To Slay or to Be Slain. Which?

To attack the dragon of disease and annihilate him before his deadly talons grow, or to allow him to attain dangerous maturity and destroy us—that is the question of paramount importance to all afflicted with organic ailments. Among these, disorders of the kidneys and bladder are of the fatal order if unrestrained at the outset. Their growth is rapid, their culmination death. Bright's disease, cutaneous nephritis, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, gravel, suppression of the secretion, cannot be tampered with or disregarded safely. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a superb depurative tonic, giving the due impulse, without excitation, to the renal organs, besides strengthening and regulating them in common with the rest of the system. It infuses, too, vigor and regularity into the stomach, bowels and liver, successfully counteracts malaria and rheumatism, and is a pre-eminently fine tonic for the aged, the enfeebled and the convalescent.

Very Exciting Games.

The women in some of the provinces of Chili have a new and useful pastime. Some raw beef is placed in the center of adhesive fly paper. The fleas with which the country is infested jump for the meat, but reach only the paper, where they stick. The side on which the flea first reaches the beef wins. As many people can play as there are sides to the paper. A small stake usually gives zest to the game.

Early Closing on Saturday.

Most of the wholesale and retail firms in Chicago have decided to close their stores on Saturday at 1:00 p. m., commencing May 1st. In order to give their clerks a much-needed rest. In connection with this service the Wisconsin Central lines beg to announce that, commencing May 1, excursion tickets will be placed on sale to Lake Villa, Fox Lake, Antioch, and Mukwonago. Trains leave the Grand Central Passenger Station at 8 a. m., 3 p. m., 4:25 p. m., 5:47 p. m., and 10:45 p. m. Returning trains arrive at Chicago at 7:15 a. m., 9:45 a. m., 9:50 a. m., 7:55 p. m. and 7:45 p. m. Ticket office 205 Clark street, Chicago, Ill.

Bread Made of Moss.

Along the Columbia River a kind of bread is made by the Indians from a moss that grows on the spruce fir tree. This moss is prepared by placing it in heaps, sprinkling it with water and permitting it to ferment. Then it is rolled into balls as big as a man's hand, and these are baked in pits.

A CHILDLESS HOME.

Smith and his wife have every luxury that money can buy, but there is one thing lacking to their happiness. Both are fond of children, but no little voices prattle, no little feet patter in their beautiful home. "I would give ten years of my life if I could have one healthy, living, child of my own," Smith often says to himself. No woman can be the mother of healthy offspring unless she herself is in good health. If she suffers from female weakness, general debility, bearing-down pains and functional derangements, her physical condition is such that she cannot hope to have healthy children. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a sovereign and guaranteed remedy for all these ailments. Worn-out, "run-down," feeble women, need Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It builds them up. It's a powerful, restorative tonic, or strength-giver—free from alcohol and injurious drugs. The entire system is renewed and invigorated. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, gives refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength.

It's the only guaranteed medicine for women, sold by druggists.

A Young Woman at Fifty

Or, as the world expresses it, "a well-preserved woman." One who, understanding the rules of health, has followed them, and preserved her youthful appearance. Mrs. Pinkham has many correspondents who through her advice and care, can look with satisfaction in their mirrors. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound goes to the root of all female complaints, renews the vitality, and invigorates the system. Intelligent women know well its wonderful powers.

It is the successful product of a life's work of a woman among women, and is based upon years of actual practice and expense.

KILLED IN A COAL MINE.

MANY MINERS MEET QUICK DEATH.

Fearful Result of an Explosion in a Coal Mine at Roslyn, Washington—Sad Scenes Following the Disaster—Recovering the Dead.

Blown to Eternity.

The most horrible explosion ever known in the Pacific Northwest occurred at the coal mines of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company at Roslyn, a small town about four miles from the main line of the Northern Pacific, 107 miles from Tacoma. At least 42 men are believed to have been killed. Excitement in the town borders on a state of frenzy and has extended throughout the State. Nothing like it has ever been known anywhere in that portion of the country, and from all parts of the State news of intense interest in the matter is being received.

Many dead bodies, according to a dispatch, have already been taken out, and hundreds of people have gathered around the scene of the accident; wives and children of buried men are at the mouth of the mine and acting like maniacs in their terrible distress. Every body that has been taken out up to this time is terribly disfigured, and many of those buried have been crushed beyond recognition. Some are horrible masses of flesh without a trace of their identity left, while many of the unfortunate men are believed to have been blown to atoms.

Nearly all of the men were married and a large number of them had large families.

It is thought that the explosion took place when the men were changing shifts. The concussion shook the ground perceptibly and the noise was heard a long distance. Smoke belched from the shaft almost immediately, showing that the mine had taken fire. All the inhabitants of Roslyn were on the grounds in an incredibly short space of time, and the friends and relatives of the men known to have been in the slope crowded about the mouth of the mine, the women and children crying and the men wringing their hands in helplessness. Ropes were stretched to keep the people back, and a rescuing party was hastily formed. In their grief many of the men acted like maniacs, and as one body after another, each horribly mutilated, was brought out the wild exclamations of horror and sorrow were terrifying. At midnight seven bodies had been recovered, some of them crushed beyond recognition, and it was known that none of the entombed men were alive. Thirty-three of the dead were married men and had families who swarmed about the opening of the tunnel, hoping against knowledge of their loss. While the wives and children of the victims waited for the rescue of the bodies a car load of coffins, sent from Tacoma by special train, was unloaded, and the coffins were laid side by side near the tunnel awaiting occupants.

If anything could add to the horror of the situation it is the fact that most of the families of the dead are in destitute circumstances. For several weeks the camp has been dull on account of the light demand for coal, and as few of the men were provident, it is feared that much suffering will be experienced unless aid from elsewhere is sent.

When the work of rescue began it was found that the entire interior of the mine was clogged with debris, and nothing could be done until a new air shaft could be put in. Deadly fumes issuing from the mine stifled all who entered. When the third level of the slope had been reached and several bodies had been found, badly mangled and blackened, the presence of a small fire which was roasting some of the corpses was noticed. This gave rise to the belief that the explosion was caused by fire in the mine. Manager John Kangley, formerly of Illinois, says the gas accumulated in the slope where new levels were being driven and before connections were made with the air shaft the exposure of damp to a blast or match could have caused the explosion. Inspectors were continually on guard in the mine and reported no accumulation of gas on the levels and Kangley says it will probably never be known exactly what caused the explosion.

ASSASSINATED BY RUSTLERS.

Foreman of a Cattle Ranch Shot Down from Ambush.

The rustlers are evidently determined to beat the big cattle men in this section, says a Buffalo, Wyoming, dispatch, declaring they must either abandon their property or employ as foreman only those who bear their indorsement. George Wellman, foreman of the H. A. Blair cattle company, better known as the Hoe outfit, was shot by a concealed assassin and instantly killed on the main road and about thirty miles south of here. The only known reason for the crime is that he has been notified to leave the country and has refused to obey the order.

The first news of the tragedy was brought in by Tom Hathaway, an employe of the same company. He says he and Wellman started for Buffalo on horseback. When about twelve miles out and passing through a rough, broken country a shot was fired and his horse sprang ahead and ran away with him. While trying to subdue the frightened animal he heard several other shots, and, glancing back, saw his companion fall from his saddle. He started back along the road and met Wellman's horse, which he mounted. He saw Wellman lying in the road motionless, but was afraid he would share the same fate if he approached nearer, so he came in and gave the alarm.

There are probably one hundred people in this county, business men and others, who have been warned to leave, and doubtless others will be killed unless they at once seek a more congenial climate.

The Songs They Sing.

"If I had the making of the laws of this nation I would hang the man who wrote its songs," said old Gimlet, as his son slammed the door and came down the hall singing, "Ta-ra-ra, boom-de-ay."—Boston Post.

The singing of "Comrades" in New York has resulted in a murder. Unhappily, however, it was the critic and not the singer who needed the services of the coroner.—Quincy Whig.

The two popular songs in Jersey City now are "Ta-ra-ra Boom-de-ay" for the Republicans, while the Democrats sadly whisper under their breath: "Oh, What a Difference in the Morning."—Philadelphia Press.

A man has been arrested down at Bedford for sitting under the window of his divorced wife in the small hours of the night and playing "Home, Sweet Hom" on a French harp. Apparently they have no appreciation of humor in that locality.—Indianapolis News.

Speaking of "Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay" James Payn says: "If the ballads of a nation are of this description what must, indeed, who make the laws?" This may be an ingenious apology by Mr. Payn for this country's hereditary legislators, but it won't wash.—Cleveland World.

A pretty New Jersey girl objected to being serenaded in the strains of "Annie Rooney," and her friends opened fire upon a crowd of young gallants warbling under the window. This sort of thing tends to give as much notoriety to the song as its author attained in being arrested for stealing.—Peoria Transcript.

Nature's Monument to Washington.

Among the many monuments to Washington is one which every visitor to the Cape Verde Islands will remember as one of the most colossal and marvelous freaks of natural sculpture in existence. Along the further side of the harbor of San Vicente (the principal town) rises a bold ridge of dark gray volcanic rocks, the crest of which forms an exact likeness of our immortal George, seeming as if lying face upward, as if in a peaceful sleep. The hero's large, bold features, the bold wave of the hair, his massive shoulders, and even the frill of the shirt-front are all reproduced on a gigantic scale with wonderful exactness. This strange monument, sharply outlined against the deep blue of the tropical sky, is one of the first objects that meet one's eye in approaching the island. Its gigantic proportions, with the boundless ocean for a background, form a portrait wonderfully true to nature and overpowering in its magnificence.—St. Louis Republic.

The Pope's Health and Habits.

The Pope, who is 82, wears spectacles only when reading; for ordinary uses his eyesight remains good. He could see better at 70 than he could at 20, for when young he was very nearsighted. The health of his Holiness is excellent, and it is kept so by his very simple mode of life. He is in bed usually for eight hours, from 10 till 6. His meals are all of a frugal character, his breakfast at times consisting solely of a glass of milk. For dinner, which is served at 3, he takes soup, two courses of meat with vegetables and a dessert of fruit with one glass of wine. Every day after dinner he goes out for a drive, or a walk in the gardens of the Vatican.

Hornets in January.

Lumbermen returning from the headwaters of the Machias River, Maine, report that the weather was so warm in that region during January that hornets left their hives. On Jan. 1 a teamster in township 41 accidentally drove into a hornet's nest hanging from a bush, and the hornets, aroused by the collision, issued in fierce swarms and stung the horses so badly that they broke and ran two miles to the hovel before they could be stopped.

A PROFITABLE TALK.

OUR SPECIAL REPORTER SECURES THE FACTS.

He Determined to Thoroughly Investigate a Subject That Is Causing Much Comment, and He Has Succeeded.

[New York Sun.]

Two days ago one of the most prominent professional men in New York published a letter so outspoken, so unusual as to cause extensive talk and awaken much comment. Yesterday I interviewed the gentleman as to the contents of the letter, and he fully confirmed it in every respect. He not only did this, but he also mentioned a number of unusual cases which had come under his observation, in which little less than a miracle had been performed.

So important has the entire subject become that I determined to investigate for the lot on, and, accordingly, called upon Mr. Albert G. Eaves, the prominent costumer, at No. 63 East Twelfth street, the gentleman mentioned in my interview with the doctor yesterday. Mr. Eaves has made quite a name. A complete knowledge of history, an appreciation of art and reliability are essential in his profession.

"Mr. Eaves," I said, "I learn that your wife has had a most unusual experience; are you willing to describe it?"

The gentleman thought a moment, and an expression of pleasure passed over his face. "When I think," he said, "of what my wife once passed through, and the condition she is in to-day, I cannot but feel gratitude. Nearly three years ago she was at the point of death. You can understand how sick she was when I say she was totally blind and lay in a state of unconsciousness. Three doctors attended her, and all agreed that her death was only a question of hours, perhaps minutes."

"May I ask what the doctors called her trouble?"

"Uræmia and puerperal convulsions, so you can imagine how badly she must have been. At last one doctor (it was Dr. R. A. Gunn) said that as a last resort, as little as I like to swallow one more attempt might be made, and a medicine was accordingly given her. She seemed to improve at once; in a few days her sight was restored. 'I have had a long, long sleep,' she said, upon recovering consciousness, and I am rejoiced to say that she was restored to perfect health wholly through the use of Warner's Safe Cure, which was the remedy we administered when she was past all consciousness."

I looked at Mr. Eaves as he said this. His face was beaming with satisfaction. He continued:

"The physicians told us, after my wife's recovery, that she never could endure childbirth, and yet we have a fine boy nearly a year old, and do not know what sickness is. I attribute it all to the wonderful power of Warner's Safe Cure. Why, my sister, who resides in Virginia, was, a while ago, afflicted precisely as my wife had been. I at once advised her to use this same great remedy: it cured her promptly."

"You find that it is specially adapted for women, do you?" I inquired.

"By no means. I have known it to be wonderful in its power in the case of gentlemen to whom I have recommended it. I speak from my experience entirely, and you should not be surprised that I am so firm a believer in this discovery, which has done so much for me."

I was not surprised. I saw by every word, by every look, that Mr. Eaves meant what he said. I had ample confirmation of Dr. Gunn's letter and interview, and I do not wonder that people who have seen such things, who have watched their dearest friends go down into the dark valley and be brought back into the light, should be both enthusiastic and grateful. I myself caught the spirit, and I shall be glad if the investigations I have made prove of profit to those who may read them.
