That Tired Feeling

Mr. W.N. Barnes

"I cordially recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all who may be suffering with indigestion or impure blood, no appetite, Run Down feeling, or generally out of order. It will surely help any who give it a fair trial, if there is any help for them. I have found it of great benefit for Rheumatism. We have used Hood's Sarsaparilla two years and have no sick headache spells, pains or tired feeling." W. N. BARNES, Hartford City, Ind.

Not So Bad a Shot.

Rulers have always been flattered, from Canute's time downward, it being, it would seem, an unwritten law that a monarch's weak points should pass unrecognized. Napoleon III. once said, in consoling a friend who chanced to be shooting with him for his poor marksmanship:

"You need not fret about it; the Emperor by which he meant his uncle, the great Napoleon I., was even a worse shot than you are; then only three they put a gun in his hand, he killed a poor hound, and went away thinking he had killed a stag.

"In those days the stag, wherever brought to bay, was left for the Emperor to kill. One day, however, the Emperor was not to be found, and the master of the staghounds finished the animal with his knife. Just then the Emperor came in sight.

"They hurriedly got the dead stag on its legs, propping it up with branches, and so forth, and handed the Emperor the carbine of honor,' as it was called. The Emperor fired, and of course the stag tumbled over, but at the same time there was a piteous whine from one of the hounds, which had been shot through the head.

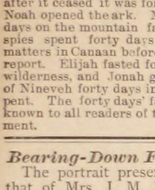
"The Emperor wheeled round, unconscious of the mischief he had done, saying to one of his aids-de-camp, 'After all, I am not as bad a shot as they pretend!'"

"Forty" in the Scriptures.

The rain that produced the flood fell for forty days and forty nights, and after it ceased it was forty days before Noah opened the ark. Moses was forty days on the mountain fasting, and the spies spent forty days investigating matters in Canaan before making their report. Elijah fasted forty days in the wilderness, and Jonah gave the people of Nineveh forty days in which to repent. The forty days' fast of Jesus is known to all readers of the New Testament.

Bearing-Down Feeling.

The portrait presented here is that of Mrs. J. M. Bender, who lives on the old York Road at Nicetown, Pa. She has been for many years in very poor health.



Mrs. J.M. BENDER

She had falling of the womb, causing that bearing down feeling and other forms of female weakness, with headache, severe backache, pains all over her body, and serious kidney trouble.

Her blood was in such a bad state that physicians said she had dropsy. Nearly discouraged, she tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to her great surprise it made her a well woman. She now wishes to tell women all over the world to take the Vegetable Compound and be well.

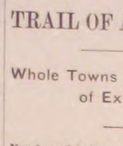
DEATH IN THE WIND

Awful Loss of Life Reported in Iowa and Minnesota.

TRAIL OF A TORNADO.

Whole Towns Are Wiped Out of Existence.

Number of Injured Said to Run Into the Hundreds—Entire Counties Laid Waste by Wind and Hail—Several Villages Effaced from the Map—No Estimate of the Aggregate Property Loss Is Made, but It Will Be Something Enormous.

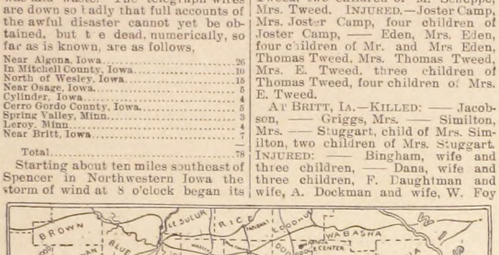


THE fearful cyclone which swept over a portion of Southern Minnesota and Northern Iowa Friday night is now known to have been the most disastrous of any storm which has visited the Northwest in many years. From best advices obtainable at the time this is written seventy-eight persons are known to have been killed outright, and at least as many more were dangerously, several of them fatally, injured, and the number of those less seriously hurt will exceed 100.

The towns of Emmetsburgh, Britt, Cerro Gordo, and Algona, Iowa, and Spring Valley and Leroy, Minn., were visited, and the country around them was laid waste. The telegraph wires are down so badly that full accounts of the awful disaster cannot be obtained, but the dead, numerically, so far as is known, are as follows,

Near Algona, Iowa	26
In Mitchell County, Iowa	10
North of Wesley, Iowa	16
Near Osage, Iowa	4
Cylinder, Iowa	4
Cerro Gordo County, Iowa	3
Spring Valley, Minn	3
Leroy, Minn	4
Near Britt, Iowa	7
Total	78

Starting about ten miles southeast of Spencer in Northwestern Iowa the storm of wind at 8 o'clock began its work of destruction. Taking everything before it, it swept across the State just north of Emmetsburg and Algona, following the line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, and mostly injuring the country districts. After passing Mason City and ruining the country northwest of Osage it bore off to the northeast, crossing the Minnesota line, and soon after 10 o'clock wrecked the town of Leroy, where a bad fire added to the destruction. Spring Valley was right in the path of the cyclone and suffered severely. Turning again to the east the towns of Homer and Lowther were badly damaged, and at one time reported completely wiped off the face of the earth. After crossing the Mississippi and doing considerable damage to farm buildings near Marshland, Wis., the storm seemed to have spent its force. A smaller storm did some damage at Dodge Center, which was not in the path of the main cyclone. The path of the storm was not wide, but it had all the characteristics of the deadly tornado and the dimensions of a cyclone.



MAP SHOWING TOWNS VISITED BY THE CYCLONE

Country the Heaviest Loser.

While the loss of life is great, it might have been much greater had there been many towns in the path of the storm. As it was only a few villages were struck. The greatest destruction of life was in the vicinity of Mason City, Iowa; Wesley, Iowa; Fertile, Osage, and Britt. At Lowther, Iowa, where the town was reduced to kindling, no fatalities are reported, but seventeen persons were injured, some of whom will die.

In Minnesota, the storm seemed to start at Leroy, after traveling in the air for several miles. Five persons were killed at this place. At Chatfield, Minn., a dance was in progress in the opera-house when the storm descended upon the town. The building was blown down and many persons were hurt. Sixty houses in all were demolished and 100 persons were injured.

The cyclone appeared in Iowa at about 8 o'clock in the evening, and was accompanied by violent lightning and thunder. After the storm was over it began a flooding rain, which rendered the destruction more complete. There appeared to be three clouds, one above the other, all whirling in opposite directions, and when they came in contact everything in their path was swept away. The storm was eccentric, as in many cases houses were completely demolished while structures directly adjoining were unscathed. The storm lasted about two hours, and traveled over a strip of territory 120 miles in length and from a quarter of a mile to ten miles wide.

With the exception of a call from Thompson, Iowa, for medical assistance to care for the wounded, there were no appeals for aid, and the more fortunate in the scourged district announce that they will care for the survivors.

The devastated district is visited by thousands of spectators from far and near, who charter every conceivable conveyance in which to make the journey. The picture of desolation presented will never be forgotten by those who saw it. That the wind could do what has been done in the way of destruction would not be believed were it not that the ocular proof is at hand. Forests of considerable area and heavy growth have been leveled as completely as though mown with a giant scythe. In some instances barbed wire fences, that offer the least possible resistance to wind, were blown away as clearly as though a fence had never existed in the locality. Boards have been picked up in which grains of sand are so deeply and thickly embedded as to give them the appearance of the sandpaper of commerce. In many instances the bodies of the dead have the skin so thoroughly penetrated by the flinty grains of sand as to be almost unrecognizable.

Every train into the district on Saturday took its quota of coffins to every station, and, as they were piled up awaiting transportation, a grewsome sight was presented. Sunday was a day of funerals throughout the devastated districts. In Kossuth county, Iowa, alone there were nineteen, followed on Monday by nearly fifty. The money loss in that county will foot up $500,000, and scores of people there and elsewhere are left destitute. The same condition exists at Leroy and Spring Valley, Minn.

Prey to Flames.

The most disastrous fire in the history of Port and, Ore., broke out Sunday afternoon in the dock of the Pacific Coast Elevator Company, and raged for three hours, destroying property valued at over $1,500,000. The fire department was scattered about the city, looking after the small fires, when the alarm from the elevator was rung in. When the engines arrived the fire was beyond control and in half an hour from the time it started the docks for half a mile were on fire. Nothing could be done but to let the fire burn itself out. The Pacific Elevator Company's mammoth dock, the coal bunkers of the North Pacific Terminal Company, and the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's wharf, 400 feet in length, were destroyed.

The elevator contained nearly 500,000 bushel of wheat. The new plant of the Pacific General Electric Company, just arrived from Lynn, Mass., was standing in the yards of the terminal company on the cars, not having been unloaded. The machinery was of the most expensive kind, the most of which was destroyed, and the remainder badly damaged. Two hundred freight cars, 50 of which were loaded, were destroyed. The Oregon Railway and Navigation docks held 1,500 tons of freight, consisting of wood, salmon, general merchandise, and cement, all of which was destroyed with the dock. There were stored on the dock about 12,000 cases of salmon from the lower Columbia River and Puget Sound, awaiting shipment for the East. It was valued at about $40,000, and was partly insured.

THE HIGHEST AWARD.

Royal Baking Powder in Strength and Value 20 Per Cent. Above Its Nearest Competitor.

The Royal Baking Powder has the enviable record of having received the highest award for articles of its class—greatest strength, purest ingredients, most perfectly combined—wherever exhibited in competition with others. In the exhibitions of former years, at the Centennial, at Paris, Vienna and at the various State and industrial fairs, where it has been exhibited, judges have invariably awarded the Royal Baking Powder the highest honors.

At the recent World's Fair the examination for the baking powder awards were made by the experts of the chemical division of the Agricultural Department at Washington. The official report of the tests of the baking powders which were made by this department for the specific purpose of ascertaining which was the best, and which has been made public, shows the leavening strength of the Royal to be 160 cubic inches of carbonic gas per ounce of powder. Of the cream of tartar baking powders exhibited at the Fair, the next highest in strength thus tested contained but 133 cubic inches of leavening gas. The other powders gave an average of 111. The Royal, therefore, was found of 20 per cent. greater leavening strength than its nearest competitor, and 44 per cent. above the average of all the other tests. Its superiority in other respects, however, in the quality of the food it makes as to healthfulness, delicacy and wholesomeness, could not be measured by figures.

It is those high qualities, known and appreciated by the women of the country for so many years, that have caused the sales of the Royal Baking Powder, as shown by statistics, to exceed the sales of all other baking powders combined.

After Eight Weeks.

In the year 1883, near a certain village in Cheshire, several children were playing at horses in a hay-field. One of them while pretending to eat grass, got a piece about an inch long fast under and at the back of his tongue.

The boy, being unable to extract it himself, was afraid to tell his parents at the time, and so let it remain in. At the end of a week, under the tongue began to gather and became very painful. A doctor was called in who pronounced it to be an abscess. After eight weeks had elapsed, when bathing the face externally on the cheek near the ear, the end of a piece of grass became visible.

Upon its being seen it was extracted, and the so-called abscess began to heal, and in a short time was quite well, leaving only a scar the shape of a horseshoe where it was extracted. Thus the grass worked its way backwards behind the jaw, in the neck, and came out in the cheek.

"ALADDIN JR." entered upon its fifth and last edition at the Chicago Opera House on sunday night. There was an immense audience present and the new features were enthusiastically received. The novelty that appeared to meet with most popular favor were the tableaux entitled "Living Heroes of To-day," a series of living pictures painted and arranged by Frederick Dangerfield. These pictures, representing heroic firemen, miners, policemen, surf life savers and red cross nurses on the field of battle, were shown in a mammoth gilt frame and closed the performance. They proved to be decidedly the best thing in the way of living pictures that has ever been seen in Chicago. These tableaux are to be changed at Wednesday and Saturday matinees to representations of heroes and heroines from the nursery tales. The other new features in "Aladdin Jr." which seemed to meet with instant approval were the "Quadrille Eccentrique," the "Danse d'Armor," the "Canadian Dance," the Barcho and the new songs by Burke, Miss Raymond and Miss Crater. The business continues large. The engagement of "Aladdin Jr." is fast drawing to a close, and when it terminates Chicago and vicinity will say good-by forever to the most beautiful and magnificently staged spectacle ever seen in this Western capital. There will be no return date of the American Extravaganza Company in Chicago this year.

Marie Tavary, the well-known grand opera star is under the management of Charles H. Pratt this season. It will be remembered that Mr. Pratt was the manager who handled the tours of the late Emma Abbott with such success. The Tavary Opera Company is considered one of the strongest grand opera companies extant, and numbers 125 people. This company will inaugurate the regular season of the Chicago Opera House, following "Aladdin Jr." The repertoire includes: "Aida," "Trovatore," "Traviata," "Ritoletto," "Masked Ball," "Ernani," "Norma," "William Tell," "Faust," "Romeo and Juliet," "Huguenots," "L'Africaine," "Dinorah," "Don Giovanni," "The Magic Flute," "Martha," "Semella," "Mecha," "Lohengrin," "Tanhauser," "The Flying Dutchman," "Carmen," "Il Pagliacci, and "Cavalhoria Rusticana."

THINGS ARE BETTER NOW.

Mill Life as It Was Half a Century Ago.

Miss Matilda Davis, of Lawrence, Mass., recently began her 51st year as a weaver. Her reminiscences of mill life and labor, as told to a reporter, proved both interesting and amusing. Miss Davis was born in Woodstock, Me., in 1830, and began to "paddle her own canoe" when she was only 13 years old. She did housework for a while, earning 50 cents a week. Soon tiring of this, she entered a mill in native town as a spooler girl. For this work she received 50 cents a week and her board. At the end of a year she went to Dedham, Mass., to learn the art of weaving, and for fifty years she has followed this trade.

"When I look back," she remarked, "to the early days of my work, the long hours, the poor pay and rude conveniences of the mills, together with the rough corporation houses we were compelled to live in, I have no fault to find with the present condition of affairs regarding mill life and labor. When I first began work in Dedham we were paid off once in three months, and considered ourselves very fortunate when we made $2.50 a week.

"The corporation boarding houses of those times bore little resemblance to the comparatively comfortable ones of to-day. The food which was furnished us was poor in quality and scarce in quantity. The bill of fare never varied. Our breakfast consisted of fried potatoes, biscuits and doughnuts. The coffee was often sweetened with molasses, and the milk boiled in with it, to save putting milk and pitchers on the table. One day in every week we had bread and milk for dinner, and on the other days some kind of meat was given us. The suppers differed little from the morning meals. Oilcloth covered the tables. Chairs were considered an unnecessary luxury, and benches were therefore furnished for both dining and sitting rooms. Carpets were unknown to us; even the floors of the boarding mistress' private apartments were bare like our own.

"What sort of recreation did we have? Well, you see, after working fourteen hours a day we didn't think much about recreation, though we did sometimes attend singing schools, which was our chief form of amusement. Once a year a circus came to town, a little one-horse show. Circus day was the great event of the year to us mill girls, surpassing in its manifold attractions even Independence day. We had few holidays, and Christmas was not then kept as it is now."

"Hail to the Chief!"

This is half the title of an old song. The balance is, "Who in triumph advances." The public, the press and the medical profession chant this refrain as especially applicable to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, chief among American remedies and preventive for malaria, constipation, dyspepsia, liver complaint, nervousness, unquiet sleep, rheumatic twinges, and the troubles incident to advanced age. It is also universally recognized as a reliable tonic and appetizer. As a family medicine particularly suitable to emergencies it has no equal. The nervous, the feeble seek it in aid, and the happiest results follow. The convalescent, the aged and the infirm derive infinite benefit from its use. Against the influences of impure air, bad water, unaccustomed food, overwork and exposure it is a genuine preventive.

WEARINESS in women, their nervous, aching, worn-out feeling, comes to an end with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It restores lost strength; it puts new life into you; it brings you back into the world again.

It is a powerful tonic, as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, especially adapted to woman's delicate system. It builds up and promotes all the natural functions, and builds up, invigorates, and cures.

DR. R. V. PIERCE: Sir—My wife improved in health gradually from the time she commenced taking your "Favorite Prescription" until now. She has been doing her own housework for the past four months. When she began taking it, she was scarcely able to be on her feet, she suffered so from uterine debility.

I can heartily recommend it for such cases.
