

It's Real! Husky Infant Now.
Texas is still in its infancy; it is still wearing its swaddling clothes. It is, however, a huge infant, and large bodies move slowly. It is laying the foundation for a great future. Its voice is still an infantile one, but the time is near at hand when it will have gained strength enough to be heard throughout the length and breadth of the world of progress. It has up to this time less than one-third of the population it can accommodate without being crowded. But as money begets money, so does population beget population, and its rate of increase, like Astor's millions after he had accumulated his first million, will tend to become the "Empire State" at no very distant day.—Galveston News.

A New Idea.
The method adopted by an electric lighting company, of London, in laying their connections consists of copper strips conducted along their entire system in culverts underground. A trolley has been trained to do this work, and carries the electric wires through the culverts with the skill of an experienced workman.

DR. KILMER'S SWAMP-ROOT CURED ME.

SUFFERED EIGHT YEARS!
Couldn't Eat or Sleep.

Dr. Kilmer & Co.—"I had been troubled for eight years with stomach and heart difficulties. I lived mostly on milk, as everything I ate hurt me so. My kidneys and liver were in a terrible state. Could neither sleep or eat. I had been treated by the best Chicago doctors without any benefit. As a last resort, I tried your SWAMP-ROOT, and now I can eat anything, no matter what, and can go to bed and get a good night's sleep. SWAMP-ROOT cured me.

Any one doubting this statement can write, I will gladly answer." Mrs. German Miller, Dec. 30th, 1892. Springfield, Mo.

SWAMP-ROOT CURED ME.

Had Torpid Liver For 14 Years. Billious all the Time.

DEAR SIR:—I have been troubled with Torpid Liver for 14 years and gone through courses of bilious fever; many times it has been impossible for me to do any kind of labor. Dr. Kilmer's SWAMP-ROOT was first recommended to me by Holbrook, Blackburn & Co. (Druggists) Decatur, Ind. After taking one bottle I was uncertain whether it was deriving any benefit or not; after taking the second bottle, however, I felt that my health was improving, and I continued until I had taken 6 bottles. I now cheerfully recommend SWAMP-ROOT to every one who has torpid liver, for it has completely cured me. Jan. 30th, 1893. W. CHRISTIAN, Decatur, Ind.

SIGHTS IN A BIG TOWN

PLACES OF INTEREST TO THE CHICAGO VISITOR.

The Military Post at Fort Sheridan, the New Art Institute and the Life-Saving Station All Worthy a Visit from the Sight-Seeer.

The World's Fair City.

The World's Fair visitor who has exhausted groups of attractions such as the parks, the theaters, the principal buildings and the like, need not look for other points of interest, considered minor only as their scope is confined to some particular line of art, science, or popular utility. Among such is, notably, the Art Institute of Chicago, and many hours, even a whole day, may be pleasantly and profitably spent under the roof of this great institution, which, scarcely completed, has thrown its doors open to all who love the beautiful in its most eloquent forms. It has become a spot of wide favor with citizens and strangers alike, and its accessibility, being located on the lake front at the foot of Adams street, its rare architectural exterior, and its fine galleries combine to draw a throng and gratify the senses and enlighten the intelligence. Chicago counts a greater number of resident artists than any other metropolis in the West, according to the directory of 1892, and there are in the city numbers of very fine pictures. The Art Institute is a recent acquisition to the fraternity. The structure is the only building on the lake front as far south as the park extends, and occupies the original site of the Industrial Exposition. It is massive in appearance, and divided, as to interior, so as to carry out perfection in convenience in behalf of the students and the public. The average attendance of pupils is about four hundred. Its object is to maintain a school and museum of art, and the building will be found to contain a large and carefully selected collection of casts, sculpture, pictures, drawings, marbles, and a library of works on fine art. There is abundant material for study, good models and life-like objects in profusion, and a practical idea of the details of art in conception and execution may be gleaned from a stroll through the immense building, devoted to arts dear to the public heart. A pleasant visit begun at the Institute may be prolonged by a brief ride to the Vincennes Gallery of Fine Arts, a handsome structure, and worthy of close and extended study.

CHICAGO'S GREAT WATER TOWER

Fort Sheridan.
A most interesting point in the vicinity of Chicago is the new military post at Fort Sheridan, recently adopted and improved by the Government. To those who have only read of these names of our regular soldiers, and are curious to see how they live, and to those as well who have visited other similar posts, Fort Sheridan will appeal strongly, for in beauty of situation, grounds, and of buildings it has no equal in the United States, and is a gem in the world. The extent and splendor of this post are augmented by the natural picturesqueness of the high bluffs lining the lake, which rise from the pebbly beach and break into ravines and gorges spanned by rustic bridges. The site was chosen because of the delightful and healthful location, and just past the grounds runs the celebrated Sheridan road, the great boulevard which, with its connecting highways, is the largest and broadest in the world, and which, when completed, will be eighteen miles in length, and dotted with palatial mansions and radiant gardens.

Fort Sheridan is located within less than an hour's ride from Chicago, on the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad. It contains many buildings, many soldiers and a large landed area. It is well worth the time devoted to it. The quarters and paraphernalia of the camp, the evolutions of the soldiers being particularly interesting. The structures of the post are massive and of permanent stability. The barracks and water tower building is 1,065 feet in length, the armory mess hall 176 feet. There are five other edifices, resembling private residences, and used as quarters for the field officers, captains, lieutenants, non-commissioned officers, and administration building. The cavalry drill hall and stables are, together, over 500 feet in length, and the chapel, guard-house, and pumping station, which is to have an imposing tower in connection, are models of architectural beauty and utility.

The Life-Saving Station.

The sight-seeer on the way to Fort Sheridan or return may score a point in the way of pleasure and instruction by stopping on the train at Evanston, a suburb some ten miles north of Chicago. The model village of the section, Evanston is of itself worth being seen, with its palatial houses and magnificent university buildings, but it is also notable as being one of the principal life-saving stations along Lake Michigan. Those who wish to inspect the workings of the service nearer at home, however, may do so at the pier just beyond the Randolph street viaduct, where a similar life-saving crew is stationed. These men are a drilled, sturdy set of fellows, whose mission is fraught with peril and heroism, and the appearance of their home and environment is suggestive of many a famous nautical episode in history. The station includes buildings with a tower, from which with his fieldglass the lookout constantly scans the surface of the lake for any craft in distress. The finest lifeboats and every accessory are ready at hand—the rockets, the life-lines, baskets, beacons and the like, and in the fiercest of storms, the crew sally forth to aid and rescue distressed mariners afloat.

A visit to this station of the service involves only a brief walk, taking in a splendid view of the lake and harbor. Strangers preferring to see the one at

RUSSIAN MEDICAL CENSUS.
A Farmer, but No Jay.

Some Suggestive Figures Whose Accuracy Is Under Grave Suspicion.
There are some interesting and suggestive figures in the Russian medical census for 1890, some parts of which have just been published in England. The report deals apparently with European Russia alone, on a population of 116,652,910. Among these 18,000 died of smallpox, 23,000 of scarlet fever, 20,000 of typhus, and 40,000 of diphtheria—which latter disease is endemic in Russia. The death-rate is 37.2 per 1,000, birth-rate 46.8. There are, in the whole empire, 3,969 public hospitals, 10,865 qualified medical practitioners, 11,959 male and female field-surgeons, 7,276 professional nurses. It appears upon calculation that there is one medical practitioner to 10,000 people in European Russia, one to 21,000 in the Caucasus, one to 22,000 in Siberia, and one to 103,500 in Central Asia. The death-rate for these parts is not given, possibly because it is not known or calculable. It is evident, of course, that medical men must be much more common in the towns than in the rural districts, and that in the latter there are said to be 800 districts in which there is no doctor at all. Nevertheless the report declares the death-rate is only 37.2 per 1,000. The moral is to be drawn from this apparently is, either that the figures are inaccurate in Russia, or that the doctor is more fatal than the doctor.—New York Evening Post.

A Model Savings Bank.

The greatest savings bank in this country is the Provident Institution, of Boston. It was started in 1816, and has until this time had 22,000 subscribers, of which President, Henry Lee, "not the loss of a dollar by dishonesty." "There is a tradition," said Mr. Lee, "that the bank was founded partly at the urgent request of good Bishop, afterward, Cardinal, Cheroux, that his people, he called them, might have a place of deposit, so as not to spend or lose their little savings. A few years later, at the Bishop's suggestion, the plan of partial withholding of the bank's earnings and the declaration of surplus dividends every five years was adopted. This was to induce the same people to keep as well as deposit their savings in bank." The institution now has over 90,000 depositors and over $35,000,000 in deposits. The largest deposit which the management is allowed to accept is $100, and the rate of interest is now paid 5 per cent, but the rate is now 4 per cent. The surplus dividends every five years are no longer paid, as the law of the State now requires the setting aside of a reserve fund.—Globe-Democrat.

The Approaching Dinner Hour

Is fraught with no pleasant anticipations for the unhappy mortal plagued with dyspepsia. Appetite seldom, discomfort after and between meals, always is his portion. Heartburn and flatulence subsequent to eating, a gnawing at the pit of the stomach before it, are only a few among the woes arising from this truly most common, sick headache, nervousness, constipation and biliousness are its diabolical offspring. Each and all of them are annihilated by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which tones the gastric organs and regulates the liver and the bowels with certainty and promptness. Childs, fever, indigestion, rheumatism and neuralgia are also remedied by this medicine of rare purity and comprehensive uses. Invalids of all kinds are greatly and swiftly benefited by it.

Saved by Sunshine.

I think the superb health of my family is to a great extent due to the habit we have of almost living in sunshine. Every bright day all of the shutters are open, and the entire house gets the benefit of sunlight. It drives away dampness, mold, microbes, and bluish germs, and has us in the good humor and health. I cannot imagine good sanitary conditions and darkness. Even my cellar is as light as I can possibly make it, and whatever fruit and delicacies need to be shut away from light I put in close cupboards or covered boxes. I have sheets of canvas that can be thrown over them before they are put away, and always take pains so to arrange my stores that nothing will be injured by an abundance of light. People who live in badly lighted apartments have little color and less health. I for one do not intend to spend my days in an atmosphere of gloom.—New York Ledger.

An Appreciative Westerner.

"The more I see of this town," said a man from the far West, "the more it strikes me as being a lively place; and I have seen anything that impressed me more strongly with that idea than this town. I have seen a pair of horses attached to a pair of horses drawing a hearse at the head of a funeral procession. I have seen a variety of funerals in various parts of this country, but I was never before in a place where they drove the hearse horses so lively that they would not hold on to the reins."—New York Sun.

"German Syrup"
I simply state that I am Druggist and Postmaster here and am therefore in a position to judge. I have tried many Cough Syrups but for ten years past have found nothing equal to Boschee's German Syrup. I have given it to my baby for Croup with the most satisfactory results.
