The English Way.

If we had better laws regarding adulterations of foods and more stringent regulations about selling imitations the whole country would be the gainer. They do things better in England, as shown by the following from the London Grocers' Review, June 27:

"At Liverpool Police Court, on Wednesday, William McCulloch, a Regent street, was summoned for not having a lump of margarine properly labeled as required. There was a label on the stand, but this was covered over and obscured by a piece of bacon. Defendant pleaded that the covering over was unintentional, and that there was no attempt at deception. A fine of 20s and costs was imposed."

in your whole system, perhaps, is the liver. If that doesn't do its work of purifying the blood, more troubles come from it than you can remember.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery acts upon this weak spot as nothing else can. It rouses it up to healthy, natural action. By thoroughly purifying the blood, it reaches, builds up, and invigorates every part of the system.

For all diseases that depend on the liver or the blood—Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness; every form of Scrofula, even Consumption (or Lung-scrofula) in its earlier stages; and the most stubborn Skin and Scalp Diseases, the "Discovery" is the only remedy so unfailing and effective that it can be guaranteed.

If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

On these terms, it's an insult to your intelligence to have something else offered as "just as good."

BERING SEA DECISION

UNITED STATES CLAIMS ARE NOT ALLOWED.

No Right to the Protection of, or Property in, the Seals Frequenting the Islands of the United States When Found Outside the Ordinary Three-Mile Limit.

Victory for Britons.

Baron De Courcel, President of the Behring Sea arbitration tribunal, has announced in Paris the decision of the arbitrators on the issues presented to it. Except for a provision that the seals shall be protected from indiscriminate slaughter, the decision is entirely against the United States. Not a property right in the seal fisheries prior to the purchase of Alaska by the United States. That any such claims were recognized and conceded by Great Britain and that the United States have any property rights in the seal fisheries other than those belonging to all other nations. Uncle Sam is beaten at every point touching its sovereignty over the Behring sea, and the crum of consolation in the matter of protection of the seals is not sweetened by the accompanying declaration that this power of protection does not lie in the United States but in the ruling of the tribunal.

American Claims Rejected.

In a general way the tribunal rejects the claim of the United States that the Behring Sea is a mare clausum and denies to the United States exclusive property rights in the seal fisheries. On the other hand, the arbitrators sustain positively the contention of the United States that pelagic sealing should be stopped and that the seal herds should be protected from extermination by poachers. To effect this end the tribunal rules that there shall be maintained a closed season, beginning May 1 and ending July 21, during which no seals may be killed. This prohibition applies not only to Behring sea, but to the north Pacific ocean. To save the seals from slaughter at their breeding places in the Pribylov Islands a protective zone extending sixty miles around the islands is established, and sealing outside this zone is to be permitted only after Aug. 1. Further protection from indiscriminate slaughter is provided in the prohibition by the terms of the decision of the use of fire-arms by sealtakers.

Uncle Sam's Contentions.

The contentions of the United States as to its exclusive jurisdiction in Behring Sea, acquired from Russia by the purchase of Alaska and its property rights in the seal fisheries, are contained in the following five points of article 6 of the treaty creating the tribunal of arbitration:

1. What exclusive jurisdiction in the sea now known as Behring Sea and what exclusive rights in the seal fisheries therein, did Russia assert and exercise prior and up to the time of the cession of Alaska to the United States?

2. How far were these claims of jurisdiction as to the seal fisheries recognized and conceded by Great Britain?

3. Was the body of water now known as the Behring sea included in the phrase "Pacific ocean," as used in the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia; and what rights, if any, in the Behring sea were held and exclusively exercised by Russia after said treaty?

4. Did not all the rights of Russia as to jurisdiction and as to the seal fisheries in Behring sea, east of the water boundary, in the treaty between the United States and Russia of the 30th of March, 1867, pass unimpaired to the United States under that treaty?

5. Has the United States any rights, and, if so, what right, of protection of property in the fur seals frequenting the islands of the United States in Behring Sea when such seal are found outside the ordinary three-mile limits?

The decision as rendered is practically a knock out for the United States and a victory for England.

A TRAGEDY AVERTED.

A Sparrow Saved by the Motorman—A Bull Dog Blocks the Track.

A little incident occurred on my trip to the office this morning which shows the motorman to be a human-hearted fellow after all. The car was whizzing along at a rapid transit to the tune of that nerve-racking gong, when suddenly the motorman swung the brake handle and threw off the switch, and the car stopped so suddenly as to shake up the passengers.

"A man on the track?" asked one old lady breathlessly.

There was momentary excitement among the passengers, for everybody supposed another victim had been added to the electric's list. Meanwhile the motorman was leaning far over the dasher blowing his cheeks out in a vain endeavor to attract the attention of a pert sparrow that was sitting on the rail.

"Git out o' there," shouted the motorman, but the sparrow never moved.

Then the gong was clanged, but even its painful noise failed to awaken the bird. The motorman and the passengers were overcome by the ridiculousness of the situation and when the former tried to whistle again his tongue and his teeth clung to each other and the attempt was a failure.

Then the solemn-visaged conductor started after the feathered obstruction with a stick, but before he could reach it the sparrow whisked its tail and with a haughty shake of its head flew away and the car moved on.

A friend tells me a similar story of how a savage bulldog once delayed a Dorchester car ten minutes. The dog was dining off a bone which he had carried between the tracks of the southbound car. When the car approached the motorman sought to frighten him by clanging the bell, but the attempt was useless.

The dog held his ground, and after various methods to rout his dogship had failed the passengers settled down to await the end of his meal. No one dared to approach the brute, for he showed a row of fierce teeth. Finally, as if suddenly aware of his unpopularity, he slowly moved away, taking the bone with him, but not until the car had been delayed fully ten minutes.—Boston Traveller.

The Violent Commotion

In the stomach and bowels produced by a violent purgative and its consequent drenching action, never are, because it is impossible they should be, followed by permanent good effects. No specific which weakens and convulses the organs for whose relief it is used can do good. Blue pills, calomel, podyphyllin, salts and senna, vegetable or mineral purgative pills, are drastic remedies generally void of benefit. A reliable and effective substitute for them is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which effects a change both natural and thorough in the bowels when they are constipated. A sufficient and regular secretion of bile by the liver and sound digestion are also promoted by its use. Malaria in all its forms, rheumatism and kidney trouble are obviated by this fine reformer of disordered conditions of the system. A wineglassful three times a day is about the dose.

Postal Money Orders.

A postal money order is only payable to the person to whom it is sent, or to some one to whom he has transferred it by written order on the back of the note. The postal authorities will never pay money on an order to any one who cannot identify himself as the person he claims to be. These orders are not generally negotiated; that is, they cannot pass from hand to hand, as only one transfer is permitted. The postoffice will, however, cash all orders sent to them through banks without question, leaving to the bank officials the responsibility of ascertaining the identity of holders of the orders. Persons, therefore, who receive large amounts in money orders, cash them through the banks. That is, they deposit them as money, and the bank collects them from the postoffice.

Bottles in China.

It is stated that the Chinese much appreciate European bottles. They have a great liking for them, and will resort to subterfuge, if necessary, to get hold of them. The common people worry the medical missionaries considerably upon this point, shamming sick in order to be supplied with a bottle of medicine. The authority for this report does not furnish any information as to what our celestial friends do with the bottles.

The Shopkeepers of Fez.

The sun was sinking, and one by one the sleeping shopkeepers seemed to awaken to the fact that another day of toil was gone. For a moment they hustled about, covering their wares with cloths, and then proceeded to shut up shop. They took hold of a rope suspended from the roof and gently let themselves down, feeling cautiously for a foothold. The average distance from the floor of a booth in the bazars to the ground is about two feet; but they are very brittle, these merchants of Fez, and they let themselves down very gently, as though fearful that the slightest jar or jolt would break their bones. Some of the merchants even keep in their little six-by-four booths a private stepladder, by means of which they effect their exits and their entrances. When the booth is securely closed and carefully locked, the merchant usually scribbles over the door with red chalk very mysterious and cabalistic characters, which do not mean "Will be back in an hour," or "Slipped out across the street for five minutes," but are rather in the nature of threats to evil-doers and jinn of what misfortunes will overtake them should they dare to break open the doors during his absence.

And now our shopkeeper shook himself thoroughly, as though his limbs were still benumbed with sleep; he arranged his haik jauntily about his shoulders, and then cheerfully trotted off up the narrow street. Sometimes I have seen them, in the glad anticipation of a filling dinner, purse up their lips, as though they too felt the absolute necessity of whistling like all other well-conducted shopkeepers the world over when they turn the key on their shops for the day; but it is not advisable to whistle in Fez. The practice has fallen into disrepute owing to the general belief among the Moors that people who whistle are calling up sprites and evil spirits from the invisible world; and so it happens that people who whistle are very apt to have curved knives stuck into them as they walk in the darkness of the narrow streets.—Century.

The Age of Contrasts.

How fashion does change everything, to be sure! Architecture, music, business, decoration, dress! And human nature runs in grooves. Not only has decided change taken place in everything, but very much the same kind of changes. Where once all was in harmonious shades and toning one into the another, we now have violent contrasts. The man who would once have painted his house in delicate shades of stone or brown now makes it green or yellow, picked out with a vivid red of some kind. In music, close harmonies no longer carry the motif, but are constantly on the equivive to discover what will be the next daring contrast the courageous composer will take for his theme. And in nothing is this more clearly shown to be the age of contrasts than in the question of dress. Not only are colors combined to the verge of bad taste, but such incongruous elements as gauze and velvet are made to serve the end of furnishing most bewitching, if decidedly unique, costumes.

Some day, we will perhaps tire of all this, and go back again to our smooth, even methods of expression, but it is to be supposed that we will soon weary of them, for once accustomed to variety, the human mind quickly grows dull under monotony, no matter in what shape it appears.

To Cleanse the System

Effectually, yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity without irritating or weakening them, to dispel headaches, colds or fevers use Syrup of Figs.

Fecundity of Fish.

Piscatorial authorities of the highest standing tell us that were it not for nature's grand, "evening up" provisions, the fishes of the seas would multiply so rapidly that within three short years they would fill the water to such an extent that there would be no room for them to swim. This will hardly be disputed when it is known that a single female cod will lay 45,000,000 eggs in a single season.

WHERE pleasure is eagerly pursued, the greatest virtues will lose their power. —Cicero.

Consented.

The author of "Sunny Manitoba" says that the typical Canadian is characterized by a most unusual contentedness with his lot. An old man who was living with his wife in the poorest shanty on the prairie, constructed of one-inch boards, unplastered within, and whose homestead was mortgaged, heard that by the death of a relative in England he had inherited a large fortune.

The information came to him in the form of a newspaper cutting, sent by some friend. Two or three months later an acquaintance offered him congratulations.

"I suppose it's all right," said the Canadian, "but I don't know."

"Have you no legal adviser?"

"No," was the reply. "If they bring the money to us, we shall be glad of it; but they must bring it. I sha'n't bother."

The Marquis of Lorne has amusingly related how he tried in vain to discover grumblers in the great Northwest. One settler who was asked whether he had anything to complain of remained for some moments meditatively silent. Presently his face brightened, and he exclaimed:

"Yes, it is cold in winter and hot in summer, and the dust makes me wash myself twice a week."

To a similar question a Scotch woman answered:

"Well, no; that is—I have not the English—but I wad say that the milk is too rich for the children."

Too many baths and too rich milk! These are ills which may surely be borne with fortitude.

Falcons in Japan.

In the olden times in Japan all the daimios (similar to the old English lord) had great sport with falcons, as they went out to the field to catch other birds with falcons. The falcons were tamed well and used to catch large birds, mostly cranes. When people go out hunting with falcons, the men in charge hold the falcons upon their fingers. As soon as one sees any bird he lets the falcon rush at the bird; as soon as the falcon reaches the bird he bites at the throat and throws the bird down to the ground. Meanwhile the holder runs to the place where they are and catches both of them.

Falcons are not large birds, but as they belong to the eagle family they are strong and brave and never afraid to go at any bird to kill it, but the men in charge of falcons of course take great care in feeding and taming them. —Chicago News Record.

CURED THREE YEARS AGO—USED LESS THAN A BOX OF NO-TO-BAC.

MT. CARMEL, ILL., Oct. 10, 1892.—Gentlemen: I purchased one box of your No-To-Bac three years ago. Took about three-quarters of the box, which completely destroyed my appetite for tobacco. I had used tobacco since 9 years of age. I had tried to quit of my own accord and found it impossible, but now I am completely cured and do not have the least craving for tobacco. I hope others will use your treatment.

USED EVERY SUBSTITUTE AND ANTIDOTE, BUT WITHOUT SUCCESS—NO-TO-BAC MAKES A COMPLETE CURE, AND HE GAINS TWENTY-FIVE POUNDS.

KUTTAWA, KY., Nov. 22, 1892.—Gentlemen: I used tobacco for fifteen years, and, with all the will power I possessed, I could not quit. I used every substitute and antidote I could find, but without success. I had despaired of ever getting rid of the damaging tobacco habit, and seeing your advertisement was persuaded by friends to try once more. I sent for one box, and began the use of it at once and experienced benefit. I ordered two more boxes, and, I am happy to say, was cured of the awful habit. It has been nearly a year since I was cured, and I have no desire whatever for the weed. I have gained steadily in flesh. My weight when I began treatment was 135 pounds, and now weigh 160 pounds, and I feel much better in every way, and get up in the morning without a bad taste in my mouth. My digestion also is much improved. To any one wanting to rid themselves of the tobacco habit permanently, use No-To-Bac, for it is a successful and wonderful remedy.
