

Gardner.

At this writing old Mr. Milligan is reported dying. D. L. Strahl was doing business in Carbon Hill Monday. Of all smashups, the one Sunday night was the worst. H. E. Snyder and family and Mrs. Agard Sundayed in Essex. Our furniture dealers are still "scrapping." Is it to be suicide or murder? Saturday night the Republican club will meet at Allison's hall to organize a marching club. Ray Ferguson, of Morris, is visiting the Doctor. Ray will study in Cornell University the coming year. The Baptist Sunday school is preparing an excellent program for the 11th of September to celebrate the "Harvest Home."

C. N. Green and A. H. Smith are here from Peoria, calling on old friends. Mr. Green was formerly pastor of the M. E. church here. Walter Peck is expected home this week from Vermont. His trip to the east and up the Lawrence was for his health and we are glad to say that he is much improved. It is a pity that some drivers of horses who show their spite toward wheelmen whenever they meet them on the road, do not realize that the use of the bicycle is bringing about better roads, of which they are going to reap the benefit even more than the wheelmen.

Goodfarm.

Luella Stevens visited friends in Odell, last week. Mrs. McKay, of Chicago, is a guest of Mrs. A. Crocker. Mr. and Mrs. Ash, of Verona, were out to their farm Tuesday. The Misses Myrmie Barnum and Lena Fildel spent last Saturday with Miss June Robinson. Those who attended the annual County Institute, from our town, were Misses Ella Morrissey, Nellie Stevens and Anna McClary. The many friends of W. P. Bartholic will be sorry to learn of the accident which befell him last Monday, causing his limbs to be badly bruised, but we are glad to say that he is getting along as well as could be expected.

Round Grove.

Peter Nonimou lost a fine horse last Monday. Thomas Lawless is hauling lots of tile these days. Jas. Redmond, of Joliet, spent this week in Camps. School will commence in district 5 next Monday with Miss Myrtle Foote as teacher. Jim Kinney, of Broughton, spends most of his time at Wilson since he has got to be uncle. A number of our boys are talking of going to South Dakota to work through harvest and see the country. Neighborhood Nubbins.

The Keeley Institute, of Des Moines, has its capacious building well filled with men taking treatment for the liquor habit and for the nervous conditions that necessarily follow the use of alcohol. The Keeley treatment is all that is claimed for it—Iowa Ex. A farmer living near Oswego, it is said, took a jug of whiskey to his farm for the field hands and placed it in a corn crib. In some way the jug got broken. A cow that got some corn juice began acting strangely, and like a man when under the influence of liquor. This first attracted the farmer's attention. He next noticed a number of chickens having a bilious good time. Investigation showed that they were all drunk. The jug was empty and the corn was saturated with liquor. The chickens turned somersaults and performed all kinds of acrobatic feats.—Tonica News. Third Assistant Postmaster General Jensen is preparing a new set of postage stamps in honor of Columbus and his great discovery. One of the stamps, probably the two-cent, will bear the head of Columbus; another will illustrate his landing, and a third will probably present the convent of La Rabida, where the great voyager was housed just before his departure in search of a new world. The current issue of stamps to be suspended for a few years, at the end of which time the dies and plates for the jubilee stamps, as they are called, will be destroyed, and the old ones restored to use. General Hazen expects to have the new stamps ready January 1.

Lace and Ribbons.

At the demilaison between summer and autumn almost unlimited license is allowable in the matter of dress. The belated summer days endow with new value the dainty summer toilets that afforded comfort to the wearers.—and, presumably, pleasure to others in seeing beauty charmingly adorned.—and ingenuity and good taste may have ample scope in "freshening" them up for the supplementary season. A little lace or ribbon will work wonders if artistically employed "where it will do the most good" in hiding the summer's ravages, and the ways in which they may be employed are innumerable. A bib yoke, bretelles, sleepe caps, or a Figaro jacket of cream or black lace will transform the India silk or bengaline gown that one hates to relinquish till the weather makes it imperative; or velvet or satin ribbon disposed in bib or yoke-shape, or in corset effect, will invest the favorite dress with a new charm. In selecting ribbon for this purpose, velvet is most effective, giving a deeper color or more in keeping with autumn; and if the color contrast with that of the dress material, all the better. Deep ruby red and emerald green are especially popular, and harmonize with most of the summer colors. Shoulder knots, placed just above the sleeves, are becoming to most figures and are much used both with and without lace bretelles. They made with the usual two loops, two ends, and a cross-piece, and are arranged to stand up or lie flat, whichever is most becoming.—From "Review of Fashions," in Demorest's Family Magazine for September.
