

HE GOT THAT PACKAGE, BUT

The fellow who followed instructions had a rough time. There is a man in this town, says a Chicago paper, who has a male servant who is more faithful than any dog that ever born. He never questions an order. The other day a friend of the man came into his office and asked the man to lend him his servant for a short time. The friend wanted a package which he had left at his house. The man loaned the servant and his friend gave him these instructions: "Now, I want you to go up to my house and walk right up the front steps. The door will be open and you go right up. My room is at the head of the stairs. You go in and you will find a package on my dresser. That's the package I want and if you get back in an hour I will give you $1." The male servant listened attentively and said that he understood his instructions. He hustled out and in an hour returned with the package. He was not in very good shape. His face was bruised and his coat was torn. One of his eyes was swollen and the skin was off the corners of his right hand. "Holy Moses, John!" exclaimed the friend of the package, "what you been doing?" "Been in a fight," replied John, "only."

IN AFRICAN GOLD FIELDS.

The City Alone Sends Out 410,000 Ounces Monthly. A traveler recently returned from a trip through the gold-producing regions of South Africa, states that Johannesburg sends out monthly 110,000 ounces of pure gold, valued roughly at $1,000,000, and that the day is not distant when that amount will be doubled, and is already in sight. It is also certain that other parts of the Transvaal will soon be sending out their own gold treasures, for it is a country which gives abundant evidence of vast stores of the precious metal. Many new rich reefs have been discovered this year, and experts say that they will be worked for thirty years. The managers of the mines—British capitalists—prefer native labor and do all they can to retain it. The Zulu laborer gets so much money that in a few months he would be rich if his savings were not reduced by his expenditure on liquor, the use of which is encouraged by the government, because of the revenue derived from it, and by the mine managers, who, by keeping the laborers in poverty, are able to secure their services for a greater length of time. An ordinary Zulu can earn three or four dollars a week besides his rations in mining, but he spends all he earns, and so is chained to the mine. During the past seven years Johannesburg has grown rapidly. It is, perhaps, destined to be the largest of South African cities, as it is already the center of the largest gold fields of the world.

Irish as Agricultural Workers. After fifty applications a day are received at the Bureau of Immigration, New York, for laborers to work on the farms out West, some of them even so far as California and Washington and Alaska. The applicants do not speak Italian or Slovak, because they do not so easy to teach the language and they do not know how to farm in the American fashion and seem unable to pick it up. Germans and Irishmen are in demand. The Irishman has no work on a good farm on the other side makes the best wages of all. He knows the English language to begeth with, and the chances are that if he has not worked with improved agricultural machinery he has seen it used, and knows which end of the tool the horses are hitched to. Wages run from $12 to $18 a month, board and clothing included, and if anybody gets less than a month it is an Irishman. The Irish are used to the three-day-a-day schedule, whereas the German farm laborer expects five meals a day and thinks something is wrong when he does not get them.

Change France's Fete Day. Efforts are making in France to substitute the birth of Jean of Arc as the national fete day in place of the July 14, the anniversary of the taking of the Bastille. The festive epianiversary no longer excites the same enthusiasm it did at the beginning of the present regime. And it has been pointed out that the honor of demolishing the Bastille belongs to Germans and not Frenchmen. History testifies to the effect that the siege capture of the famous prison was especially the work of foreigners, whom the majority were Germans, and thus France has been annually celebrating the shedding of French blood by Germans.

An Incident of Life in Utah. Mormon Elder—I want a pair of boots my wife. Bookmaker—Yes, sir. What number? Mormon Elder—Seven. Bookmaker—Seven at Great Brigham Young, sir. We have no boots of that size. Mormon Elder (sternly)—I'm not taking the number of the boots, but of the number of my wife.
