MASSACRED THE MAFIA.

ELEVEN MEN KILLED BY A NEW ORLEANS MOB.

Terrible Scenes of Blood Enacted by the Enraged Populace—A Verdict of Acquittal of the Accused Mafia Too Much for the Crescent City—Many of Its Leading Citizens Lead in the Revengeful Mission of Death.

Eighty thousand infuriated citizens rose up in their fierce wrath at New Orleans and wreaked summary vengeance on the men whom they considered guilty of the murder of Police Chief Hennessey. The excitement throughout the city over the miscarriage of justice in the case of the alleged Sicilian assassins leaped beyond all restraint. The parish prison was surrounded, the doors burst open and the Sicilian assassins taken out and lynched. Some were shot; the others were hanged.

Charles Irienni and Soreto Conitz, who were charged with complicity in the murder of Hennessey, but who have not been tried, were also killed in their cells.

The boy Marchesi, Matranga Incerdona, who had been acquitted, were spared.

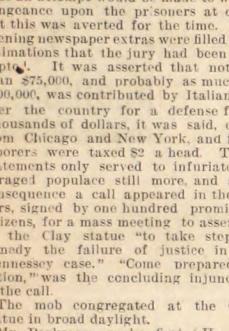
The verdict of the jury, acquitting six of the accused prisoners and reporting a disagreement as to three others, was received with general disaproval and rage and for a time it was apprehended that an attempt would be made to wreak vengeance upon the prisoners at once, but this was averted for the time. The evening newspaper extras were filled with intimations that the jury had been corrupted. It was asserted that not less than $75,000, and probably as much as $100,000, was contributed by Italians all over the country for a defense fund. Thousands of dollars, it was said, came from Chicago and New York, and farm laborers were taxed $2 a head. These statements only served to infuriate the enraged populace still more, and as a consequence a call appeared in the papers, signed by one hundred prominent citizens, for a mass meeting to assemble at the Clay statue "to take steps to remedy the failure of justice in the Hennessey case." "Come prepared for action," was the concluding injunction in the call.

The mob congregated at the Clay statue in broad daylight.

Mr. Parkerson spoke first. He said that he faced the people of New Orleans to denounce the most infamous act which was consequent upon the most revolting crime in the criminal annals of any community. That act was the finding of the jury in the murder trial and that crime was, as everybody knew, the foul assassination of the chief of police.

"I desire neither fame nor name nor glory," said Mr. Parkerson. "I am a plain American citizen, and as such and as a good citizen I am here."

The crowd was yelling itself hoarse.



A. MATRANGA, ALLEGED CHIEF OF THE CONSPIRATORS.

Fury ungovernable was evident throughout that immense assemblage, which by that time numbered fully eighty thousand people. "Shall you protect yourself?" "Yes." "Self-preservation is the first law of nature!" "This is the time for action, not talk!" "Come on, Wycliffe!" "Come on, Parkerson!" "We are ready!"—were some of the cries which escaped from the throng.

Sheriff Villere was not at the prison when the multitude reached there. He was hunting the Mayor in order to have the police ordered out. Attorney General Rogers also hunted up the Mayor, as did the Italian Consul, but they were unable to find him, and the work was done before the Mayor or the Governor could interfere.

The parish prison was reached. The wooden door on Marais street was broken in with a large billet of wood used as a catapult and heavy rocks were also poured against it.

No material resistance was offered by the police or the Sheriff to the work of the citizens, who were armed with shotguns and pistols, and who represented not only the humbler classes but the most prominent bankers, citizens, merchants, and professional men in New Orleans. A wagon filled with police dashed up to the scene, but they were driven away amid a shower of mud and did not seem anxious to charge the crowd. The Sheriff's deputies found that resistance was useless. When apprised of the approach of the mob the prison officials transferred the Italians from the male to female department of the prison, and when the armed men who got on the inside of the jail found them the prisoners ran down into the yard below. They begged and pleaded for mercy, but for some of them there was no mercy at the hands of these outraged citizens. When the prisoners reached the yard they tried to seek places of safety, but there was none to be found and the shotguns belched forth and the slayers of Hennessey fell dead in their tracks. Macheca, the arch conspirator, crouched down in a corner with his hands before his face and screamed. A dozen bullets entered his body and he pitched head foremost on the stone pavement, dead. In the great confusion it was difficult to ascertain who had been killed.

While the work of vengeance was going on inside, a crowd of men came out of the jail with the crazy assassin Politz. Some one had a rope, and as the miserable Italian was rushed to the corner the line was thrown over an arm of a post and Politz was drawn up in the air, but before he strangled to death a dozen shots rang out and the body was riddled with bullets.

Then on the other side of the prison Bagnetto, one of the assassins, was brought out already in the throes of death from a bullet wound in the head. A rope was thrown over the limb of a tree, and he, too, was hoisted in the air. His face, covered as it was with blood, presented a horrible sight as the brains oozed forth.

Police Officer Herron, who was in the prison, was shot in the neck, and he is the only one outside the prisoners who suffered.

After the work was done Mr. Parkerson addressed the dense mob of citizens and advised them to disperse. They frantically applauded, and when he finished carried him bodily on their shoulders. The multitude participating in the avenging work then marched to Canal street shouting and waving handkerchiefs in the air.

are being held throughout the country, and it is feared that the end is not yet.

SENATORS FROM NEW STATES.

The Men Chosen by South Dakota and Idaho to Represent Them.

South Dakota has selected J. H. Kyle to take the place of Mr. Moody in the United States Senate. He was chosen as a compromise candidate by a combination of Farmers' Alliance men and Democrats. The new Senator is only 38 years of age, and began life as a Congregational minister. He was born at Xenia, Ohio, and graduated in his twentieth year from Oberlin College in 1873. He then studied theology in the Western Theological Seminary at Allegheny, Pa., and came out in 1882. He officiated as pastor of a church in Salt Lake City. He went to Dakota five years ago, and is now Financial Secretary of Yankton College. He has taken an active part in politics, and served a term in the Dakota Senate.

SENATOR J. H. KYLE.

Judge William Clagett, the newly elected Senator from Idaho, is likely to have a hard road to travel, owing to the circumstances of his election. The Legislature first elected three instead of two Senators. McConnell and Shoup were elected to fill the long and the short terms and Dubois for that which has just begun. Since then the friends of Judge Clagett effected a coalition with the Democrats and elected him in the place of Dubois. The election of Dubois is considered by Senator Edmunds to be legal and it is probable that the question of the legality of Clagett's election will be raised.

CLAIMANT WILLIAM CLAGETT.

Judge Clagett is a native of Maryland, but has been in the West since 1850. He was elected delegate to Congress from Montana in 1871, defeating the present Governor, J. K. Toole, by 431 votes. He has resided in Montana, Navada, Dakota and Idaho. He is a lawyer, but is interested in mining. The Mormons, who have influence in Idaho, supported him against Dubois.

Loss of Timber Yet.

Says a Western lumberman: "The signing of a contract for 600,000,000 feet of pine in Minnesota should serve as a reminder that the fear of American forests giving out is far from being an imaginary one. I have been handling lumber by the 10,000 feet for two-thirds of a lifetime, but the figures in this deal took me by surprise, and it was some time before I could realize them. The supply of lumber in the North is steadily giving out, as the figures for Michigan in particular show. Ten years ago the annual output or product was just about the size of the great Minnesota contract just signed, for single companies, but the aggregate totals for 1890 barely reached these figures. We are lavish and extravagant with our lumber now, but at the present rate of consumption there will be precious little left to consume a quarter of a century hence, even making allowance for what we can draw from Mexico after Mr. Blaine's reciprocity treaty has been drafted and signed."

It is with a seat in a street car as with a riddle—one dislikes to give it up.

Healing by Electricity.

The doctors and electricians say there is no probability of a rheumatic receiving benefit from riding in the electric cars, but, in spite of the doctors and electricians, there are dozens of men who have been materially helped by going to and from their business in the motors, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. There is a down-town clerk who every winter is laid up, sometimes for weeks at a time, with rheumatism of the lower limbs. It usually begins in October, but this fall, having an idea that the electric cars would do him good, he began riding in them, spending as much time as he could spare in the evening, riding to the end of the line and back, and thus far he has not had a touch of his old trouble, and others can testify to the good that has been done to them in the same way. They all say they can feel no current, but in some manner they have been helped, and that is enough for them to know, without bothering to find out how the thing was done.

The Western Settler's Chosen Specific.

With every advance of emigration into the far West a new demand is created for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Newly peopled regions are frequently less salubrious than older settled localities, on account of the miasma which rises from recently cleared land, particularly along the banks of rivers that are subject to freshets. The agricultural or mining emigrant soon learns, when he does not already know, that the Bitters afford the only sure protection against malaria, and those disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, to which climatic changes, exposure, and unaccustomed or unhealthy water or diet subject him. Consequently, he places an estimate upon this great household specific and preventive commensurate with its intrinsic merits, and is careful to keep on hand a restorative and promoter of health so implicitly to be relied upon in time of need.

Abolition of Flowers at Funerals.

Societies for the abolition of flowers at funerals are being organized in Baden, Germany. The parent society in Wiesbaden was founded by clergymen against the bitter opposition of all gardeners in the neighborhood, who denounced their action in public meetings and in the newspapers. The direct impulse to the movement was given by the repeated experience that at house funerals the flowers occupied so much space that inadequate room was left for the mourners. At the funeral of a high official named Von Wurmb recently $1,500 worth of flowers so blocked the halls and filled the space around the coffin that half of the persons who wished to attend the services were compelled to wait in the rain outside. The new society proposes to allow only relatives to send flowers hereafter.

"Why do the stars twinkle?"

The Professor scratched his head. "It is a hard question," said the man of learning, "and at best the answer is found along the line of theorizing. The most generally accepted theory now is that the so-called twinkling of the stars is due to the refraction of the beam of light coming from the star and traversing, over millions of miles, various atmospheric waves of varying density and varying temperature. Thus a beam would, in its course, be deflected again and again, giving rise to the peculiar optical phenomenon known as twinkling. In other words, it is not the star that twinkles, but the light coming to us after a series of irregular deflections, gives rise to the twinkling of the star."—Free Press.
