Dr. Brown, of the institute staff, is in Rockford for a couple of weeks, while the physician in charge there is taking a vacation. The Leslie E. Keeley Co. has provided so that all their physicians who desire, will be granted leaves of absence to attend the world's fair or rest as they please, during the summer.

Don't fail to call on the printer when your subscription is due. If you let it run over thirty days it will cost you twenty-five cents more. The little slip on your paper, or the wrapper, tells each subscriber the date of expiration, so there is no good reason for being behind, providing always, of course, that you have the price—$1.25.

Walter Scott has finally had summons served on him to appear for trial next Monday for violation of the village ordinance. We understand Walter wants to settle the matter and go out of the business. That's a very sensible idea. He should quit the business and go into something where he is not running a continual risk of losing what money he has made in legitimate business transactions. He has shown himself capable of making money without running a dive, and the sooner he gets into some good business the sooner people will have some respect for him.

Appreciating the necessity of a first-class oculist in our midst, Mr. Everett Lewis, the efficient assistant in J. C. Lewis' large store, has been studying up on eyes for several years, and recently attended lectures in Columbus, Ohio, under one of the most competent and famed oculists in the world. Mr. Lewis is now thoroughly versed in all the details, and was awarded a high grade diploma for efficiency in examination. J. C. Lewis has recently purchased charts and all the modern appliances necessary for testing and fitting, and invites all who have anything the matter with their eyes to call and have them tested. The eye is something that should not be fooled with.

By January 1 1898, every railroad in this country engaged in inter-state traffic must equip its locomotives with a power driving wheel brake and appliances for operating the train brake system, so that the brakeman will not be obliged to use the common hand brake; must equip all cars with couplers, coupling automatically by impact which can be uncoupled without obliging brakemen to go between the ends of the cars; may refuse to receive from connecting lines cars that are not equipped as indicated, and must provide all cars with secure grab irons or hand holds on the ends and sides of each car for the greater security of the brakeman engaged in coupling and uncoupling cars. These are the provisions of an act of congress approved March 2d.

In regard to the two factions in what is termed the Evangelical Association of the German churches we have expressed ourselves as taking no side in the matter, and still feel the same regarding the trouble. Rev. Wagner in April brought a notice to this office in which he said in substance that by injunction the Esherties had mercifully forced his people and pastor from the church and parsonage. The other side think they were misrepresented in the matter and Rev. Geo. Schwartz desires us to state in substance that the case has been in court and that on March 31, 1893, the highest court in the state decided that his people were the rightful custodians of the church property, and that their claims are based on the court's decision. We have stated that we would not allow any further discussion of this matter and we shall not, and should not have spoken of it this time only from the fact that we inadvertently allowed one side of the matter and not the other. As we have stated before we always have room for genuine church announcements or for anything to advance christianity in our midst, but no room for anything tending to personal grievances or public dissensions in church matters.

The great changes that take place in one week's time at the "greatest show on earth," is something wonderful, and particularly noticeable to anyone who visits Jackson Park once a week. Large buildings half finished, and large heaps of dirt from excavations, and piles of lumber, stone and other building material which obstruct the sight seer, disappear as by magic and the building is finished, the ground around is neatly sodded, and walks arranged and everything in ship shape.

The STAR and HERALD scribe visited the fair last Thursday. The elevated rapid transit route was the one taken in the city this time. This is a quick way to go and takes you into the grounds. The objective point first visited this time was machinery hall, which is situated at the south end, the main entrance being opposite the administration building. If one can imagine all the old and modern machinery of every description ever made, from the most powerful of electric engines to the type setting machine or the silk looms weaving elegant silk souvenirs in the shape of silk handkerchiefs, ties, etc., with the principal building neatly woven in different colors in the center, he can have some idea of this great structure. This last display attracts a great deal of attention. The souvenir handkerchiefs are sold very reasonably and "made while you wait," if you wait long enough.

The type-setting machines also attract a crowd. They are run by two ladies and one man. The type is set, or the machine operated by a lady by touching keys similar to a type-writer, another one justifies the type into newspaper measure, and the man, of course, bosses the job. It struck us that he had his hands full bossing the machine and two young ladies at the same time. The type set is made up into forms and newspapers printed there every day on modern printing presses at the rate of thirty or forty thousand an hour.

The large engine and the complicated machine which Grover touched are both to be seen in machinery hall. It's no trouble to see the engine. It's a monster. The boiler display is very large, and the whole would interest a machinist or anyone particularly interested in machinery for day and days. The display is from all over the world.

The agricultural building is next east, and fronts facing the lagoon. It is an immense structure, and the principal agricultural products of every country on the globe are displayed there, also agricultural machinery, and America takes the lead in everything. The booths are handsomely arranged. In here it is that the Japanese can be seen at work. The men we saw at work were dressed like women; wore long loose wrappers, and had their hair done up in a wad behind. Their display attracts lots of attention, as also does the Chinese, Japanese, and all foreign countries, not because they are finer than American displays, but because they are strange to the eyes of Americans. At the time we were in this building the German booths were dedicated and opened to the public. A celebrated German band was furnishing elegant music, and speeches were being made in German. We presume they were very fine but we "nix vistah" or in other words we were strictly not in it. It would be no trouble to put in a week in this building to advantage, although there are lots of displays that are not finished, and will not be for a month or more.

We took a peek into the Krupp building back of the agricultural, where are displayed the largest cannon in the world. This display is brought all the way from Germany, and alone is the sight of a life time. The display is not ready for visitors.

The Indian school right near the Krupp building is a novelty. The young Indian boys and girls from Alberquerque, N.M., are taught all kinds of trades that will be useful to them, and help them in assisting their less fortunate brothers and sisters that civilization is a good thing to tie to. The boys are dressed in cadet uniforms and the girls all dressed alike, and they all looked neat and seem contented. Some of the boys were working in a harness shop, others in a shoe shop and tailor shop, etc., and the girls were running sewing machines, making aprons, dresses, fancy articles, etc.

An hour spent in the Transportation building, which is situated northwest of administration building, presents some wonderful scenes. There is everything displayed here used in the transportation line on land or water from creation down to the present time. The railroad transportation display seemed to attract the most attention. Here are displayed the largest and smallest engines, old and modern, odd shapes, also all descriptions of cars. Probably the finest display in the railway line is the handsome English train and the American Pullman train standing side by side. They are certainly handsome, and are open to the public, and there is a constant stream passing through the cars and inspecting the monster engines all the time. The models of all kinds of novelties for transportation on waters are also very interesting.

A half hour in Horticultural hall presents a beautiful sight including monuments of flowers and shrubs. This display is evidently greatly appreciated by the ladies as the hall was filled with them, all talking at once and saying how "nice sweet and beautiful." The crystal cave in this building, erected by South Dakotaites, attracts thousands. It's a beautiful sight.

A quick trip through Midway Pleasance (if you want to be up in G. call it as spelled here: Midway Play-zone, with the emphasis on the last syllable.) ended the scribes' world's fair trip for the day. Here most every country is represented and most of the money schemes are located. The Irish villages German villages, street in Cairo, Old Vienna and a hundred or more others, which the visitor has to pay to enter. Hotels, restaurants and eating houses in every known language flourish here. You can eat in German, French or anything according to taste and purse.

The fair is getting better and better and more attractive every day. Next week we will try and give our readers a description of the big building—Liberal Arts and Manufacturers'.

Kansas Excursion.
The great Kansas land excursion under the management of C. Y. Trice, land advocate, left Thursday for the west, having about forty, good, solid men on board. This excursion is not run for anybody's amusement but for business. This will be followed by others every month all summer under the direction of C. Y. Trice and his assistants. There will be no more free excursions, but the price will be very low to good, substantial citizens, who wish to settle or invest in the west.

Mr. Trice and his assistants will return in a few days. Any information desired can be obtained from him at the Pennsylvania House or of his assistants.

Coming Attractions.
The laughable comedy, "Freezing a Mother-in-Law," and a fine specialty program by home talent, will be given at the opera house to-morrow evening, June 3. The admission to any part of the house is only 25 cents. The play is given for the benefit of the Womans' Auxiliary.

Commencement Exercises Dwight High School next Tuesday evening in Opera House. Essays will be given by five graduates and a splendid musical program has also been arranged. Everyone should attend.

It Should Be in Every House.
J. B. Wilson, 371 Clay St., Sharpsburg, Pa., says he will not be without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds that he cured his wife after an attack of "La Grippe," when various other remedies and several physicians had done her no good. Robert Barber, of Crookston, Pa., claims Dr. King's New Discovery has done him more good than anything he ever used for Lung trouble. Nothing like it. Try it. Free trial bottles at Dr. Barr, Dwight, and W. H. H. Augustine's, Braville, Drug Store. Large bottles, 50c. and $1.

Examinations.
Candidates for Teacher's Certificates will be examined in the following subjects in the order given—Friday beginning at 8:30 A. M.
