WORK WITH FOOT AND HAND.

East Indian Artisans Generally Able to Make Use of the Prehensile Toe.

The traveler who walks in the native quarters of the cities of India can easily study their all industries in their beginnings, as they were probably practiced in Europe in the middle ages. The shops are usually open and the workmen can be seen inside: textile industries, pottery, shoe making, joinering, armoring, jewelry, confectioners—all can be observed in a single street, like Chitpore street, Calcutta. If we take pains to examine attentively the methods of working, we shall be struck by the enormous function played by the lower limb. Whatever the industry, the Indian, squatting or sitting on the ground, works with his feet as well as with his hands, and it might be said, adds a writer in the Revue Scientifique, that all four of his limbs are in constant exercise. The joiner, for example, has no assistant to hold his plank, but makes his great toe serve that purpose. The shoemaker does not employ a fixed clamp for the shoe on which he is sewing, but holds it in his feet, which change position to suit his convenience, while his nimble hands do the sewing. The metal worker holds the joint of his shears on his feet in cutting copper.

In the making of wooden combs I have seen the comb held straight up by the feet, while the workman marked the teeth with one hand and with the other directed the instrument to cut them. The wood-turner directs the hand-rest with his great toes; so, generally, do Egyptian and Arabian turners. In smoothing twine or sewing a bridle the Indians hold the article between the first and second toes. When the butcher cuts his meat into small pieces he holds his knife between the first and second toes, takes the meat in both hands and pulls it across the knife. I have seen a child climb a tree and hold a branch between his toes. The great toe is capable of considerable lateral movements from the second toe, so that the Indian can easily pick up articles from the ground with his foot and even exert some force sidewise.

Thought of Their Wives.

The last days of many of our great men have been particularly pathetic, says the Washington Star. Sam Randall, who was in terrible pain during his last hours, looked up just before he died at his wife and smiled and uttered the word "Mother." For forty-eight hours Mrs. Randall had not left his bedside, and his hand was in hers as he passed away. Randall's was another case of overwork and lack of exercise. This, with his peculiar temperament, brought on the gout, and he died in his prime.

Gen. Logan's death was full of pathos. His last act was to try to whisper to his wife, and Gen. Hancock's last words were to Mrs. Hancock, whom he called, using her pet name, "Ellie." He then attempted to say "good-by," but he had only uttered the word "good," when he relapsed into unconsciousness and expired!

Judge Jeremiah Black died with a prayer on his lips, and just before he left this world he said to his wife: "How can I fear to cross the dark river when my Father waits for me on the other side." He then prayed, saying, "Oh, thou most beloved and merciful heavenly Father, from whom I had my being and whom I have ever trusted, if it be Thy will, grant that my suffering end, and that I speedily be called home to Thee, and oh, bless and comfort my Mary." A few moments after this he died.

Vice President Wilson picked up a hymn book just before he died, and looked for a long time at his wife's picture, which was pasted in the front of it, and Henry Clay's words during the delirium of his dying hours were: "Mother, mother, mother, and my dear wife!"

The Training of Students.

The eminent authority, Prof. Virchow, in an address in Berlin, has called into question the study of grammar as a means of progressive development in schools. He recommends rather mathematics, philosophy, and the natural sciences, which give so firm an intellectual preparation to youths that they can easily make themselves at home in any department of learning subsequently undertaken.

No school boy, he said, will be the worse for being able to name and distinguish a certain number of plants, animals, and stones, and the essential discipline should consist in the training of the senses, especially those of sight and touch. Dr. Virchow says that a large number of pupils have no exact knowledge of color, make false statements about the forms of things they see, and show no understanding for the consistency of bodies and for the nature of their surfaces. He advocates the general teaching of simple drawing and painting, than which nothing is better calculated to develop accuracy of judgment regarding color and form.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The President's Salary.

The salary of the President of the United States is paid to him in monthly installments of $4,166. The warrant is brought to the White House by a special messenger from the Treasury department, and after the President has endorsed it as he would an ordinary draft, his private secretary deposits in the Columbia Bank. When the President is out of town the draft is pasted to him. The same method is pursued in paying the Justices of the Supreme Court.

In olden times the wise men came from the East; now it is fashions for the women that come from the East.

Comfortably Wrecked.

It is a lamentable fact that constant repetition tends to strengthen belief in a story until it grows into a sort of tradition that no one dares or cares to dispute. Such was the case with the tale of Joel Goodhope's wrecking. For years he had spun his yarn before the little fire in the little shoemaker's shop, and the village youth had listened with eyes extended thrilling at the torn sails, the uncertain drifting and the final striking of the vessel upon the shore.

To Joel's credit it may be said that his account never varied, not even in the appalling inflection of his tones.

A stranger came into the village, and one dreadful evening never to be forgotten by Joel, sat with the others before the cobbler's cheering blaze. They were listening once more to Joel's narrative.

"Had ye been long outen provisions?" inquired the stranger.

"Well, no," replied Joel, "we had food enough."

"You was a-coming to Squam, any way, wasn't yer?"

"Yes, we were coming to Squam," said the unsuspecting Joel.

"She landed putty near where the cap'n wanted her?" persisted the stranger.

"Well, yes, 'bout ten foot from the wharf," said Joel, growing a little nettled.

"You say you run along the bowsprit and jumped off. Did you get wet any?"

"No; I landed in a sand heap—happened to."

"Well," said the seeker after information, "you live putty nigh on the beach; you couldn't got very wet running home?"

Joel was obliged to acknowledge the dry state.

"Well," said the stranger, after a long pause, "I call that a tolerable comf'table wreckin'."

A silence fell on the listeners, and Joel went out and shut the door quietly, feeling that somehow he had been robbed.

Amber Is Scarce.

Genuine amber is becoming scarcer every year, and it will not be long before a real amber cigar-holder or pipe-stem will be a rarity and a luxury. The true amber is a fossil gum, which was produced in large quantities by trees having a resinous sap, which flowed down the trunks and gathered in masses at the roots. It is found in the ground of marshes and other places where forests flourished in former times, and is also secured by dredging. The Baltic and Black seas and the German ocean formerly produced it in considerable quantities, but their supplies are now pretty much exhausted. There is a little satisfaction, however, in knowing that the imitation amber is just as good as the real.

Reduced Death Rate.

The death rate of the English soldiers stationed in India in 1859 was 69 per 1,000. Since that time certain changes in housing, food, water, clothing, etc., have been adopted, with the result that in 1886 the rate was 15.81 per 1,000, and in 1888 it was 14.54 per 1,000.

An Enemy Baffled.

There is an enemy with whom thousands are familiar all their lives, because they are born with a tendency to biliousness. With this enemy they are constantly battling with ineffectual weapons. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will baffle it. Mere purgatives will not reform a disordered condition of the liver indicated, not by constipation alone, but also by sick headaches, yellowness of the skin and eyeballs, nausea, furred tongue and uneasiness, more particularly upon pressure on the right side, upon and below the short ribs. Avoid drastic purgatives which gripe and weaken the intestines, and substitute this world-famous anti-bilious remedy which likewise removes malarial, stomachic and kidney complaints, rheumatism and nervousness. As a laxative of the bowels, painless but effectual, it improves appetite, sleep and the ability to digest, and possesses the additional advantage of a standard tonic.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Mother's Story

Willie Dun.

"When my boy was 2½ years of age, a fall brought on hip disease, which gradually grew worse until, when he was 6, he could not walk, and we had him treated nine months at the Children's Hospital in Boston. But when he came home he was worse, and the doctors said nothing could be done. I began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla and he improved at once. The fourteen abscesses on his hip healed up, his appetite improved and he could walk, at first with crutches, then without. He is now perfectly well, lively as any boy." MRS. EMMA V. Royal Baking Powder

Strongest, Purest, Most Economical.

As to whether any of the baking powders are equal to the "Royal," the official tests clearly determine. When samples of various baking powders were purchased from the grocers, and analyzed by the United States Government Chemists and the Chemists of State and City Boards of Health, the reports revealed the fact that the "Royal" contained from 28 per cent. to 60 per cent. more leavening strength than the others, and also that it was more perfectly combined, absolutely pure, and altogether wholesome.

As most of these powders are sold to consumers at the same price as the "Royal," by the use of the Royal Baking Powder there is an average saving of over one third, besides the advantage of assured purity and wholesomeness of food, and of bread, biscuit and cake made perfectly light, sweet, and palatable.

The official reports also reveal the presence, in other powders, of alum, lime or sulphuric acid, by which their use is made a matter of grave danger to the consumer.

Whenever a baking powder is sold at a lower price than the "Royal," or with a gift, it is a certain indication that it is made from alum, and is to be avoided under all circumstances.

Locomotives that Are Jonahs.

"There are on nearly every railroad locomotives that are known as Jonahs," said Henry E. Archer, who has spent twenty years in the service of the Illinois Central, to a St. Louis Globe-Democrat man. "Some years ago an engine on an Illinois road blew up, cutting the fireman's head off with a segment of boiler iron. The engine was rebuilt and made as good as new, but no engineer could be found to run it more than one trip. It was soon whispered about that it was haunted; that the headless fireman had an unpleasant habit of appearing on the tender with pick and shovel and insist on firing up. One night an engineer and his fireman deserted the locomotive while on a run, and the conductor attempted to bring the train in. He was not afraid of ghosts; not he! But he sidetracked at the first opportunity and waited until daylight before completing the run. He told me that the ghost was no joke; that every time the furnace door was thrown open, the headless apparition entered the cab, bearing a shadowy scoop of coal. For a month the engine laid in the shop. Then an engineer, who was compelled to either take it out or lose his place, mounted it. Before he had run a dozen miles it went through a culvert, wrecked the train, and killed nine people. It was never rebuilt."

"Say Your Nasty Little Prayers!"

Mr. Sala, in his journal, relates the following experience of Mr. William Black, the novelist: When at work Mr. Black loves intense quiet, and cannot bear the slightest noise. For this reason he always selects a room at the top of the house as his study. At one time it was his misfortune to live in what he describes as a jerry-built house, and, while endeavoring to work in the early hours of the morning, as is his custom, he tells of one amusing inconvenience that he was called upon daily to put up with.

The nursery of his next door neighbor was in a line with his study, and in this a somewhat numerous family were located. Every morning, as regular as clockwork, Mr. Black could hear the elder sister call out, "Now then, you horrid little things, kneel down and say your nasty little prayers!" A profound silence would follow; but the interval was a brief one. Then came a rush and clatter, and the shrill voices of the children were heard exclaiming, "We have said our prayers; we have said our prayers!"

BAD taste and unpleasant breath, when resulting from Catarrh, are overcome, and the nasal passages, which have been closed for years, are made free by the use of Ely's Cream Balm. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding. The soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.
