

COUNTRY ROADS.

(NUMBER FIVE.)

WHAT HON. CLEM STUDEBAKER SAYS.—ROADS IN MACON COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

The Drainage Better than Free Silver or Option Bills.

(From Prime's COOP BULLETIN, June 13.)

The whole country has never experienced in its history such a long period of wretched, horrid roads. This fact was very prominently brought out by the recent bicycle ride from Chicago to the City of New York, and while we are now entering upon that period when good roads, which are made by nature, ought to be the order of the day, still we find them rough, ragged and unfit for general use.

It was very gratifying to me to have been able to be present at a banquet given recently in the city of Chicago, to Col. Bardet, the president of the American Wheelman Association. Col. Cook took just such broad grounds as you would expect a man of broad views and philanthropic tendencies to take.

The Colonel said: "While, of course pleasure and also profits are very largely and intimately connected with the objects of our order, yet the one great object towards which we are all striving and working is the improvement of a permanent character, of the common country roads of this country."

J. L. Erwin, president of the Missouri State Dairy Association, who has been spending considerable time under the auspices of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture, says in a letter I have just received: "I have reached the conclusion that we must have both state and national legislation to promote good roads."

The Hon. Clem Studebaker, of Indiana, goes one step further when he declares that "the wagon and carriage road system of the United States ought to be under the direction, supervision and control of the War Department of the National Government."

OUR CORRESPONDENTS IN ILLINOIS.

One of my correspondents from Macou county says, "Road improvement is a problem that may well employ the talent and invoke the best thoughts of our wisest citizen. The question which troubled him the most is: 'How are we to improve our roads at an expense within the means of our people so as to enable us to have good roads the most of the year?'"

Correspondent in Kankakee county says: "It is a remarkable sight to see only one-half of the corn up at this season of the year. This has demonstrated the fact that tile drainage is more beneficial to the average farmer than free trade or option bills."
