CRIME AND CASUALTY.

Richard Puryear, who murdered Christian Ehler near Tammerville, Pa., three weeks ago, escaped to the streets of Chicago, Tuesday. A large crowd gave chase and Puryear was taken in the woods a mile from town. He fought desperately, but was overpowered and was taken to Palmer Island by boat and was hanged as a murderer and the murderer was a tree.

Mrs. Margaret Mayer was arraigned at Racine, Wis., charged with poisoning her first husband, Herman Groves.

John Hart was hanged at Rockford Friday morning as the penalty for the murder of his two sisters. The crime for which Hart was executed was the most atrocious ever committed in that part of the State. On Sept. 5, 1893, Hart was alone on the farm six miles west of Rockford with his mother and two sisters, Mary and Nellie. During the night the mother left the house for a short time, going to the potato patch in the rear of the residence to get some potatoes for the evening meal. No sooner had his mother left the house than Hart sprang from his bed and ran to the barn, telling her that the granary floor had sprung a leak and was letting out to the basement below. When the unsuspecting girl had reached the bottom of the basement stairs, Hart turned and forced her to drink poison out of a bottle. He then struck her on the head with a hammer and shot her in the stomach with a revolver, leaving her on the floor for dead.

SOLSVILLE MIRACLE

RESTORATION OF PHILANDER HYDE FROM PARALYSIS. Helpless and Bed-Ridden—His Recovery From This Pitiable Condition—A Remarkable Narrative.

During the past few months there have appeared in the columns of the Standard, the particulars of a number of cures so remarkable as to justify the term miraculous. These cases were being investigated and vouched for by the Albany Express, and other papers whose reputation is a guarantee that the facts were as stated. Different schools of medicine and some of the brightest lights in the profession had treated these cases, unsuccessfully; and their recovery later on, therefore, and its nature, was a profound sensation throughout the country.

The Standard has published the above accounts for what they were worth, and are happily able to supplement same by a full and complete account in Madison County, at Solsville, and the subject is Mr. Philander Hyde, who told the reporter the following:

"I will be 70 in September. I was born in Broome County, N. Y., where all my life was spent until recently, when, becoming helpless, I came to live with my daughter here. My life occupation has been that of a farmer. I was always well and rugged until two years ago, when I contracted the grip. When it left me I had a sensation of numbness in my legs, which gradually grew to be stiff at the joint and very painful. I felt the stiffness in my left first, and the pain and the stiffness gradually crept up to my hip joints, and to the bowels and stomach, and prevented digestion. To move the bowels I was compelled to take great quantities of castor oil.

"While I was in this condition, cold fevers came on me, and I was unable to get up, and my legs were stiff and straight up my legs to my back and would follow the whole length of my back bone. I could not sleep, I had no appetite, I became helpless. When in this condition I was treated by a number of the best physicians, and all they did me no good. I soon became perfectly helpless and lost all power of action even in my bed."

"The physicians consulted pronounced my father's case creeping paralysis," said Mr. Hyde, "and that I was to be carried all the way in a bed. The doctors said they could only relieve the pain, and for the purpose he took a pint of whisky a day for three months, but it did me no good. I began to get up, and I was able to walk, and I have an excellent appetite. And then, after a pause, 'But, ah, me, I am an old man; I have seen my best days, and cannot get up any more. My legs are stiff as a young man might, but I am so thankful to have the use of my limbs and to be relieved of those dreadful pains.'"

"Others in Solsville are taking Pink Pills, notably the mother of Abel Curtis, who has been cured of rheumatism, rheumatism, nervous weakness, after effects of a gripper, palpitation of the heart, and that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration. All diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc., are also cured by a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excessive drinking."

"These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade-mark and wrapper at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50. They are sold in bulk or by the dozen or hundred."

"Demedant Gold for His Cotton. A few days ago Mr. Cole Wall was asked by a big farmer in this county to go out to St. John, Ark., where he had not sold for three years. Mr. Wall went out, weighed and classified the cotton, which amounted to $14,000. Mr. Wall was about to write a check for the amount when the farmer said he would not accept anything but a dollar gold piece. Mr. Wall went to the New South Savings Bank and got 2,800 five-dollar pieces and carried them to him, whereupon the farmer got out a jug and counted them into it for burial purposes.—Barnesville (Ga.) Journal.

"The Rhubarbs. The growing fashion of naming private residences calls to mind the story told by Kirk Munroe of a witty woman who lived in an old-fashioned, quiet New England town. She wrote a note in response to an invitation to tea, in which she said: 'My name and address are more distinctly rubarbed than anything else in our back yard.'—Independent.

"Dark. There is a singular story told of the year's production of pictures by the artists of Paris, doubtless by way of satire of the way in which certain painters pull the wool over the eyes of the public.

"One artist, it is said, has covered a canvas with nothing whatever but a thick cloud of black paint, in which nothing whatever is distinguishable, and has proceeded to exhibit the canvas under this title: 'The Day after the Day after Tomorrow.'"

Like thunder from a clear sky came news from Denver Thursday night of a situation that borders closely upon war. The city was under martial law, and the entire population of Denver with all its equipment was hurrying to the scene. The occasion for it all was a quarrel between Gov. Waite and the fire and police board of the city. The Governor had shortly before removed two members of the police board, and appointed others in their places. It was his attempt to install these men that provoked resistance from the municipal authorities, and this resistance was met by the fire and police board, the city was massed about the entrance to the City Hall, confronted, half a block away, by several companies of militia and two gatling guns. Gov. Waite received from Washington authority to call out a force of 100 regular troops, under Gen. McCook, and at once mobilized the entire militia of the State. The situation is very strained. Gen. McCook says he will preserve peace at any cost.

THE FIRE RECORD.

In the old Athenaeum Building at Chicago drove the audience from the Schiller Theater and did damage amounting to $170,000.

The Denver Union Depot was totally destroyed by fire Sunday morning, the loss being $300,000. The flames were discovered at 12:30 a. m. in the baggage department in the south end of the building. At 1 o'clock the fire had reached the central portion of the building and in a few minutes the tower was in flames, and portions of it began to fall. This caused the northern portion to take fire. The walls in many places fell in. The entire city was illuminated by the fire. The fire was extinguished by the fire department, but it was impossible to save it, and three-quarters of an hour from the time the blaze was first discovered the handsome and most costly depot structure in the West was in ruins. The depot was about 800 feet long and was built about twenty years ago. It was built of stone.

At Brooklyn, N. Y., the tinware manufacturing of Haley & Co. was destroyed, causing a loss of $200,000, fully insured. At Newark, Minn., an elevator containing 5,000 bushels of grain was burned.
