We overheard two small boys talking on the street a few days since about fighting. One said: "How much do you weigh?" "Sixty-eight pounds." "Well, I only weigh sixty-three, but I will fight you for a jack knife in one week, give or take five pounds." It is needless to say that the latter to speak was from Streator, the "scrapper's" paradise.

Obituary.
Miss Maggie Nevlin Sloan was born at Waltham, La Salle county, Ill., June 20, 1870, and died in Dwight Feb. 18, 1891, aged 20 years, 7 months and 28 days.

The funeral services were held at the Thompson school house, Rev. P. M. France officiating, and the remains were laid to rest in Oak Lawn cemetery.

Maggie had grown up in the community, and by her sweet, quiet spirit had greatly endeared herself to all, as the large gathering and tearful sympathy at her funeral indicated.

She had been a professing Christian for about two years. She had also been the secretary of the Sabbath school, and was always in her place if possible.

She was conscious that the end was fast approaching and bade good-by to the family and friends, leaving with them many precious words to treasure in their hearts. A short, yet blessed life, and a triumphant death was hers.

The good seed she has sown in the community will not be without fruitage in the days to come. May all who were her associates emulate her noble Christian example.
