Don't Cough!

In all bronchial affections the paroxysms of the cough should be placed as far as possible under control of the will.

The old idea that disagreeable sensations in the throat indicate the presence there of "something which ought to come up" has been entirely displaced by the more rational view that the continued and prolonged efforts to expel that "something" are often productive of more mischief than would result from its being allowed to remain.

There is attendant upon every disease of the bronchial tubes a greater or less amount of mucus, which exudes from the membraneous lining of the tube. Of course there are the accompanying signs of inflammation—heat, pain, swelling, and redness; but it is the mucus exudation which is for the most part responsible for the disagreeable sensations which we instinctively attempt to alleviate by coughing.

Now it is certain that, in a great majority of instances, where the general health of the patient is not attacked, this exudation undergoes what is called resolution—that is, it is reabsorbed through the fine network of blood-vessels about the tubes into the blood, where it is taken care of, and complete recovery is effected.

On the other hand, let us suppose that we do not wait for resolution to take place, but that, on the theory that every particle of the exudation should be expelled, as being of a poisonous nature, we strain to exhaustion every muscle of expiration, and, in fact, the whole system. What follows?

We may have accomplished our immediate object, or the cleaning of the inflammation may have been out of reach. In either event, if we could see the point at which our efforts had been directed, we should discover that they had not been productive of the results anticipated. Instead of the inflammation being in any way allayed, we should find that an effect had been produced similar to that which follows scratching an itching sore. The irritation has for the moment been relieved, but it is only a question of time when it will return with renewed energy.

The habit of endeavoring to expel more of the exudation than will come away with gentle and infrequent coughing is an exhausting and idle one.—Youth's Companion.

Where Wakefulness Has Its Birth.

Intelligent physicians are regarding with an eye less and less favorable the use of narcotics. While these are used in extreme cases to afford greatly needed temporary relief, professional efforts are far more generally directed, nowadays than formerly, to means of building up the nervous system as the basis of its healthful quietude. This is one reason why Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has received the unanimous indorsement of physicians as a nervine tonic. Indigestion unrelieved is the fruitful father of insomnia, and the relief of the parent malady by the Bitters is usually followed by a return to tranquil sleep. Overwork, mental anxiety, sedentary habits impair digestion and weaken the nerves. The Bitters strengthens them by renewing the ability to digest and assimilate the food. Besides this, it healthfully stimulates the liver and kidneys. Biliousness, constipation, rheumatism and debility are remedied by this sterling medicine.

English Legal Curiosity.

According to a decree just rendered by the British courts of law, payment cannot legally be enforced for any order given to a tradesman on Sunday. In the case before the court, the order was for a frock coat and waistcoat, and the claimant a tailor, who, while officiating as church warden, had received an order from one of the parishioners for the garments on leaving the church. It is the Sunday trading act of King George II. which bars the creditor's way.

HAWAII SHOWS FIGHT

WILL RESIST ARMED INVASION WITH ARMS.

Determined Men Pledge Their Support to the Provisional Government in Repelling Any Attack Upon It in Violation of the Law of Nations.

All Nations Notified.

Honolulu advices via Victoria, B. C., say that since the arrival there of the steamer Warrimoo, political events have followed each other with startling rapidity. Dispatches forwarded the Associated Press by sailing vessels have not fully anticipated the serious condition Hawaii is now passing through in the most determined and heroic way. When the Warrimoo arrived with President Cleveland's ultimatum the royalists were jubilant and the annexationists at once began to carry out previous plans for forcible resistance in case the steamer China, which arrived three days later, brought instruction to Minister Willis for the restoration of the monarchy with the aid of the United States troops from the warships Adams and Philadelphia. Within twenty-four hours after the news brought by the Warrimoo was received 1,600 determined annexationists had been mobilized in short notice at the drill-shed of the barracks behind the executive building. The meeting was short but wildly enthusiastic. The following resolutions were passed without a dissenting voice from the thousand or more present:

Resolved, That we have read with surprise and regret the announcement of the Secretary of State of the United States to the President to restore the monarchy lately existing in Hawaii.

Resolved, That we condemn the assumption of the Secretary that the right of the Provisional Government to exist was terminated by his refusal to resubmit to the Senate the treaty of union pending between the two countries, and also the assumption that the Provisional Government at that very time submitted the question of its continued existence to the arbitrament of the resident agent of any other power.

Resolved, That we support to the best of our ability the Provisional Government to resist any attack upon it which may be made contrary to the usage of nations.

Since this mass-meeting the spirit of enthusiasm which at first prevailed among the royalits has been in a state of fluctuation, and some of the clearest-headed leaders admit that the success of the restoration in the present or future depends on the armed protection of the monarchy by the United States.

The first action of the authorities after the arrival of the next Commissioner Blount's report was to remove Fred Wunderburg, a royalist sympathizer, from the clerkship he held in the Supreme Court. The advices also say that it has been learned upon the best authority, directly from royalist sources, that the British Minister-resident, Mr. Wodehouse, has lately stated to different persons in Honolulu that there was an understanding between President Cleveland and the English government that the monarchy should be restored. In private political circles on the annexationist side the opinion has been freely expressed that the presence of the British cruiser Champion there at the present time was owing to the fact of the English foreign office that President Cleveland would not be able to carry out his policy. This theory reached the executive, and an advisory council special session was held in which Mr. Brown introduced the following resolution which was unanimously recommended by the council to the executive:

Resolved, That the executive council inquire of the American minister whether his instructions were covered by and are in harmony with the letter of Secretary Gresham's instruction to Cleveland; if so whether he was instructed to use force.

Resolved, That should the answer be in the affirmative this council recommends that Mr. Willis be immediately given his passport and the ex-Queen be made prisoner of state.

Attitude of the British.

The fear of the Council seems to be that the British will offer protection to the ex-Queen in case Cleveland fails to restore her. This is the chief reason that notice has been given foreign officials not to land troops without permission of the provisional government.

In view of the attitude assumed by President Cleveland the American citizens presented a protest to Minister Willis, which has been numerously signed, in which they set forth that as citizens of the United States they have done nothing whereby they forfeit or wave their full legal and constitutional rights as such citizens. The document contains six typewritten pages of recitation of the signatures, and closes with the following words:

And the undersigned hereby solemnly and respectfully protest to your excellency and to Grover Cleveland, President of the United States; to Walter Q. Gresham, Secretary of State; to Hilary A. Herbert, Secretary of the Navy, and to Rear Admiral John irwin, commanding the United States naval forces in Hawaiian waters, and to all concerned, that any such acts of war or hostility, if taken, attempted, or announcement thereof, will and would be cause for all concerned in authority to be responsible for all consequences that may ensue therefrom, not only before Almighty God, but all sanctioned rules and observances of civilized nations in their dealings with each other, and will and would be in violation of the rights of the undersigned, secured and belonging to them as citizens of the United States of America.

ROBBED OF THOUSANDS.

Cashier A. J. Robinson Is Assaulted in the Chicago Postoffice.

A. J. Robinson, cashier of the wholesale stamp department in the Chicago postoffice, was assaulted and robbed while in his office Tuesday night. The amount secured is said to be nearly $10,000. Mr. Robinson was alone in his office when the robbers entered by means of a secret rap on the door, and, after knocking him senseless, fled with the procurable cash.

It was about 6:30 o'clock when the rap at the door came. It was the secret rap, known only to such employes as were entitled to the privilege of entering the place, and the cashier had no hesitancy in opening the door. He was preparing to close up his accounts for the night and had counted his cash. The money was lying on his desk. As he opened the door he saw a well-dressed man of middle age and good address.

"I beg your pardon, sir," the stranger said, "but are you the cashier in the stamp department?" "I am," replied Mr. Robinson. "You are the man I want to see then," replied the caller. "Do your accounts balance for the night?"

Mr. Robinson was slightly surprised at the question, but at the plausible explanation which followed all doubts were removed. He told the man that his accounts did not balance, and that although he had gone over them two or three times they were out of the way.

"Well, I think I can explain the difficulty," interrupted the stranger. "My son purchased some stamps from the wholesale department this afternoon, and when he reached my office I discovered that a mistake had been made. The package contained more stamps than had been paid for. You will find them here in this package, with a note from my son making a statement of the facts in the case."

Mr. Robinson was then handed a little roll, and thinking it was stamps which the man wished to return, went a few steps away to the electric light and began to unroll it. As he lowered his head he was struck, and this was the last he remembered for over three hours. His assailant then went behind the wire door and secured a large amount of money. He then escaped through the window on Adams street, but in falling so dropped three packages containing over $900. Several thousand dollars in gold was left untouched in the safe, and the door was open.

Mr. Robinson lay unconscious until 10 o'clock, when the night retail stamp seller, Mr. Zimmer, came on duty. Robinson was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital in the ambulance, and Officers Griffin and Smith from the Central Station were put to work on the case. All they have to work on is a vague description given by the assaulted cashier.

AS IT IS REVISED.

Most Important Changes in the Wilson Tariff Bill Noted.

The revised tariff bill has been laid before the Ways and Means Committee. The changes which have been made in the bill since it was first given to the public are as follows: Tin plate, from 40 per cent. ad valorem to one and one-fifth cents per pound, with a provision that the reduction shall not go into effect until Oct. 1, 1894. Pearl buttons, from 40 per cent. ad valorem to one cent per line and fifteen per cent. ad valorem. Velvet and tapestry, velvet carpets, figured or plain, and all carpeting of like character increased from 25 to 30 per cent. ad valorem. Tapestry Brussels, treble ingrain and other kinds of carpets increased 5 per cent. ad valorem.

A change is made in the time when the woolen schedule shall go into effect. The first print of the bill stated that the woolen schedule shall go into effect July 1, 1894, and that on all rates of duty in the woolen schedule except on carpets there shall be a reduction of 1 cent on the hundred every year until 1900. This is changed so that the woolen schedule shall go into effect the same time as the remainder of the bill, and that the reductions which are to follow will be on all woolens except carpets, there being no change in this particular provision.

The silk schedule is now as follows: Silk partially manufactured from cocoons or from waste silk, and not further advanced or manufactured than carded or combed silk, 25 cents per pound. Thrown silk, not more advanced than singles, tram, or gauzine sewing silk, twist, floss, and silk threads or yarns of every description, except spun silk, 25 per cent. ad valorem; spun silk in skins, cops, warps, or on beams, 30 per cent. ad valorem.

The cotton thread schedule is changed so as to make the ad valorem duty fixed apply to a cheaper grade of thread in each case.

The following has been added to the wood schedule taken from the free list: Lumber of any sort, planed or finished, for each side planed or finished, 50 cents per 1,000 feet, board measure; and if planed on one side and tongued and grooved, $1 per 1,000 feet, board measure; and if planed on two sides and tongued and grooved, $1.50 per 1,000 feet, board measure; and in estimating board measure under this schedule no deduction shall be made on board measure on account of planing, tonguing and grooving.

There are numerous changes in the free list. Burlaps are added to dutiable list at 15 per cent. ad valorem; brushes and feather dusters increased from 25 to 30 per cent.; jewelry, 25 to 35 per cent.; petroleum, crude or refined, added to the free list if the country importing admits the American product free; original drawings and engravings and sketches and artists' proofs of etchings and engravings and statuary of wood, added to free list; mother of pearl, sawed and cut, taken from the free list.

The Lurcher.

First and foremost necessity for poaching is the far-famed "poacher's dog"—the true Norfolk lurcher (so called from an old meaning of the verb lurk—viz., to steal), or, as nally a cross between the greyhound for speed and the retriever for scent and work; but now a recognized breed, and often again crossed with the greyhound.

As to the training and cleverness of these dogs a whole paper might easily be written. They are not only never allowed out in the daytime, but are always kept in the dark, and their skill and cunning, when well trained, are beyond the belief of those who have never witnessed them. A comical instance was one I once taught to reverse all the usual orders, so that when loudly called to heel he would slip off after a rabbit, and the more he was whistled the faster he went. None will appear with any game in his mouth before a stranger, however friendly he may appear to be, until whatever the accustomed signal of safety has been given him; and if his master be driving along the lanes in his cart, as one style of rabbit poachers often do, the dog is trained to jump into the cart, drop his rabbit, and out again, without any stopping of the wheels, which might excite suspicions of any observant keeper.

Given the dog and a suitable night, wet and windy preferred, the rest of the paraphernalia depends on the kind of sport on hand. Deer are too big to be easily disposed of, and the punishment of £50 or imprisonment and whipping, too heavy to be lightly risked, though but a few years ago, fawns were frequently taken from a celebrated park and conveyed by a carter, hidden in his sacks of corn, to a neighboring town.—The Nineteenth Century.

NATURE, quoting a correspondent from Lahore, India, says: "A few days ago in a village named Daduzai (in the Pashawa district) rain fell, preceded by a wind storm, and with the rain came a shower of hailstones, which lasted for an hour and a few minutes. The most curious part of this occurrence is that the hailstones, when touched, were not at all cold, and when put in the mouth tasted like sugar."

THE results of six months' observations of Mars have led Mr. Schacherie of the Lick Observatory to the conclusion—contrary to the generally received views—that the dark portions of the disk represent land and the light portions water. This is supported by observations of San Francisco Bay from Mount Hamilton, in which the bay appears brighter than the neighboring valley and mountains at the same distance. On this hypothesis the "canals" would correspond to ridges of mountains almost wholly immersed in water, while their doubling may represent parallel ridges of which our own earth furnishes examples.

METHUSELAH KNOCKED OUT.

A Whale Whose Age Is Computed at Nearly a Thousand Years.

The largest whale which ever entered this harbor, and one of the largest ever seen on this coast, washed ashore at Tokeland Monday, says the South Bend (Wash.) Herald. The fish came in on the high tide, and like just a little below Charles Fisher's bathhouses. It was alive and kicking, and did not finally surrender until Tuesday about noon. County Attorney M. D. Egbert had taken along a tape line and carefully measured the monster. The line showed an extreme length of 174 feet and 8 inches, with a "waist measure" of 161 feet and 6 inches. County Surveyor L. C. Vickrey figured on the weight of the "animile" and pronounced this member of the balaenoidea family to weigh forty-seven and one-half tons, and the blubber and whalebone to be worth at current prices, oil $9,765, bone $1,000—making a net total of $10,975.

Attorney L. E. Ginn attempted to compute the age of the subject under consideration, and concluded from the transverse lines on the baleen that this fish had existed for 986 years, lacking but four seven years of having lived the longest term of whale life. The pectoral fins are twelve feet long and seven feet broad, the mouth is twenty-four feet long, the blow holes fifteen inches long, and the half-hundred bathers in the water at the time it came ashore say the noise of spouting was deafening, and the spray ejected ascended at least fifty feet in the air. The thrashing of the tail on the water in the struggle to regain the channel was heard at McGowan's cannery at the mouth of North River, four miles away.

County School Superintendent L. W. Fanscher furnished some historical facts in regard to the whole. Alfred the Great had been dead but six years when his whaleship first began to navigate the waters of the earth. The old boy was 120 years old when when William the Conqueror was born, and may have been playing off English shores when he was crowned King. He was on earth at the time of the making of the great charter at Runnymede, he was middle-aged when the pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock, and probably looked upon the wars of Napoleon, the American revolution, and the civil war with many a sad sigh and shake of the head for the ruthless slaughter of humanity.

Real and Ideal Meandering.

A city girl writes: "It is a fond dream of mine to become a farmer's wife and meander with him down life's flowery pathway." Ah, yes, that is a nice thing to dream about, but when you have lived on a farm and followed this meandering business for a month or so you will discover a wide chasm between the dream and the reality. You will think of this about the time your husband meanders out and leaves you without wood and you have to meander up and down the lane pulling splinters off the fence with which to cook dinner. You meander around in the wet clover in search of the cows you will have a dim perception that fond dreams do not always pan out 100 cents on the dollar, and that there are several meanderings in farm life that are not listed in the dreaming category. The meandering business on the farm is not what it's cracked up to be.—Texas Siftings.
