Acute Hearing of Horses.

It is well known that horses can hear deep sounds which men can not. For days previous to the late earthquake in the Riviera the horses there showed every symptom of abject fear, which continued without any change of character till the fury of the convulsion broke forth. But not till a few seconds before the earth began to quake did human beings hear any sounds, while it is extremely probable that the horses heard the subterranean noises for two or three days previously.

IN THE LOWER HOUSE.

AN INTERESTING STUDY OF ITS PERSONNEL.

How It Compares with Its Predecessor—In Numbers and Talent the Republicans Gain While the Democrats Lose—Old Members Returned.

From the Capital.

Washington correspondence:

The lower house of the Fifty-third Congress will have a decided Democratic majority, yet the Republicans by the recent election gained more than they lost in numbers and talent, while the Democrats lost many old and experienced members. In the House of Representatives of the Fifty-second Congress there are 235 Democrats, 88 Republicans and 9 Farmers' Alliance men, making a total of 332 members. In the Fifty-third Congress the total membership will be 356, a gain of 24 under the reapportionment of the new census. It is impossible yet to state definitely the relative strength of each party in the House, because in many districts the official count will be necessary to determine accurately the result. From the returns already received, however, it is evident that the Democrats will have in round numbers 220 members, the Republicans 130, and the Populists and Independents the remaining 6. With such a working majority as this the Democrats will be able to enact any legislation they choose on the tariff or any other question; and as the Senate will also have a Democratic majority, the party will be entirely responsible for whatever legislation is sent to President Cleveland for his signature.

A study of the personnel of the newly elected House shows that remarkably few changes have been made in its membership, considering the fact that the Representatives were voted for at a Presidential election, when men of both parties are naturally more anxious for nominations than in so-called off years. There have been comparatively few men of conspicuous ability or striking personality in the lower house during the past few years, and the Fifty-second Congress was especially lacking in big men. The new Congress gains little if anything by the changes resulting from the elections, as the Democrats have failed to make up in ability what they have lost in the failure of old and capable members to be renominated or re-elected. The Republicans, on the other hand, in proportion to their total number, will have more men of real ability and parliamentary experience than the Democrats.

Losses and Gains.

The Democrats will still have such strong men as Speaker Crisp, Judge Holman, Springer, the Breckinridges Bynum of Indiana, Bourke Cockran, Amos Cummings, Col. Fellows, Harte of Ohio, McMillin of Tennessee, Rayner of Maryland, and Blanchard of Louisiana; but they have lost Blount of Georgia, Herbert and Lowndes of Alabama, Hemphill of South Carolina, Hooker and Williams of Massachusetts, and others. The three first named have served long years in Congress, and are possessed of valuable knowledge and experience, which will be missed by their constituents and their colleagues in committees and on the floor of the House.

The Republicans lost none of their leaders, and the apt debaters, shrewd legislators, and skilful parliamentarians that make up the little band who have stood so gallantly by their dethroned Czar during the sessions of the present Democratic House are all returned, and will continue to follow the brilliant, erratic and fateful leadership of Tom Reed.

Among the members of the Fifty-second Congress who were noted above their fellows for some peculiar trait of character, personal appearance, or incident in life, and whose names will no longer be heard in the roll call, are Kittie Halvorsen, the Norwegian Alliance and Prohibition member from Minnesota; the venerable Leonidas M. Miller, of Wisconsin, who, as he sat in the front row, his bald head bobbing over his spectacles, bore a striking resemblance to Beckwick, reputed heir in Greece, the son of a fighting chieftain, who left him on the battlefield after a fierce fight with the Turks; Sherman Hoar and George Fred Williams, of Massachusetts, who wept when Mills was defeated in the speakership caucus, and refused forsooth to vote for Crisp in the House; "Tom" Watson, of Georgia, who wrote a book to prove that his colleagues in Congress were drunkards, and "the three Taylors," all from Ohio, and all Republicans. There will only be two Taylors in the new House as against five in the old. One is from Indiana and the other is from Texas. There will be two Smiths only, George W., from Pennsylvania, and Marcus A., a delegate from Arizona.

His Last Official Days.

Mr. Harrison will get his last month's pay on February 28 or 29 in the shape of a draft issued on a warrant signed as usual by the Secretary of the Treasury and sent over to the White House by a messenger. The amount of this draft would be $4,166.67, but four days' extra pay will be added for March. On the evening of March 3 he will go to the Capitol, where he will seat himself at the big table in the room adjoining the President's room. This is said to be the handsomest room in the world, but the Chief Magistrate of the nation only uses it once in two years. It has a velvet carpet with a pile so deep that the footfalls of one who walks upon it are noiseless. The furniture is covered with red leather, and the ceiling is frescoed in the highest style of art. Mr. Harrison will take a chair between two great mirrors, which so throw back each other's reflections that long in either direction, he can see an interminable line of his own images receding out of sight. Up to midnight he will be occupied in hurriedly signing bills, in order that they may become laws before the expiration of the Fifty-second Congress. It will be his last night of power. The next day he becomes a private citizen, with no more control over public affairs than a newly naturalized foreigner.

DIDN'T BRING RAIN.

Texas Clouds Refuse to Weep at the Command of Dyrenforth.

In the rain-making experiment at San Antonio, Tex., several charges of roselite were fired and four shells were sent up from the mortars. The ground charges, according to a correspondent, did no more than shake the earth. The mortars threw their shells in the air about 1,000 feet and exploded prettily. Then Gen. Dyrenforth brought out his grand battery in the shape of an explosive balloon. It took a long while to fill it with the necessary ingredients. The balloons used in these experiments are made of paper covered with a light cotton netting. There is danger in filling these dreadful things and even greater in letting them go, for the slightest mishap or carelessness would send everybody to kingdom come.

GENERAL DYRENFORTH

Explosion of the Balloon.

It was nearly dark when the balloon went up, but its ascent and explosion was a pretty sight. The hundreds of eyes watching it all at once saw a blinding flash on the heavens and then came a profound silence for six or seven seconds, then a shock which shook the ground. The balloon had exploded right beneath a fleecy cloud. The cloud kept on its way calmly and serenely, but, as Prof. Ellis said, the cloud was 18,000 feet high, and as the explosion occurred only 4,000 feet nearer, the cloud might have been excused for its inattention.

The following day it was fully 8 o'clock before the fusillade finally opened. The sky was greatly overcast in the morning, but everybody said it was not a rain cloud and the General might go ahead. The breeze was southwesterly and blowing about ten miles an hour. About 3 o'clock Messrs. Dickenson and King, with the president of the San Antonio Board of Trade, waited upon Gen. Dyrenforth and somewhat abruptly said that there was no use waiting for further favorable conditions. They wanted the test made at once, and wanted it kept up till some result was obtained. The General waived his military gauntlet in the direction of a battery to the westward which opened with a series of detonations of five and ten pound charges of roselite. Then on the crest of the ridge could be seen other puffs of smoke until nearly a semicircle of explosions had been seen and noted. Then Dr. Rosell opened his mortar battery from the brow of the hill near Dyrenforth's headquarters and a dozen or more shells were sent up a thousand feet and exploded. These shells contained three pounds of roselite. While the firing was going on Professor Ellis prepared another gaseous balloon. It was the same as was sent up the day before, but to the relief of the crowd had a longer fuse, for it did not explode until it was a mile in the air. When it did go there was a vivid flash, a puff of smoke visible for an instant, and then a wait of eight seconds for the shock.

No Effect on the Clouds.

It was terrific. Horses and buggies were changed about and all nature seemed convulsed, but again the fleecy clouds against which the balloon had been sent sailed majes tically along, seemingly indifferent. The first bombardment was kept up until midnight, when the first battery of 5,000 of roselite was exhausted. The fusillade will be resumed and continued without intermission for twenty-four hours. This will conclude the first series of experiments.

FOR A NATIONAL QUARANTINE.

Recommendations to Be Made by Surgeon General Wyman.

Surgeon General Wyman, of the Marine Hospital service, in whose hands have been placed all the measures for suppression of cholera, said that his annual report to the Secretary of the Treasury would strongly recommend that the matter of quarantines be placed under national control. He will suggest that there be established either a national quarantine or a Bureau of Health, whose duties will be specifically confined to meeting just such emergencies as have been presented by the recent cholera scare.

The report will follow closely the recommendation of the Quarantine Committee, made up of leading physicians of the country, appointed last fall at the meeting of the National Medical Congress. These gentlemen have visited the various ports of entry from Maine to New Orleans, and they say the quarantine system at New Orleans is the one which should be adopted as a national measure. It provides for a thorough fumigation, and is so effective that New Orleans has not seen yellow fever in seven years, whereas the city used to have a visit every summer prior to the establishment of this system.

Soldiers Crushed to Death.

Additional advices per steamship China state that a traveler arriving at Foochow reports that a gale, accompanied by a waterspout, swept down from the mountains, swamping the country in the neighborhood of Changchow, the water in some places standing ten feet deep. The Confucian temple and the temple of the City God were both submerged, the walls of the latter collapsing, burying eighty soldiers. In the Nan-Hsien district five people also suffered much.

Waste and Want.

A waste of flesh and a want of digestion. These go together. People who cannot assimilate the food they swallow must, of necessity, lose bodily substance. To remedy this, render digestion easy and thorough with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a tonic famed the world over for its strength and flesh-yielding qualities. Appetite and sleep are both impaired by indigestion, which begets nervous symptoms, heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of the bowels and palpitation of the heart—the latter often being erroneously attributed to disease of that organ. All these manifestations disappear when the Bitters is resorted to. Malaria, rheumatism, liver and kidney trouble are effectually counteracted by this superb corrective, which is not only effectual but permanent.

The Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

The walls of the Grand Canyon are in most places not perpendicular; but seen from in front they all appear to be. They are mostly of sandstone, but in places of marble, and again of volcanic rock; generally "terraced" in a manner entirely peculiar to the Southwest, and cleft into innumerable "buttes," which seem towers and castles, but are infinitely vaster and more noble than the hand of man could ever rear. And when the ineffable sunshine of that arid but enchanted land falls upon their wondrous domes and battlements with a glow which seems not of this world, the sight is such a revelation that I have seen strong men affected by it to tears of speechless awe.

There are no great falls in the Grand Canyon; but many beautiful and lofty ones in the unnumbered hundreds of side canyons which enter the greater canyon. I had almost said little canyons, for they seem in the presence of their giant mother, but in reality, almost any one of them would shame any canyon elsewhere.—St. Nicholas.

EXPERIMENTS made at the Royal Danish Academy have demonstrated approximately the height of the aurora borealis. M. Adam Paulsen, at Godthaab, by means of two theodolites situated four miles apart, found that different auroral displays varied from one to four miles in height. Experiments near Cape Farewell showed the height of different auroras to vary from one to ten miles. At Spitzenberg the range of height was from one-third to eighteen miles. In some of the earlier experiments in this direction the observers concluded that the height of auroras varied from 90 to 500 miles.

The Tailor Gave Long Credit.

An unpaid tailor's bill of the Emperor Maximilian of Germany, who flourished just 400 years ago, has been discovered in the archives of the ancient Swiss City of Coire. The heirs of the tailor are now in possession of the relic, and it has been suggested that they present the bill to the present Emperor for payment. If they also claim interest the amount which the Kaiser will be called on to pay on account of his distinguished political ancestor will be a startling one.

Burglary Caused by Love.

A young man who was recently sentenced to six months' imprisonment by a judge in Brunswick, Germany, for burglary told a queer story to the court. He admitted his guilt, but said he did it for love. "How's that?" queried the judge. "Well, you see, my sweetheart worked for that family and she refused to give up her place and my son thought I could burglarize the house and throw suspicion on her, and thus secure her dismissal."

TENNYSON.

The poet Tennyson was fond of his pipe, but he was exceeding susceptible to the charms of pretty women, whom he was willing to grant any favor to. In his later years he had the reputation of being morose and discourteous, especially to strangers, but this was because he was so bored by them that they became a veritable annoyance. He once had an American arrested and fined because the latter in his zeal had climbed the poet's favorite tree and cut off a large branch which he was going to fashion into a walking-stick as a memento. How many people would be willing to stand admiration to go at such lengths as this. The poet's death was caused by his own imprudence. He went riding insufficiently clad, took cold, and it settled upon his kidneys, as all colds do to a greater or lesser extent. The result was an attack of pneumonia, which proved fatal to him. Pneumonia can be cured by the use of REID'S GERMAN COUGH AND KIDNEY CURE, because this great remedy at once incites the kidneys to action, and thus relieves the congestion of the lungs.
