacks only 337,000 square miles of being as large as the whole continent of Europe. It is nearly thirty times as large as Great Britain and Ireland, and is five hundred thousand square miles larger than the United States, exclusive of Alaska. Canada covers rather more than one-fourteenth part of the earth's surface, but contains only one hundred and eighty-sixth part of the population of the world.—Boston Globe.

Deafness Can't Be Cured

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result. If the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be restored forever; which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous lining.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure, sent for circular, free.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper. "NO MORE DOCTORS FOR ME!" This I was consumptive, sent me to Florida, told me to keep quiet, no excitement, and no tennis. Just think of it! One day I found a little book called "Guide to Health," by Mrs. Pinkham, and in it I found out what ailed me. So I wrote to her, got a lovely reply, told me just what to do, and I am in splendid health now.

MAJOR GENERAL, SHERMAN IN 1865.

while between that point and Washington avenue the sidewalks were utterly inadequate to accommodate the crowd, which spread into the streets and left only sufficient room for the movements of the troops. The gathering was, however, very dissimilar to those on the festive occasions. Nearly all present wore badges commemorative of the dead hero, a deep stillness prevailed, and all were impressed with the solemnity of the occasion.

The division upon which most interest centered was the first, composed of the famous Seventh Cavalry, under Colonel Forsythe, and the artillery and infantry of the regular army. The flutter of the red and white swallow-tailed guidons and the flash of the swords and yellow rapes of the troopers as they wheeled into Pine street in double columns of companies, every horse keeping alignment and proper distance, would have called forth thundering applause on an occasion less solemn. But the crowd never for an instant forgot the occasion that had caused it to gather. The grim cannon, with their large, fine horses and their perfectly equipped artillerymen, excited scarcely less interest than the cavalry. The recent Indian troubles in the Northwest had sharpened public interest, and the troops who had seen service more resplendent in the eyes of the spectators.

The bugle corps of the Seventh Cavalry led the procession, being preceded by a platoon of police, who cleared the way. General Merritt, grand marshal of the procession, and his aides, some twenty officers of the regular army, rode at the head of Custer's cavalry. They wore side arms, heavily bound in black. The thinned ranks of companies B and K of the cavalry showed the havoc at Wounded Knee, but the six troops showed 400 men in line. The artillery and infantry passed quickly in view, and then came the caisson on which rested the body of General Sherman.

no less impressive. The Loyal Legion was in the van, followed by the Society of the Army of the Tennessee. The third division consisted of Grand Army posts, Sons of Veterans and allied orders. The old warriors turned out strong, fully 4,000 being in line. They came from Illi-died away Father Sherman removed his hat, and opening his prayer book, began the impressive prayers for the repose of the soul of the dead. When the service began the battalion of infantry stood at present arms facing the little group about the grave. In the midst of the services a hoarse, low voice gave the command "Carry arms—order arms" in quick succession, and the sharp click of the musket barrel and the ring of the butt as it struck the ground gave singularly impressive accentuation to the solemn words of the young priest. Father Sherman concluded with the invocation: "May his soul and the souls of all the faithful departed rest in peace. Amen! In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen!"

Then, in quick succession, three volleys rang out over the grave and echoed from the surrounding hills. Three salutes from the artillery, which was stationed outside the cemetery, followed,
