Worn-out, "run-down," feeble women, need Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It builds them up. It's a powerful, restorative tonic, or strength-giver—free from alcohol and injurious drugs. The entire system is renewed and invigorated. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, gives refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength. As a soothing nervine, it allays and subdues hysteria, spasms, and all the nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease. It's the only guaranteed medicine for women. It does what is promised—or it asks nothing. It gives satisfaction, in every case, or the money paid for it is refunded.

That's the way its makers prove their faith in it. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion; a legitimate medicine, not a beverage. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system.

SERMONS FOR SUNDAY.

A FEW SUBJECTS FOR ALL TO PONDER OVER.

Get Out of Your Own Light—A Pastor Who Never Had Trouble—Trust God Always—Grains of Gold—Religious Notes.

How God Reached Him.

THE other day a young girl was putting a button on her father's coat. She was sitting with her back to the window, and she said, "Father, I can't see; I am in my own light." He said, "Ah, my daughter, that is where you have been all your life." This is the position of some of you spiritually. You are in your own light; you think too much of yourselves. There is plenty of light in the Sun of Righteousness, but you get in the dark by putting yourself in the way of that sun. Oh, that your self might be put away! I read a touching story the other day as to how one found peace.

A young man had been for some time under a sense of sin, longing to find mercy; but he could not reach it. He was a telegraph clerk, and being in the office one morning he had to receive and transmit a telegram. To his great surprise, he spelt out these words—"Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." A gentleman out for a holiday was telegraphing a message in answer to a letter from a friend who was in trouble of soul.

It was meant for another, but he that transmitted it received eternal life, as the words came flashing into his soul.

O dear friends, get out of your own light, and at once, "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world!" I cannot telegraph the words to you, but I would put them before you so plainly and distinctly that every one in trouble of soul may know that they are meant for him. There lies your hope—not in yourself; but in the Lamb of God. Behold Him; and as you behold Him your sin shall be healed.

Never Had Any Trouble.

"I once asked an aged man in regard to his pastor, who was a very brilliant man: 'Why is it that your pastor, so very brilliant, seems to have so little tenderness in his sermons?'" "Well," he replied, "the reason is, our pastor has never had any trouble. When misfortune comes upon him his style will be different." After awhile the Lord took a child out of that pastor's house, and though the preacher was just as brilliant as he was before, oh, the warmth, the tenderness of his discourses! The fact is that trouble is a great educator. You see sometimes a musician sit down at an instrument, and his execution is cold and formal and unfeeling. The reason is that all his life he has been prospered. But let misfortune or bereavement come to that man, and he sits down at the instrument, and you discover the pathos in the first sweep of the keys.

A young doctor comes into a sick room where there is a dying child. Perhaps he is very rough in his prescription, and very rough in his manner and rough in his feeling of the pulse, and rough in his answer of the mother's anxious question, but the years roll on and there has been one dead in his own house, and now he comes into the sick-room, and with tearful eye he looks at the dying child and he says, "Oh, how this reminds me of my Charlie!" Trouble, the great educator! Sorrow—I see its touch in the grandest painting; I hear its tremor in the sweetest song; I feel its power in the mightiest argument."

Doing Errands for Christ.

"Mamma," said a little 5-year-old boy, "I wish Jesus lived on earth now."

"Why, my darling?"

"Because I should have liked so much to have done something for Him."

"But what could such a little bit of a fellow as you have done for the Saviour?"

The child hesitated a few moments, then looked up in his mother's face and said: "Why, mother, I could have run on all His errands for Him."

"So you could, my child, and so you shall. Here is a glass of jelly and some oranges I was going to send to poor old sick Margaret by the servant, but I will let you take them instead and do an errand for the Saviour, for when upon earth He said: 'Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these ye did it unto Me.' So remember, children, whenever you do a kind act for anybody because you love Jesus, it is just the same as if the Saviour were now living on the earth and you were doing it for Him.—[The Illustrator.

Trust Him Always.

The Bible is full of lessons that teach us as clearly as anything in language possible could, that God wants His children to understand that they can depend upon Him under all circumstances. He has declared, and tried to make plain in hundreds or different ways, that He is an ever present help in time of need, and yet he finds it hard to find people who will take Him at his word and trust Him as He would be trusted. There are so many of us who are like the servant of Elisha. The moment dangers of any kind surround us, we lose our faith, our courage and our peace, and become so paralyzed with fear that we forget all about God, and try to make a way of escape for ourselves, when if we could but know it, we are at that very moment in the safest place in God's universe. If God does not expect us to trust Him always what does the ninety-first Psalm mean? Was it put in the Bible simply to fill up? Surely in no way is God more greatly dishonored by His children to-day than in their failure to believe and appropriate His promises." He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.

Grains of Gold.

SUCCESS is a child of hard work.

THE greatest friend of truth is time.

WE are only human in so far as we are sensitive.

REGULAR bodily exercise is worth a host of physicians.

THOSE who can command themselves command others.

KIND words are the music of the world.—[Home Journal.

SOW GOOD service; sweet remembrances will grow from them.

DIFFIDENCE is, perhaps, quite as often the child of vanity as of self-depreciation.

THE strongest plume in Wisdom's pinion is the memory of past folly.—[Coleridge.

GENEROSITY consists not in the sum given, but the manner and occasion of its bestowal.

A SELFISH man's heart is no bigger than his coffin—just room enough for himself.—[Dr. Guthrie.

THE merit of our actions consists not in doing extraordinary actions, but in doing extraordinary actions extra well.

IT is easy to tell when a man is flattering your neighbor, but it isn't so easy to decide when he is flattering you.

A GENTLEMAN is one who primarily respects the comforts and feelings of all others without sacrificing his own self-respect.

A SMILE may be bright while the heart is sad. The rainbow may be beautiful in the air while beneath is the moaning of the sea.

AS THE soil, however rich it may be, cannot be productive without agriculture, so the human soul, without cultivation, cannot bear good fruit.—[Seneca.

A MAN builds a bridge, and he is a great man. Another man puts up a cathedral, and he is a great man. But he who gives a man an idea which changes his life for good is the greatest of all.—[Canon Farrar.

His Test.

A dealer in pictures who makes it his business to find as many new painters as possible, both in this country and abroad, was asked recently in regard to his methods of selecting pictures to buy. He was very frank in his talk, and one thing which he said is shrewd enough to be worth quoting.

"Of course," he said, "with my experience I am able to judge whether there is promise in a painter's work, but I never buy with any idea of putting the painter on my list until I have seen the man and talked with him myself. I always watch him closely, and I never buy his picture unless his eye lights up when I talk to him about his work and about his profession."

The artist whose heart was really in his work could not discuss it without kindling, and the man who did not paint from the heart was not the one whose pictures the dealer wanted.

The remark was not only one which showed insight and shrewdness on the part of the dealer, but it is one of a good deal of significance in regard to all work. The man who does anything worth doing is the man who cannot talk about what he has accomplished or what he hopes to accomplish with enthusiasm, no matter how far short of his ideals what he has actually done may seem to him to fall.—[Youth's Companion.

Unknown Tongue.

Those who have learned a foreign language with an approach to thoroughness often find in the dialects so many new languages to master. Almost any one who speaks English might be put down successively in half a dozen places where English is supposed to be the mother tongue, and hear as many dialects spoken, not one of which he would understand until it was interpreted.

An old Broughton worthy and an English lady, says an English paper, were one day occupants of a railway carriage. The train had been waiting long at a certain station and there was no appearance of its starting, when the worthy remarked:

"They're a gly tanglesome lot here."

"I beg your pardon, sir," said the lady.

"Am sayin' they're a gly daidlin' lot here."

"I really beg your pardon, sir."

"Am observin' they are a very dreich lot here the nicht."

"I do not quite understand you."

"I'm wonderin' if they're ettlin to saunter here a nicht."

"Really I must again beg your pardon. I don't comprehend you."

"I was just tyin' to say that your train was late."

"Indeed, sir, it is very late," agreed the lady, and then collapsed.

Heavy Cattle.

The owner of two of the heaviest cattle ever seen in Kansas—two steers weighing together 8,040 pounds—has refused an offer of 50 cents per pound for them, and proposes to take them to the World's Fair. The larger one, weighing 4,040 pounds, is exactly twelve feet long, and they both stand about six feet high.

'Twas Unconventional, at Least.

Some years ago the old Marquise du P—— had informed her servants that she expected a call from the Archbishop of T——, but failed to add that he had been married in his youth and that he had only resigned his commission as a captain of cuirassiers and entered the church on the death of his wife. The latter had left him with two little boys. These, now grown up and themselves officers in the army, accompanied their father on the occasion of his call. A gray haired groom of the chambers, on asking the right reverend gentleman whom he was to have the honor of announcing, started as if he had been shot upon receiving the reply:

"The Archbishop of T—— and his two sons."

"Jamais!" exclaimed the worthy domestic, in tones of horror choking with indignation. "Never shall I be guilty of such disrespect to Mme la Marquise," and with that he fled, leaving the prelate and his two sons to make their way into the salons unannounced. It was only subsequently that she was able to explain to the old servant that the Archbishop's two boys had been born in lawful wedlock previous to his entering holy orders, and that the father of his being accompanied by two stalwart sons should not be considered as evidence that he had violated his priestly oath of celibacy.

Rescued from the Depths of Misery.

The misery endured by unfortunates whose livers are derelict in duty is unspeakable. Sick headaches, nausea, costiveness, disorder of the digestive apparatus, heartburn, vertigo, unrest, sourness of the breath, uneasiness beneath the short right ribs and right shoulder blade, fickle appetite, are among the hateful indicia of biliousness, which, however, speedily vanish when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is employed as a regulator. Most effectually is its work of disciplining carried out, as a complete renewal of the digestive, secretive and evacuative functions satisfactorily proves. In cases of malarial disease the liver is the principal gland involved, and for maladies of a malarial type Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an absolute specific. As a laxative—painless but effective—it is unrivalled, and it is an admirable preventive of chronic kidney trouble and rheumatism, and a superb general tonic and corrective.

He Knew Him.

Most people wear colored spectacles of some kind, and whatever they see takes the hue of the glasses. A story comes from England that a certain famous operatic conductor lately visited Stratford-on-Avon.

He was one of a select coaching party, and his companions soon perceived that he felt no very lively interest in the Shakspeare monument and other object over which all visitors to the place are expected to wax enthusiastic.

"Shakspeare! Oh, yes, Shakspeare," he murmured wearily. And one of the party volunteered a hint.

"You recollect, maestro, 'Amletto' and 'Romeo e Giulietta?'"

The popular conductor at once brightened.

"Ah, yes," he replied, "I quite understand. Ze librettist!"

Happy Baby!

Because he is healthy. There is no baby comfort but in health. There is no baby beauty but in health.

All his comfort is from fat, and most of his beauty. Fat is almost everything to him. That is why babies are fat. It is baby's wealth, his surplus laid by. What he does not need for immediate use he tucks under his velvet skin to cushion him out and keep the hard world from touching him.

This makes curves and dimples. Nature is fond of turning use into beauty.

All life inside; all fat outside. He has nothing to do but to sleep and grow.

You know all this—at least you feel it. When baby is plump you are as happy as he is. Keep him so.

But what if the fat is not there? Poor baby! we must get it there. To be thin for a baby, is to lose what belongs to him. Why should the little mortal begin his life with suffering!

Go to your doctor. Don't be dosing your baby when all he needs is a little management.

How It Happened.

Children's ignorance is sometimes more interesting than grown people's knowledge.

It was after a reading lesson, says an exchange, and the teacher asked:

"Now, Harry, can you tell me how it was that Ben Adhem's name led all the rest?"

"I don't know, ma'am," answered Harry, "but I suppose the names were arranged alphabetically."

THE wedding present of the Senor Canovas del Castillo, the Spanish Premier, to his wife, was a matchless necklace of three rows of pearls and with a garland of ivy leaves, emblematic of constancy. She was one of the haughtiest beauties of the Spanish court, and with unparalleled constancy waited sixteen years until her parents at length gave their consent to the match and enabled her to wed the man of her choice.
