

The Japanese. The Japanese leave in the traveler's mind the memory of courtesy and grace, but even more deeply marked is the memory of their versatility and their energy. All men, he has learned, may be polite; cabmen and prisoners may be gentlemen. I never saw more grace than was shown in the courtesy which passed between the Governor of the prison at Kioto and a female prisoner. But the chief lesson taught in Japan is man's versatility. Man's energy is indomitable, and his history in Japan repeats the lesson enforced by the Jewish prophets, that though only a remnant of a stump, be left, yet out of that stump may grow branches and leaves in which generations may rest. Thirty years ago men who have now the language and habits of highly cultivated civil servants were swarming with two swords and witnesses of hara kiri. A generation ago Japan was where England was 300 years ago, but by energy and versatility Japan, in science, education, knowledge and history, now takes its place alongside the foremost nations. This is the more remarkable because religion seems to have had no place in the development. "No one is religious; I believe in nothing; I believe in myself," expresses the attitude of young Japan. The Japanese are curiously deficient in the religious sense; they have never made friends with sorrow; they have hid sorrow behind a ceremony and waved off care with a blossom branch. They have missed therefore religion, which is sorrow's consolation, and have missed perhaps also the impulse which would make them original as well as energetic.—The Nineteenth Century.

A Bandit's Courtesy. Cardinal Theodoli, the intendant of St. Peter's at Rome, who had just died, led, for the most part, a life of clerical tranquility; but he was fond of narrating one thrilling adventure. It was in 1874. Monsignor Theodoli was spending a quiet holiday at the abbey of Trivulsi, near Frosinone. While reposing under a chestnut tree in a neighboring wood one afternoon he was captured by bandits and carried off to the mountain-top. His servant, who came in search of him, shared a like fate. In the morning the chief approached the bishop respectfully, and with many apologies for the necessity which he was under, informed him that they required $2,000, which his servant could bring back, and then he would be set at liberty. There was no help for it. The servant was sent and returned. The captive was freed, and the brigands implored his pardon, saying misery had driven them to their mode of life, and protesting that they were good Christians. The heart of the bishop was softened. He gave them his blessing. The chief seized his hand and kissed it fervently, but in doing so contrived to abstract the pastoral ring. In justice, though, it should be said that about a year later, as the bishop was one day crossing the bridge of St. Angelo from St. Peter's, an individual unknown to him thrust a packet into his hand. It contained the ring.—Tit-Bits.

A Useful Lady-Bird. The fruit-growers of California have suffered great losses through the ravages of a species of aphid known there as "cottony cushion scale," but according to Cassell's Magazine, a remedy for the pest has been found in the Australian lady-bird. Novius koebeli, which preys on the aphid, has been acclimatized in California. The lady-bird, when full-grown, is about one-eighth of an inch in length. It is chiefly of a dark-red color with black lines and markings, as shown in the illustration which represents the male. In the female the black medial line only extends half-way down the back.

Electricity, when unretarded by atmospheric influences, travels at the rate of 288,000 miles a second. Along a wire it is, of course, vastly slower; a perceptible period of time is occupied by the electric current in sending telegrams over long distances.

If you want to get cured take Manners Double Extract Sarsaparilla. It's the best. Try it 60 cents.

My wife was confined to her bed for over two months with a very severe attack of rheumatism. We could get nothing that would afford her any relief, and as a last resort gave Chamberlain's Pain Balm a trial. To our great surprise she began to improve after the first application, and by using it regularly she was soon able to get up and attend to her house work. E. H. Johnson of C. J. Knutson & Co., Kensington, Minn. 50 cent bottles for sale by Dr. C. H. Barr, Dwight, and W. H. Augustine, Bracelville.

The only Double Extract Sarsaparilla is Manners. It's the best because it cures. Take no other. 60 cents.

Persons who are subject to attacks of bilious colic can almost invariably tell, by their feelings, when to expect an attack. If Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is taken as soon as these symptoms appear, they can ward off the disease. Such persons should always keep the Remedy at hand, ready for immediate use when needed. Two or three doses of it at the right time will save them much suffering. For sale by Dr. C. H. Barr, Dwight, and W. H. Augustine, Bracelville.

It Never fails to Cure—MANNERS DOUBLE EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA.
