WIND BROUGHT DEATH.

A TERRIBLE CYCLONE SWEEPS WEST SUPERIOR.

Many Workmen Buried Suddenly in the Ruins of a Wrecked Hotel—Probably a Dozen Killed—Distressing Scenes—Work of Rescue. A wind storm of terrific violence swept over West Superior, Wis., carrying death and destruction in its path.

The storm lasted only about thirty minutes, but during that period many thousands of dollars of damage was done, besides the loss of at least a hundred lives and the visiting of terrible injuries upon many parties.

During the progress of the storm an alarm of fire was turned in from the Fifth Ward, and the department responded to find the new large three-story frame hotel on Third street, near Lamborn avenue, a mass of ruins.

The news flashed over the city with startling rapidity. Hacks and drays containing their loads flew to the scene of the disaster.

The wind was accompanied by pouring rain, and the air was heavily charged with electricity.

SOLDIERS HAD TO RUN.

THE TENNESSEE MINERS ARE UP IN ARMS.

The crisis in the labor troubles at Briceville, Tenn., came when the miners and a crowd of sympathizers from the country surrounded the camp of the State militia, captured the troops and convicts, marched them off to the depot and put them on a train and shipped them to Knoxville.

The camp was on a little knoll in a hollow and surrounded on all sides by mountains. About 2,000 miners, farmers and other men who have been on the hill around the Briceville camp.

Fifteen hundred of these were armed with rifles, the rest had shot-guns and pistols. They came from all the mines in a radius of fifty miles.

The organization was complete, and the leaders placed them along the hillsides with military precision.

At the call to arms the little garrison turned out gallantly and prepared for defense. It was apparent at a glance that a fight would result in a massacre.

Some declared that a stout resistance to the first attack would be sufficient and the mob would withdraw.

Others thought that it would be suicidal, yet every one was in favor of doing it, with full understanding of the position they were to defend.

The miners called a parley and were met on neutral ground by Col. Sevier. They stated that they had sufficient force to overwhelm the soldiers, but did not care to shed blood if the convicts were sent to Knoxville.

This request was emphatically refused. The miners then asked Colonel Sevier if he would remove his troops and take the convicts with him.

He asked what would be done to the mining company's property, which was also under his protection. They replied that it would not be injured.

He also asked if an attack would be made on the Knoxville Iron Company's stockade just below Briceville. It was intended, he would fall back there and fight it out regardless of the consequences.

The troops then marched out of camp, taking with them the convicts, all their commissary supplies and baggage. They marched to Briceville and there were loaded in box cars or whatever could be had, and the entire lot sent to Knoxville.

Sydney Spivey, who has been entirely on the side of the miners, is now against them for their lawless act at a time when everything was being done to relieve the situation.

The great mass of citizens say the law must be observed and that Gov. Buchanan must enforce the law.

The sentiment is that he must send all the State troops, who are few and poorly organized, to the front at once, and put experienced men and officers in charge.

If he has not force enough he must call for volunteers.

A report has been circulated that he asked the President for 500 regulars, but the truth of this cannot be verified.

It is known that the leaders of the mob were not miners, either last week or today. One Eugene Merrill led them in each instance.

He is a merchant at Briceville, but is said to be a Knoxville man. Sydney Spivey, who has been entirely on the side of the miners, is now against them for their lawless act.

Other leaders are known, and the sentiment is that they must be arrested and taken to Nashville as the law provides, and punished.

The miners have appointed a committee to see what dispatches shall be sent out and what not, and this committee all the time and reads all the matter sent out by the newspaper men.

DUG HIS OWN GRAVE.

A California Miner's Strange Death in a Canyon Near the Snow Line.

The Sheriff of Fresno County, California, started into the mountains in the vicinity of the Snow Line, a little canyon, the approach to which was almost inaccessible, he found a complete set of miners' tools, and upon further search the body of a man was found in an open grave, which was cut into the solid granite rock.

Beside the grave was a note written in lead pencil, which read: "My name is Dave Meneer. I have lived like a devil, but will die like a man. Nov. 20." The body was covered with transparent ice eighteen inches deep, which filled the grave.

It is supposed that the miner, crazed by the loss of his mind, had dug the grave, laid himself in it, and drawn across his body a slab of granite, which still rested there, was drowned by the water which trickled into the excavation.

The body was well preserved by the ice around it, which had not thawed since last fall.

Not Such Big Crops After All. President Frank McGrath, of the Kansas Farmers' Alliance, says the estimates of Secretary Mobler of the wheat crop of Kansas are altogether too high.

From reports received by him from nearly every county in the State he estimates that the yield will not exceed 60,000,000 bushels, and possibly not more than 55,000,000.

Mr. McGrath's reports indicate that the corn crop will be unusually large.

THOMAS MARSHALL and Fred Grace, of Lewistown, Pa., were out hunting frogs the other day and captured a creature not described in the books.

It is a frog with wings and a tail something like a fantail pigeon. It weighs exactly nine ounces. The wings are composed of elastic-like skin, and when stretched out measured ten inches from tip to tip.

When the frog is in the water the wings and tail fit closely to the body and are hardly noticeable.

Mrs. HOBGINS, of Milton County, Georgia, killed a snake in her yard that had just run out of a setting hen and appropriated fifteen eggs.

The snake was so gorged that locomotion was difficult, so he was easily dispatched. The reptile measured five feet 4 inches from tip to tip.

A WESTERN KANSAS man says that sections of the State has a great future before it.
