Tadpoles that Stand on Their Heads

The tadpole is not, perhaps, a creature which commands universal admiration; but there is a healthy brood of tadpoles now at the Zoo, which are, for many reasons, deserving of notice. To begin with, they have not the black and forbidding aspect of the tadpole which is one of the common objects of a country walk in March. These tadpoles are largely colored, and have an engaging way of balancing themselves on their heads, instead of wriggling up to each other like our familiar acquaintances. Their chief merit, however, is the fact that they are the offspring of their parents. They come from eggs deposited by an African frog, which has the rather doubtful distinction of being more like a newt than any other frog; this frog, known technically as Xenopus levis, has never before condescended to breed at the Zoo, or in captivity, so its young were very imperfectly known.

As the frog itself is one of those links in creation which are fortunately not missing, a good deal of interest attaches to the tadpole, which might be fairly expected to go one better than its parents. It does, as a matter of fact, realize these expectations, for it has a pair of long feelers on its chin, which are exactly like the barbels of fishes. The frog has resemblances to animals lower in the scale, and the tadpole has affinities to animals a stage lower again.—London Daily News.

A Widely Prevalent Malady.

While it is perfectly true that swamp vapors, morning and evening mists along the banks of slow, winding, turbid streams and the effluvium exhaled by the sun from moist and decaying vegetables beget malaria, it frequently breaks out where no such conditions exist. It is, in fact, a malady widely prevalent, of which it is in many cases impossible to discover the origin. But though its causes are often obscure, the testimony, professional and public, of the inhabitants of America and other lands leaves no reasonable doubt not only that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters uproots this tenacious disease when fully developed, but fortifies the system against its first attacks. Chills and fever, bilious intermittent, dumb ague, and acne all yield to it alike. Liver trouble, always present in malarial disorder, dyspepsia, constipation, and kidney complaint succumb to the Bitters.

Couldn't Fool the Boy.

Dr. Hanford, of New York State, was much annoyed by a small boy peddling peanuts, who called frequently at his office. One morning the Doctor saw the boy coming with his basket of peanuts, evidently cheering in his direction. Above his office desk was a case containing a skeleton, which for convenience was so arranged that by a slight pressure the man of bones came out into the room as natural as life. As the boy opened the door and yelled "Peanuts," the Doctor, without looking around, pushed the button, and the grinning skeleton promptly responded. With one scream, the boy dropped his basket and fled. The kind-hearted doctor picked up the basket and hastened after the fleeing boy, who was half a block away. "Here, boy, come and get your peanuts," cried the Doctor. With one scared look over his shoulder the frightened boy replied: "Not much; I know you if you have got your clothes on."—California Review.

"Piso's Cure the Best Ever Known."

I think "Piso's Cure for Consumption" is the best medicine for bronchitis ever known.

W. D. SOLOMON,
New Brunswick, N. J., July 17, 1893.

You may put my testimonial in your Almanac and say that I think "Piso's Cure for Consumption" is the best medicine on this earth for bronchitis and lung trouble. I am now in the drug business, and I will tell my customers if they want a cough cure to use "Piso's." I will recommend it to other people if they send to me for advice, and will tell them what it has done for me. WILLIAM D. SOLOMON,
New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 26, 1893.

Yes, She Had a Beau.

"Is there any one waiting on you?" asked a polite floor-walker of a timid maiden from Port Chester in a Harlem dry-goods emporium recently.

"Yes, sir," replied the awkward damsel, pointing to the door and indicating a still more bashful youth. "That's him. He's keeping company with me, but he's afraid to come in."—New York Herald.

HEAD AND SHOULDERS

above every other blood-purifier, stands Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. See the evidences of it. It's sold in every case, on trial. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

In restoring your strength, when you're "run-down" and "used-up," in cleansing your blood from every impurity, whether it's a simple eruption or the worst scrofula; and in building up wholesome flesh, when you're thin and weak—there's nothing to equal the "Discovery." In every disease caused by a torpid liver or impure blood, it's the only guaranteed remedy.

Mrs. ELIZABETH J. BUSHWAY, of Sidney, Ohio, writes: "My little boy was so afflicted with liver trouble and other diseases that our family physician said he could not live. In fact, they all thought so. I gave him Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pellets and they saved his life. We have used the 'Discovery' for throat and bronchial trouble, and found such perfect relief that we can recommend it very highly."

Remains of Chicago's Murdered Mayor at Rest.

PARADE OF THE DEAD.

A MOST IMPOSING FUNERAL CORTEGE.

Military and Civic Organizations and Throngs of Citizens—Crowds So Dense as to Block the Passage of the Procession for Hours—Services Conducted in the Church of the Epiphany—Most Impressive Ceremonies Ever Accorded a Civilian—Beautiful Music and Flowers—Burial at Graceland.

With all the manifestations of sorrow and regret that could be shown by a great city to its murdered executive, the remains of Carter H. Harrison were borne on Wednesday to the beautiful city of the dead on the northern outskirts of Chicago. By general consent, although there was no one in authority to issue the necessary proclamation, business throughout city was generally suspended. The city and county offices were closed throughout the day, and the public buildings, as well as scores of business houses and private residences along the route traversed by the cortege on the way to Graceland Cemetery, were draped with emblems of woe. The procession itself was long and imposing. Besides the city officials, the members of the City Council, the Board of Education and other municipal bodies, the thousands of personal friends of the dead Mayor and many civic, fraternal and semi-military bodies appeared in line. Nothing was lacking to give pomp, ceremony and impressiveness to the obsequies of the man for whom not only Chicago, but tens of thousands scattered far and wide, were in mourning.

Tuesday morning at ten o'clock the casket containing the remains was conveyed under escort from the family residence on Ashland boulevard to the City Hall. The casket was met at the La Salle street entrance of the public building by the members of the City Council. These, walking two and two, preceded it through the corridors to the center of the rotunda on the main floor, where it was placed on a magnificent catafalque. Here, beneath a canopy of black, surrounded by fragrant flowers; above, a many-tapered chandelier, the light filtering down on the peaceful face through garlands of smilax and roses, lay the mortal remains of Carter H. Harrison, and past his bier filed for hours two lines of his mourning fellow-citizens, at the rate of 5,000 per hour.

VIEWING THE REMAINS IN THE CITY HALL.

Miles of Mourners.

At 10 o'clock Wednesday morning the doors were closed against the throng that still filed through the building and the casket under the escort of the same committee selected for service the day before was returned to the house on Ashland avenue. Here, for the brief space of half an hour, the members of the bereaved family were left alone with their honored dead. In the meantime the funeral procession formed on the boulevard fronting the residence, and at the hour of noon the casket was borne for the last time down the graveled walk so often traversed by the dead man in his score or more of years that the mansion has been his home. Then the cortege, several miles in length, began to move to the Church of the Epiphany, at Ashland avenue and Adams street.

At its head, mounted on coal black chargers, rode Superintendent of Police Brennan, the marshal of the day; ex-Chief of Police Doyle, as assistant marshal, and Police Inspectors Hunt, Schaack, Ross and Lewis. Next in line came five carriages, occupied by the gentlemen who had been requested by the family to act as honorary pall bearers. This is the list: Thomas W. Palmer, Harlow N. Higinbotham, Major General Nelson A. Miles, ex-Governor Richard J. Oglesby, Ferd W. Peck, Judge Lyman Trumbull, Fred H. Winston, Gen. Charles Fitz-Simons, H. J. Jones, C. C. Billings, Adolph Kraus, Philip D. Armour, Frank Wenter, ex-Mayor John A. Roche, ex-Mayor Joseph Medill, ex-Mayor Hempstead Washburne, Judges Francis Adams, B. D. Magruder, S. P. McConnell and R. A. Waller

A carriage containing the officiating clergyman preceded the hearse. Eight active pallbearers, police captains and fire marshals, marched on each side of the funeral carriage, and the Chicago Hussars, under Captain Brand, rode in double column on the outside of the pallbearers. Following the hearse were carriages containing the immediate relatives, the City Council and officials, county, State and national officials in order of precedence, the rear being brought up by civic and military organizations and citizens on foot. Three Chicago regiments of the the National Guard and a detachment of United States troops participated in the procession. Slowly the cortege proceeded down the boulevard to the church. When the arched entrance was reached the casket was borne up the aisle to the sanctuary railing by the pallbearers. The funeral service was conducted after the regular form of the Episcopal Church, Rev. T. N. Morrison, Jr., being the officiating clergyman. He also delivered a brief address. After the benediction had been pronounced the procession reformed, and headed by the Iowa State Band, took up the march of the dead to Graceland cemetery.

The crowd along the road to Graceland was as great as in the central portion of the city. No such outpouring of the public has been seen in Chicago.

Cream of Tartar and Soda

Have uses in cooking well known to every housekeeper; but the method of refining them to make them chemically pure, and of mixing them together so as to produce their greatest leavening power and best results when combined, is a matter of great exactness, requiring the most expert knowledge and skill.

Royal Baking Powder

Is the product of this knowledge and experience and the expenditure of many thousands of dollars in patents and appliances for its preparation. It is a compound of strictly pure grape cream of tartar and absolutely pure soda, combined with exactness and care by famous chemists, and it will produce more wholesome and delicate bread, biscuit, cake, rolls, etc., than can be had where this modern agent of cooking is not used.

Beware of the cheap compounds called baking powders to catch the unwary. They are made with alum and are poisonous.

ELECTRICITY ON THE PYRAMIDS.

How Arab Guides Were Frightened by a Party of Scientists.

In his autobiography the late Sir W. Siemens relates the following anecdote: An Arab called his attention to the fact that when at the top of the pyramid of Cheops, when he raised his hand with fingers outspread, an acute singing note was heard, the sound ceasing as soon as he let his hand fall. "I found his assertion," he writes, "to be true. As soon as I raised one of my own fingers above my head I felt a pricking in the fingers. That this could only be caused by an electrical phenomenon was proved by the slight electric shock felt on trying to drink out of a wine bottle.

"So I wrapped a full bottle of wine that I had with me in the damp paper, and thus converted it into a Leyden bottle, which was soon strongly charged with electricity by the simple device of holding it high above my head. The Arabs had already become distrustful on seeing small lightnings, as it were, issue from the wine bottle held up by myself and companions, and now held a brief consultation. Suddenly, at a given signal, each of my companions was seized by the guide who had led him up, who now tried to force him to go down again.

"I myself was standing at the very top of the pyramid when the sheik of the Arabs came to me and told me through my interpreter that the Arabs had determined that we were at once to leave the pyramid, because we were practicing magic and it might damage their chance of their earning their living. On my refusing to obey orders, the sheik caught hold of my left hand. I had awaited this moment, and held up my right hand with the bottle in the attitude of a magician, afterward lowering it slowly toward the point of the sheik's nose.

"When quite close to that feature I felt a violent shock run through the bottle to my own arm, and was certain that the sheik must have received the equivalent. At any rate he fell senseless on the stones, and a few anxious moments passed before he rose suddenly with a loud cry and sprang down the gigantic steps of the pyramid with long strides. The Arabs, seeing this, and excited by the sheik's constant cries of 'Magic! magic!' released my companions and followed their leader, leaving us complete masters of the pyramid!"

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A Blood-Thirsty Engine of War.

A blood-thirsty engine of war has recently been invented. Electricity is the chief point in its construction and it is carried on a light wagon drawn by a couple of horses. Four men can discharge it four times in fifteen minutes, each discharge throwing 25,000 bullets over a surface of 22,000 yards.

After using other preparations without success I concluded to try Hood's, and am pleased to say I have been benefited more by Hood's Sarsaparilla than by all other medicines combined. In fact, it has cured me. I have also used it as a blood purifier with marked success, and I also find Hood's Pills very beneficial." D. WEBSTER BAKER, 28 South Penn St., York, Pa.

A Widow.

Our house servant is a Japanese, polite as are most of his race. Among his duties is taking care of the chickens. One day he chanced to find a nest of fine eggs at the barn, away from the chicken yard, contributed by a hen that had escaped from the others, and as a consequence the eggs were not fertile. In ignorance of this fact, however, an old lady of our household (a widow) immediately put a hen to "set" on them. Biddy stuck to business, but to no purpose. When the required time had more than elapsed the lady was very much put out and puzzled that no chickens had been hatched. Turning to the Jap, she said: "What do you suppose is the matter of these eggs, George?" George (bowing low): "Excuse me, ma'am, excuse me, but I think [bows again], I think that hen was a widow." Widow satisfied.—California Review.

"German Syrup"

I am a farmer at Edom, Texas. I have used German Syrup for six years successfully for Sore Throat, Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Pains in Chest and Lungs and Spitting up of Blood. I have tried many kinds of Cough Syrups in my time, but let me say to anyone wanting such a medicine—German Syrup is the best. We are subject to so many sudden changes from cold to hot, damp weather here, but in families where German Syrup is used there is little trouble from colds. John F. Jones.

Entomology in Ceylon.

Another interesting discovery, although it does not exactly come under the head of sportsmen's adventures, may interest you. It has always been a great puzzle to naturalists where the Ceylon butterflies go at a certain time of year. You see them flying over your house and garden in thousands and tens of thousands, in one direction, toward the north. This goes on for six weeks or two months, and then they all disappear.

Once, when traveling with my sister in the north of the island, we came to a lonely station, and while breakfast was being prepared we went for a walk in the jungle. When we got about 200 yards in we heard a curious sound, like a soft, low, continuous whistle. It is never oversafe to go too far into the jungle, and strange sounds are apt to make you hesitate for a moment. I told my sister to stay behind, and crawled slowly on in the direction whence the sound proceeded, and there, in an opening in the jungle, I found myself surrounded by one solid mass of brown and yellow butterflies.

They were assembled by the hundreds and thousands over a large square, and about ten feet high from the ground. So dense was the fluttering mass of insects that you could have taken them by the armfuls had you been so minded. The sound proceeded from the movement of the innumerable wings. No doubt the jungle was their breeding place. I have often been asked to publish this fact in a natural list paper, but I have never yet done so. And now I am sure you have had quite enough of my sporting experiences.—Westminster Gazette.

Bagpipes at Breakfast.

A correspondent writes from Balmoral that during Queen Victoria's breakfast, and usually for fifteen minutes before, the head piper "plays a succession of tunes upon the bagpipes at a distance of about a quarter of a mile." This must surely be a pleasant accompaniment to breakfast, but the pleasure would be enhanced if the piper were removed to a distance of, say, a mile, or even across the border.—Buffalo Courier.
