On behalf of the Women's Auxiliary Keely League the following address was made in honor of presenting to you the following address, trusting that you will accept it as a small token of our great esteem in which you are held by them.

We believe, sir, that you are God's messenger to us, in that he sent to us through you that which we believe to be the only sure cure for the diseases of alcoholism and narcotics; and next to Him who has listened to our prayers and answered them, thus we desire to return to you our hearty thanks.

We have suffered as only loving, sensitive women can suffer when helpless as we witness the threatened destruction—not only of the lives but of the immortal souls of their best loved.

- Again, sir, do I tender you our heartfelt devotion and our best wishes. Signed in behalf of the Women's Auxiliary Keely League of the State of Illinois, Misses and Mesdames: Jeanette A. of proving to you that the so-called heredity of inebriety goes no further back than the cradle. It is a canon of the world for the rescue of inebriates, that the present generation of drunkards must pass away without help—others beyond it, and their children must be schooled so as to prevent them from following in the footsteps of their fathers.

It is true also that any drug that causes a corresponding inebriety may cause other disease in the system. This is especially true of fatty organic disease of various organs, amyloid degeneration, and other degenerative types of disease.

But these conditions have nothing to do with inebriety proper. Curing them will not cure the inebriety. The meaning of inebriety is a lesion of the cells, caused by the action of the poisons on the great symmetry—a craving for the drug in question.

Inebriety caused by whiskey is a craving for whiskey. The craving is there constantly or periodically, whether the liquor is drunk or not. The terms drunkenness and inebriety are frequently confused. A man who has chronic poisoning from alcohol in an inebriate because he craves liquor. Drunkenness is acute alcohol poisoning from drinking alcoholic liquor in consequence of wanting the liquor.

When an infant is born some form of alcohol is usually attending the birth. If the infant escapes a whiskey bath, or a few drops of some stimulant, it is probably through some neglect. It is rare, indeed, that a child a few days old has not had a hot whiskey several times.

The stamp of the drug remains on the brain of the infant, even if it is no longer given. The misery of babes, dragged to inebriety, and then, very likely, suddenly deprived of the accustomed stimulus, is not to be doubted as acute, and great as in older people.

The inebriety of youth, of middle life, and of old age, is the result of child inebriety. The misery of parents and children were much dragged with opiates and alcohol. In all estimates of the relation of heredity to inebriety, this factor must be considered.

This question has prominent moral and medical factors for consideration. Is it a medical necessity and is it morally right to give children the drug that ensnare, as remedies for diseases? The children in the world are suffering from the development of the science of inebriety and its treatment, that necessary remedies in diseases must be used.

My little boy was very bed off for two months with diarrhoea. We used various medicines, also called in two doctors, but nothing done him any good until we used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave immediate relief and soon cured him.
