Silver Men in Conviction - Chinamen Burned Out by Colorado Miners - Burglars Hustly at Work in Chicago - Gold Coming Our Way.

Told In a Few Words.

John Cadamy, the great Chicago packer and famous speculator, failed Tuesday night to get his dinner. He had been hard pressed for several days, but his resources were so immense that it was thought he might pull through. It was feared that before the end of the session a greater sensation was in store, and the fear proved well grounded.

UNLUCKY THIRTEEN.

A Supperist Said to Extend Back to King Arthur's Time.

The superstition of thirteen at table being unlucky, it is said, extends way back to the time of King Arthur.

When the great British King founded the famous round table, he requested Merlin to select thirteen knights to sit at the table.

Merlin arranged one set of seats to represent the apostles; twelve were for the faithful adherents of Jesus Christ, and the thirteenth for the traitor Judas.

The first were never occupied by their knights distinguished for their achievements, and then a death occurred among them the seat remained vacant until a knight surpassing him in heroic and warlike attainments should be considered worthy to fill the place.

The thirteenth seat was never occupied but once. The story goes that a haughty and insolent Saracen knight sat upon it and was immediately swallowed up by the earth.

Ever after it was known as the "perilous seat," and, brave as the celebrated knights of the round table are said to have been, not one ever had the courage to sit on the thirteenth chair, and the superstition against it still survives.
