The judge, however, refused to discharge the jurors and sent them back. They returned in half an hour with a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, and fixing the penalty at life imprisonment.

The West Brownsville express on the Pittsburg, Indiana and the Hamilton station, forty-five miles from Pittsburg, it is reported that twenty to thirty persons were injured, none fatally.

The entire train of engine, baggage-car and three coaches was wrecked with a loss of $100,000. The train, which fell from the hills upon the rails immediately in front of the train, which was running at a high rate of speed. The night express safely preceded the Brownsville express by fifteen minutes.

A wreck occurred on the New York and Pennsylvania, about six miles north of Dunkirk, N. Y., at 7 p. m. on Friday, resulting in the loss of eight lives and the injury of others.

The west-bound passenger train that leaves Buffalo at 5:30 p. m. ran over a trestle near Sheridan crossing, which had been weakened by frost. The trestle bore up when the engine passed over, but succumbed directly after, precipitating the tender, a baggage, and smoker into the creek. The other cars crowded the train down and helped to crush them and the occupants. Fortunately, the wreck did not catch fire.

Mercedes Piows, of Chicago, it is reported, died in a convent in Montreal, Friday. She was but 16 years of age and was the daughter of Mrs. Olivia Piows, a sister of Edward Piows, a well-known manufacturer in Chicago. It is stated that the girl committed suicide, but this cannot be substantiated, as the authorities of the convent refuse to discuss the matter.

Mercedes Piows attempted suicide with her sister Oia at the Leland Hotel, Chicago, last night. She was hospitalized, but the drugs which the girls had taken proved fatal to Oia, who died the next day. The two girls went to the hotel April 28 and registered as Miss Orme and Miss Varguave, of New York. They were supplied with baggage and made a favorable appearance. Nothing strange was noticed until the morning of May 4, when the chambermaid was unable to enter the room, as was customary. She notified the hotel managers and the door was forced open. The two girls were found unconscious on the bed. In spite of the work of the doctors Oia, the elder of the girls, died. Mercedes, after being dangerously ill for some days, recovered.
