Petroleum superseded vegetable oils for lighting purposes in India, and is being gradually driven out itself by the electric light, owing to the peculiar fitness of the latter for use in hot climates.

LIES ASLEEP IN DEATH.

MRS. HARRISON PEACEFULLY PASSES AWAY.

The End Was Painless—Incidents of the Home Life of the First Lady of the Land—An Ideal Wife and Mother.

Rest at Last.

Mrs. Harrison is no more. At 1:40 a. m., Tuesday, came the end. For the second time in the history of the White House a President's wife has died within its walls. Mrs. Harrison met death with the patience and resignation of a devout Christian, and her last days were comparatively free from pain. It could hardly be said that the patient was unconscious during the evening hours, for she betrayed some signs of understanding the attempts made to relieve her last moments by partially opening her parched lips to receive the stimulating fluid applied to them from time to time. But not a drop could she swallow, and the power of speech had apparently left her frame forever. In addition the physician's experienced eye noted as the evening wore on an increase in the difficulty of breathing, which was regarded as an ominous sign. At last the end came, and surrounding the bedside of the loved one were all the members of the family in Washington. For a few moments the silent watchers were overwhelmed with grief. When they emerged from the room, the President retired to his own chamber, and was alone with his great bereavement.

Mrs. Harrison's Home Life.

Incidents innumerable are told of Mrs. Harrison's home life. Mrs. Harrison directed her own household after the most approved housewifely examples. Like the Empress of Germany, the granddaughter of Queen Victoria, she was reared and educated in the old-fashioned way.

MRS. PRESIDENT HARRISON.

The housekeeping in the White House was not a promotion to Mrs. Harrison in a practical sense, as she never before had a house with so few bed chambers in it as has the Executive Mansion. The Empress of Germany has the minutest details of her imperial housekeeping at her royal fingers' ends; so had Mrs. Harrison all the domestic affairs of the President's house within her knowing. She was the head of the housekeeping and she managed it with all the care and discretion that she ever exercised in her own house. Housemaids, housekeeper, and steward were all under Mrs. Harrison's supervising direction, whose first care was for the comfort of her husband.

Mrs. Harrison was a model hostess, with a long experience in entertaining, both in Indianapolis and in Washington, in both of which places her name is a synonym socially for all that is graceful and agreeable. When in Washington during the Senatorial terms of her husband she never assumed the cares of a hostess of her own, but her quiet receptions once or twice each week, held in her parlors, were frequented by the best people of the city.

Artistically she had what was almost a hobby for painting on china, in which she long indulged, and was very proficient. Delicate, fragile bits of china, plaques, and vases painted by her bear traces of an almost professional touch. This work, the result of an original taste, coupled with constant practice, is really charming.

In making her designs Mrs. Harrison was accustomed to gather buds and blossoms fresh from the flower beds, and make her studies directly from nature. Mrs. Harrison was also fond of artistic needlework and embroidery. As a needlewoman she marked with her monogram each piece of linen in the house at Indianapolis from bed-clothing to napkins.

Among the social graces for which Mrs. Harrison was known, and one fully tested in the White House, was her practice of sending each visitor who called. She was never known to show irritation or annoyance, and it must be a flagrant case indeed when she refused to receive a caller.

She was probably one of the most industrious mistresses the White House has ever had. Her own method of life was so simple that she gave her more time than ordinarily comes to persons in high places to devote to things she liked best. She was a constant reader of the best literature and devoted to her brush. She had been a diligent pupil for several years in the study of china painting, and her talent was often displayed in the gifts she made her friends at the holiday period.

In carrying out the hospitality of the White House she has never been excelled. She presided with easy dignity and grace upon all occasions, and omitted no detail that would add to the pleasure of those attending them. She carried out to the letter the written and unwritten laws of the house, and did as much more as it was possible to do within the limits of each season.

WHAT OF THE WEATHER

FOSTER'S FORECASTS TELL THE STORY.

A Severe Storm Accompanied by Electrical Disturbances Will Cross the Mississippi Valley About October 31—Cooler Weather Will Follow.

Cool Weather Coming.

My last bulletin gave forecasts of the storm waves to cross the continent from 24th to 28th, and the next will reach the Pacific coast about the 29th, cross the Western mountains by the close of the 30th, the great central valleys from October 31st to November 2d, and the Eastern States about November 3d.

This will be a severe storm, and at its greatest force while crossing the Mississippi Valley. An electric storm will probably accompany this disturbance, causing many difficulties in the telegraphic service. This electric storm will probably be at its greatest force about Nov. 4 or 5.

The cool wave will cross the Western mountains about Nov. 1, the great Central valleys about the 3d, and the Eastern States about the 5th.

Had More Sense than His Master.

A red-nosed man was making his way up Alabama street, Atlanta, heading for a barroom, with a thin, yellow dog affectionately following after him.

"Look at that dog," said Bailiff Nig Simpson. "That's a smart dog."

"Why?" was the natural question, there being nothing in the dog's appearance to indicate as much.

"Just watch, now. The dog follows that fellow into stores and houses, up-stairs and down, through all kinds of weather, just like he is following him now. If that fellow ever gets drunk and falls off the bridge, the dog will, too. But he won't go into the barroom. He knows a barroom as well as I do, and you can't force him into one. He'll stay outside and wait, and you can nearly always locate the fellow by standing at the corner of Alabama and Pryor and looking both ways until you see that dog in front of a bar-room waiting. Now watch him."

The red-nosed man went into the barroom. The dog looked up sorrowfully at the windows, just as if he were reading the sign, and then settled himself disconsolately upon his haunches at the end of the sidewalk. He gazed at the door in gloomy, mournful expectancy, never once taking his eyes away. He waited fully ten minutes, and then when the man came out the dog resumed his place following at his heels.

An Aluminium Steamboat.

Some novel and interesting experiments have recently been made on the Lake of Zurich with a steamboat built entirely of aluminium, which claims to be the first of its kind. The boat weighs only about half a ton, viz., about half the weight of an ordinary boat of the same size. It was built at the works of Messrs. Escher Wyss & Co., of Zurich, the metal having been furnished by the Aluminium Works of Schaffhausen, where it is obtained by an electrical process, the dynamos being driven not by steam engines but by turbines, which utilize the water power of the celebrated falls of the Rhine, so that the boat claims to be exclusively the product of Swiss labor and power.

It carries eight persons, and with a petroleum engine of only two-horse power easily makes six miles per hour. Aluminium not being subject to rust, the permanent color of the boat is a beautiful dull white, while the chimney, being of polished aluminium, shines like silver. The trial trips of the boat were eminently successful, and it is anticipated that the construction of aluminium steamers, having the same capacity, and only half the width of the iron ones now used on Swiss lakes, has a great future before it.—London Standard.

Tasks That Must Be Done.

Nature has assigned important tasks to the liver and the bowels, and being mutually dependent upon each other for the regular and adequate discharge of these tasks, a cessation of work by one causes the other to lapse into inactivity. The tasks of secretion and evacuation must be performed, or the system is poisoned and disordered. Moreover, fatal inflammation of the bowels or abscess of the liver are apt to ensue if inaction of these organs is allowed to go unheeded. The dangerous tendency should be checked at the outset with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an anti-bilious specific and laxative without a peer. Never does this medicine cause a qualm of the stomach or uneasiness of the bowels. It does its reformatory work pleasantly though with reasonable activity. It prevents malaria and rheumatic disease, kidney complaints, and relieves dyspepsia and nervousness.

Fine Question.

The Germans are a very philosophical and somewhat argumentative race. Two workmen in the great Krupp cannon manufactory were overheard discussing an important question.

"In your opinion, Johann," said one, "which is the more important part of a cannon—the hole or the steel?"

"The hole, of course, Heinrich," said the other; "because in that case in the world would a cannon be without any hole in it?"

"You are wrong, Johann. "It's the steel that's more important; for how many men could you kill with a hole with nothing around it?"

Summer Travel.

The extremely humid weather made the past summer on the Atlantic coast an exceedingly uncomfortable one for sufferers from rheumatism. A gentleman who had been completely laid up with it was asked by an acquaintance, on his reappearance on the street:

"Have you been traveling this summer?"

"Not exactly," said the other. "You see my rheumatism did all the traveling this time."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, one day it was in my neck, the next it was in my legs, then it went to my back, and thence around to my hip-joint. Oh, it took a regular excursion every day, I assure you!"

His father looked up, and seeing that Johnny had his Sunday-school book in his hand, thought it time to question him.

"It went over the fence into Mr. Brown's yard."

"Did you go over after it?"

"No, sir."

Two Great Remedies.

The human citadel is open to attacks from two sources, and, aside from accidents, these two are the avenues from which all of the maladies that afflict the race spring. The first of these are what are known as the excretory organs. These are the lungs, the kidneys, and the skin. These suffer from congestion, which takes the form of colds. Starting from what is called a cold, the maladies that result are widespread, ranging from a cough to consumption. They attack all ages and all stations. No one is free from these troubles. There is, however, a remedy that is a safeguard. This is REID'S GERMAN COUGH AND KIDNEY CURE. It contains no poison, but it will heal any form of lung trouble, or any malady that arises from a cold. The other class of diseases arise from derangement of the digestive organs, and result in constipation. When the bowels do not act, the stomach soon refuses to digest the food, and we are troubled with indigestion, fever, and a long train of disorders that embrace a wide range of maladies. The Laxative Gum-Drops will correct any difficulty of this sort. They contain nothing deleterious, but are safe and pleasant. Get them of any dealer.
