Made Miserable for Life.

This you may easily be if you fail to remedy the indigestion and non-assimilation of the food, which are the attendants and originators of nervousness, that ever present ailment which no narcotic, mineral sedative or nervine can ever do more than temporarily relieve. Of course these remedies have no effect upon the organs of digestion and assimilation, except to disorder and enfeeble them, thus aggravating the original difficulty. Among the most alarming and dangerous symptoms of chronic nervousness is insomnia, which is the professional term for inability to sleep. Where this exists there is always a tendency to mental overthrow, paresis and eventual insanity. Begin at the fountain head of all this difficulty with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and avert such consequences. No sooner does the stomach resume its tone, and the system gain in vigor through the aid of this benign tonic, than sleep returns and the nerves grow tranquil. Chills and fever, rheumatism, biliousness and constipation yield to the Bitters.

Timber 4,000 Years Old.

Probably the oldest timber in the world that has been subjected to the use of man is found in the ancient temple of Egypt. It is in connection with stonework, which is known to be over 4,000 years old. These timbers were used in the form of ties designed to hold the stonework together, and were the only pieces of wood used in the building. When two blocks of stone were laid in place an excavation about an inch deep was made in each block, into which one of these wooden ties, shaped like an hour-glass, was fitted. They are made of tamarisk or shittim wood, the same as that from which the ark was constructed.

CONSUMPTION.

WAS A RIDE TO DEATH

FIFTEEN PERSONS KILLED ON THE BOSTON & ALBANY R. R.

Chester, Mass., the Scene of a Frightful Accident—Thirty Persons Injured, Some Fatally—Western Express, East Bound Crashes Through a Bridge.

Many Are Mangled.

The Chicago limited express train for Boston broke through a frail iron bridge on the Boston and Albany Railroad one and one-half miles east of Chester, Mass., and four Wagner cars were crushed, killing at least fifteen persons, fatally injuring several others, while at least a score are badly hurt. The wreck is the worst ever known on the road. The bridge was being strengthened for the big locomotives, and the workmen who were putting on the plates were at dinner when the crash came. The locomotive passed over the structure, but was smashed, the water-tank being thrown a long distance. The buffet, two sleepers and a dining car were smashed to kindling when they struck the stream twenty feet below, but two day coaches and a smoker in the rear did not leave the track.

There are a few houses in the vicinity and a man driving by gave the alarm through the village street. In a few minutes hundreds were on the scene. The shrieks of the imprisoned were terrible, and scores of people looked on completely unnerved. The village people soon recovered from the shock and were hard at work. The hospital was a group of apple trees in an adjoining orchard, where scores were taken. Ox teams arrived with loads of straw, cushions, bedding, and food. The wounded were soon removed to houses and all that remained on the apple-strewn grounds were thirteen bodies covered with red blankets from an adjoining stable. The dead were many of them horribly mutilated—heads crushed in, limbs torn, and ten were only recognizable by the clothing worn.

The train was seven minutes late at Chester and the railroad hands say it was going at the rate of twenty miles an hour when it struck the first of the two spans across the Westfield River. The locomotive seemed to leap across the bridge as the trusses collapsed and fell over to the south. It was fifteen that blow of the locomotive as it struck the bridge from the curve sent it off its foundations into the river. The railroad officials say that they find no marks on the bridge, such as would be made by a derailed train.

ONE THOUSAND DEAD.

The List of Storm Victims in the South Is Still Growing.

Three hundred and ninety dead bodies have been found on the islands about Beaufort and Port Royal, and the total number of dead will reach 1,000. Over $2,000,000 worth of property has been wrecked near the same points. Both are the direct result of the storm which swept along the Atlantic coast. Every one of the fifteen or twenty islands lying around Port Royal and Beaufort is steeped in sorrow. On every door knob there is a bunch of crape and upon every hillside there are fresh-made graves, some already filled, while others are awaiting the bodies that will be deposited in them just as soon as some one can be found to do the Christian act of shoveling the dirt upon the coffin.

The beeches, the undergrowth, trees and shrubbery, the marshes, and the inlets are turning up new dead bodies every time an investigation is made. Of the many disasters and disagreeables which have visited that section of the country none have been half as horrible. As the waters recede and the people move deeper into the wreckage gathered by the storm, the ghastly pictures are uncovered. So frequent are the discoveries that the finding of a single body attracts no attention at all. It takes the discovery of a clump of at least half a dozen or more to induce the people to show any feeling whatever.

The horrors of the devastation can scarcely be imagined, and nothing can be extravagantly said of the wreck and ruins. That part of South Carolina is known as the black district and is almost entirely inhabited by negroes. Of those drowned not more than twenty-five were whites and only five were women.

SHERMAN ON SILVER.

The Ohio Senator Speaks on the Repeal Measure.

After the routine morning business in the Senate, Thursday, the bill for the repeal of the Sherman act was taken up and Mr. Sherman, of Ohio, proceeded to address the Senate. He said that if the repeal of the purchasing clauses of the act of July, 1890, were the only reason for the extraordinary session, it would seem to him insufficient. It was, however, justified by the existing financial stringency. On one thing, he said, Congress and the people agreed, and that was that both gold and silver should be continued in use as money. Monometallism pure and simple had never gained a foothold in the United States. If Senators wanted cheap money and an advance in price, free coinage of silver, he said, was the way to do it; but they should not call it bimetallism. Mr. Sherman then proceeded to discuss the history of the act that bears his name. He was not in favor of the free coinage of silver, and regarded it as but another name for the monometallism of silver, and was only in favor of the purchase of silver for purposes of coining.

Our Tommy.

The South has always been noted for hospitality, and nowhere has this quality been more religiously maintained than in Virginia. Unfortunately the war made sad havoc with the Virginian's resources, but his old-time open-heartedness has never altered.

Some years ago a friend of mine traveling in the lower portion of that State stopped for a few hours with old acquaintances and remained for tea. An occasion of this kind calls invariably for the favorite dish of the South—fried chicken.

Alas! there was but one chicken on the place, and that one was a pet. It had been left an orphan by its mother at a very early age, and, like Pip in Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations," had been brought up by hand. The children called it Tommy, and were very fond of it, while Tommy, in turn, was attached to the children.

The matter was a very serious one, and the family consultation was held. Virginia hospitality could not be slightly disregarded, and it was decided that poor Tommy must become the sacrifice.

My friend, of course, knew nothing of the tragedy that was being enacted for his comfort, and when tea was served regarded the plate of nicely browned chicken with contemplative joy.

Soon, however, he became aware that something was amiss. An air of silent sorrow pervaded the little family group usually so gay, and the children took nothing on their plates. The chicken was passed, but with the exception of my friend no one partook. Selecting a juicy-looking drum-stick he fixed it with his fork, and cutting off a choice bit conveyed it to his mouth.

At this there was a sudden and heart-breaking howl from one of the little boys, "Oh, mamma, mamma, he's eating up our Tommy."

Thereupon the other children mingled their voices in a loud wailing, and the elder members burst into uncontrollable laughter, in which, as the truth dawned upon him, my friend joined.

Then there came more explanations, more laughter and tears, and adjustments all around.

Poor Tommy could not be restored to life, but he was buried under a big apple-tree with appropriate ceremonies. —Harper's Young People.

A Queer Incident.

A diminutive electric fan in the office of the department of public works at Pittsburg was located on a window sill, where its noise disturbed the clerks, and they placed it on a metal heater. A reporter says that the instant the current was turned on the electricity performed a clog dance, and waltzed the fan all over the heater, and at a speed that would make a Homewood flyer stand aghast. All the time the blue fluid flashed out in two-foot lengths, and the burring and whirring of the swift revolving wheel nearly caused a stampede in the office. But relief came at last, when the machine with a mighty effort, as if to get away from the heater, danced off to the side of it, and fell with a bump to the floor, bringing the circus to a close.—Electricity.

Don't Blame the Cook

If a baking powder is not uniform in strength, so that the same quantity will always do the same work, no one can know how to use it, and uniformly good, light food cannot be produced with it. All baking powders except Royal, because improperly compounded and made from inferior materials, lose their strength quickly when the can is opened for use. At subsequent bakings there will be noticed a falling off in strength. The food is heavy, and the flour, eggs and butter wasted.

It is always the case that the consumer suffers in pocket, if not in health, by accepting any substitute for the Royal Baking Powder. The Royal is the embodiment of all the excellence that it is possible to attain in an absolutely pure powder. It is always strictly reliable. It is not only more economical because of its greater strength, but will retain its full leavening power, which no other powder will, until used, and make more wholesome food.

Girls Who Work.

In these days many of our girls work for their living and feel no shame in doing so, either. It is more honorable to be self-sustaining than a drone. Labor is dignified, employment is healthful, and though one, perhaps, would rather not be compelled to fight the world in hand-to-hand combat, yet if you have to do it, do so with all your might.

Half-hearted measures never bring success. The secret key that opens the door of fortune is one made of the combined metals, ambition and effort. You can forge it for yourself, and, once in your possession, round after round of the ladder will be left behind until you at last reach the top; but you can't do it by watching the clock, and as soon as the hands point to 5 or 6, shutting up your desk or hurrying the covers on the goods and leaving, even though many matters are calling for immediate attention.

As soon as you begin to count the minutes before you can get away, just so soon you will discover that others are winning the golden opinions you are too listless to strive for. Make your employer's interests your own. Work heart and soul for the benefit of the enterprise of which he is the head, and you will not have to worry about your reward. The world is full of drones, but active, pushing, energetic people are scarce and will soon be discovered. Cavil not at tasks that perhaps seem out of your regular line of duty. Accept them all, large and small, in the spirit of helpful earnestness that will leave its mark in the work you accomplish and will gain its reward in the recognition that it will certainly receive.

But He Was Only a Savage, You See.

Over by the Anthropological Building there is a highly educated Indian who speaks in a very quiet way about the "uncivilized whites." The other day while he was making his toilet the curtain to his tent was lifted, and two women, wearing badges—and from Boston—stood there and watched him go on with his dressing. He finally turned around and said to the one holding the curtain:

"Madam, how would you like to have me walk into your private dressing room and watch you make your toilet?"

She looked astonished at his pure English, blushed, and walked away.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Variation of the Compass.

A writer in an English magazine offers a somewhat peculiar theory in accounting for the deflections of the magnetic needle. According to this, the outer shell of the earth and the great mass within rotate somewhat independently of each other. The interior portion, still in a liquid condition, he conceives as continuing to revolve about the axis which our planet had in its infancy; that is, one perpendicular to the plane of the elliptic. Somehow, in the great convulsion in which the moon was thrown off from the earth the crust of our globe was, he thinks, projected over to one side about twenty-three degrees, and this part of our sphere, therefore, revolves about what is termed the "geographical pole." The inner mass, like the other planets and the sun, is to be regarded as electro-dynamic, while the shell is electro-magnetic. Furthermore, two causes are supposed to render those portions of the earth's exterior underlying the oceans more highly magnetic than others; the permanent low temperature at the bottom of the ocean, and the greater amount of iron here included, the crust being thicker under the seas than elsewhere.

Curing Squirrel Skins.

To cure squirrel skins, or other small skins with fur on, so that the fur will not fall out: After having cut off the useless parts, soak the skin, remove the fatty matter, and soak in warm water for an hour. Mix to a thin paste a half-ounce each of borax, saltpeter, and sulphate of soda. Apply this to the skin, and let the latter stand for twenty-four hours. Wash clean; then apply a mixture of one ounce sal soda, one-half ounce borax, two ounces hard white soap melted together without being allowed to boil. Put away again for twenty-four hours in a warm place. After this dissolve four ounces alum, eight ounces salt, and two ounces saltratus in sufficient hot saltwater to saturate the skin: then wring out and hang it up to dry. When dry repeat the soaking and drying two or three times, until the skin is sufficiently soft. Lastly, smooth the inside with fine sandpaper and pumice store.

CURED THREE YEARS AGO—USED LESS THAN A BOX OF NO-TO-BAC.

MR. CARMEL, ILL., Oct. 10, 1892.—Gentlemen: I purchased one box of your No-To-Bac three years ago. Took about three-quarters of the box, which completely destroyed my appetite for tobacco. I had used tobacco since 9 years of age. I had tried to quit of my own accord and found it impossible, but now I am completely cured and do not have the least craving for tobacco. I hope others will use your treatment.

ROLLO G. BLOOD.

USED EVERY SUBSTITUTE AND ANTIDOTE, BUT WITHOUT SUCCESS—NO-TO-BAC MAKES A COMPLETE CURE, AND HE GAINS TWENTY-FIVE POUNDS.

KUTTAWA, KY., Nov. 22, 1892.—Gentlemen: I used tobacco for fifteen years, and, with all the will power I possessed, I could not quit. I used every substitute and antidote I could find, but without success. I had despaired of ever getting rid of the damaging tobacco habit, and seeing your advertisement was persuaded by friends to try once more. I sent for one box, and began the use of it. At once and experienced benefit. I ordered two more boxes, and, I am happy to say, was cured of the awful habit. It has been nearly a year since I was cured, and I have no desire whatever for the weed. I gained in weight in that time 25 pounds. My weight when I began the treatment was 135 pounds, and I now weigh 160 pounds. I feel much better in every way. I like the morning with-out a bad taste in my mouth. My digestion also is much improved. To any one wanting to rid themselves of the tobacco habit permanently, use No-To-Bac, for it is a successful and wonderful remedy.

Yours truly and gratefully, W. E. PEAY.
