They had just come back from California, and it was a complete surprise. They were just getting ready to retire when the crowd broke in upon them. The crowd enjoyed themselves until about half past ten, when refreshments were over the party broke up, everybody seeming to enjoy themselves, and all had a good time.

OBITUARY—MRS. JOSIE E. BARBER.

"There is a reaper whose name is death,
And with his sickle keen
He reaps the bearded grain at a breath,
And the flower that grew between.

"Shall I have naught that is fair? saith he;
Have naught but the bearded grain?
Though the breath of these flowers is sweet to me
I will give it back again.

"He gazed at the flowers with tearful eyes,
He kissed their drooping leaves;
It was for the Lord of Paradise,
And for the reaper whose name is death,
And with his sickle keen,
He reaped the bearded grain at a breath,
And the flower that grew between.

"O, not in cruelty, not in wrath,
The Reaper came that day;
'Twas an angel visited the earth that day
And took the flowers away."

Surely, the people of Gardner are ofttimes reminded that the Reaper is at his daily toil; and yet on last Sunday they were shocked to learn that at the downing of that beautiful Sabbath day He had plucked from our midst, at the very fullness of bloom one of the very fairest and purest of our flowers. Shortly before five o'clock Mrs. Sosie E. Barber had passed away after an illness of one month. All that medical skill and loving friends and tirelesk hands could do had been done, but all to no avail.

Josephene Phebe Eldred was born at Gardner, Oct. 13, 1863, beneath the same roof that sheltered her at her marriage and her death. Almost her entire life had been spent in our midst. With the exception of a few months, attending school at Normal, and later, when for five years she taught in the Braidwood public schools, returning to her home and friends at the close of each week's work, her life until her marriage being spent in the town of her birth. Six years ago she accepted a position in the Gardner public schools which position she held till the spring of 1893, when she was obliged to resign on account of failing health. On Oct. 10 following she was married to Adelbert Farwell Barber, a former classmate and friend from childhood, a young man of exemplary habits, widely known and highly esteemed by all. The happy young couple began housekeeping at once in Chicago, where naught but happiness entered in. Their frequent visits to the homes of their childhood were sufficient to show their many friends that their life was one of supreme happiness, filled with naught but love and devotion. On June 30 they returned to Gardner for a short visit. When this was ended and they were about to return to their home and its duties, Josie was taken ill. For four weeks she was with us, and aided by medical skill and the kindest of friends, she struggled against the ravages of disease but only to be overcome. She leaves a loving husband, father and mother, two brothers and a sister, besides a host of friends to mourn her loss.

As a child Josie was sweet and attractive; as a young lady she was pure and loveable; as a wife she was true and devoted. Wherever her presence, whatever her duties she won the respect and affection of those about her. At the age of thirteen years she united with the M. E. church of Gardner and ever after lived a consistent christian life. None who knew her could fail to recognize the truth and appropriateness of one statement made by the Rev. Mr. Morgan in his words of consolation to her friends. He said: "My friends; if you will strive as hard to do the right, as you see it, as Josie did you will err far from the path of righteousness."

A BROTHER'S TRIBUTE.

When your form is laid forever
In the bosom of the earth,
We will ne'er forget you, never,
While we gather round the hearth.

We will all times you remember,
For there 's none to take your place;
We will ne'er forget you, never,
Though we cannot see your face.

Mrs. J. B. Bruer died very suddenly last Wednesday.

Geo. W. Patton had legal business in Bloomington this week.

"Proxies" seem to be in demand for the dongressional convention next Thursday.

McDowell & Barrackman have dissolved partnership in the law business, and will do it alone.

It turns out that Barrackman did not break his leg but only got it pulled. That's the fate of a candidate.

Several young people, chaperoned by Mrs. Jas. R. Beach, are having a week's outing at Deer Park and Starved Rock.

Fred Duckett was with us this week. There is no wind blowing through his flowing beard, and he has a "get there" look.

Capt. O. F. Avery is able to be out on crutches this week. He has had a long seige of it and his many friends hope to see him all right soon.

The democratic county central committee organized Tuesday afternoon by the election of Eugene Baker, chairman and C. S. Brydia, secretary. They will make a lively canvass, Mr. Baker is about as sleek as they nake 'em and the republicans will have to keep their eyes open.

Emington.

The Niagara excursionists started Tuesday. More went than was expected at the first.

A quartet of our young people assisted the Epworth League, of Odell, in a concert on Monday evening.

Mrs. Bradley's son Chas. is very sick with typhoid fever. If the dry weather continues more cases may be expected.

We have room in our town for a bank as well as a hotel. A live business man with $10,000 to $20,000 capital would soon do well here in the banking business.

Mr. Heistand, of Danville, Ill., has been in town for a few days. He is trying to induce the youth to buy a book on good manners. It will be well for some of our boys to "lay in" a dozen copies apiece.

Miss Lucy Page Gaston, district secretary of the W. C. T. U., will occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church morning and evening Sunday, August 26. She is a good speaker and Emington people may expect something good.

President Blanchard, of Wheaton College, will give an address in the church Saturday evening, September 1. Subject, "Ireland and the Irish." He will occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church Sunday, September 2. Addressing the young people in the evening on the topic "A Christian Education for our Young Men."
