

Distress in the Stomach

I had trouble with my stomach for a long time and could not get anything that would do me any good. Last February I had Inflammation of the stomach and was so bad for a week that even light food would cause me distress and vomiting. The doctor's medicine did me no good, so I thought I would try Hood's Sarsaparilla. When I had taken two bottles I could eat anything without having the least bit of distress. I have only taken five bottles and my general health is much better.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures Hood's Pills should be in every household.

The General's Cow. Some years ago, says a writer in Harper's Young Pictorial, a commanding officer of a military station, ordered the grass around the quarters to be protected while it was growing, gave strict orders to the sentries that no one except the cow should be allowed to step over it.

The next day the General's wife called upon some ladies, and wished to make a short cut, walked across the grass from one path to another. "No one to pass here, madam," said the sentry.

The lady drew herself up. "Do you know who I am?" she demanded of the sentry.

"No, madam," replied the impassive soldier, "I do not know who you are; but I know that you are not the General's cow, and nobody else is permitted to walk on this grass."

CZAR IS VERY SICK.

RUSSIAN OFFICIALS TRY TO KEEP IT QUIET.

Probable Effect of His Death on European Politics—Talk of His Successor—His Appearance Mentally and Physically Unsound—Prematurely Reported Death.

May Involve All Europe. The serious illness of the Emperor of Russia continues to alarm the whole of Europe. It is extremely difficult to get any correct news of the true condition of his Imperial Majesty, as only the most meager daily bulletins are issued. However, there is no disguising the fact that the Czar is very sick indeed. There is already any amount of speculation on what effect the Emperor's death will have on European politics, and the fluctuations of the money markets can be directly traced to this source.

In the houses of all Europe Saturday and in every center of finance on the globe there was more or less uneasiness about the reports that came from St. Petersburg that the Czar was dead. True, the reports were no sooner in circulation than they were denied, but denials from a source where suppression and mystery are the rule do not reassure entirely. And just such news has been expected from St. Petersburg, has been expected for many weeks.

Weeks ago Alexander III. prey to fears of assassination following the Peterhof plot of Aug. 6, half dead from dropsy and Bright's disease, his mind a shattered wreck, was carried in a enlisted the sympathy of many high in government circles. Through his efforts the Weather Bureau was organized in 1870, and Howgate was put at its head. Then Howgate began to be a prominent figure in Washington society. The elegance of his dinners and entertainments which even the President attended, not to speak of Cabinet officers and Senators, the splendor of his horses and equipages and the beauty of his home, all conspired to make him a conspicuous personage. He led the gayest of lives; he spent money lavishly, and he seemed neither to know or care how much he flung away.

At first all went on merrily enough; then came ugly whispers and before long such accusations were made that Howgate was forced to give up his position. An investigation was made and it was found that Howgate had pursued a systematic course of forgery, larceny and embezzlement and that his pecuniations reached the large sum of $750,000. On one of the numerous charges against him he was arrested, in prison Howgate was treated with extreme consideration and allowed a great degree of liberty. Among other privileges he was permitted to go home under an officer's care at stated times to baths. Howgate took advantage of this leniency and escaped, taking with him a young woman known as Nellie Burrill, with whom he had been living and she has been with him ever since. For six years they were fugitives, now traveling through the far South and now making their way through the dense and untrodden forests of the Northwest. Six years—years of fear and torment, six years of dread of punishment and suspicion of every man—were passed, and then as though wishing to end his suspense and give his enemies a chance to take him, Howgate and Nellie came to New York.

Strategy. Every town of any considerable size has its legends, more or less interesting. It may be added more or less true. Here is one reported by the Searsport News:

A farmer named Harrison was annoyed by bears that invaded his planted fields. Meeting a neighbor one day, he applied to him for advice.

"I'll tell you what to do," said the neighbor. "Bears are fond of sweets. Fill a trough with molasses and rum, and put it where they come into your field. They will drink it for the sake of the molasses, the rum will make them drunk, and in the morning all you will have to do will be to go out with an ax and knock them in the head."

It sounded like a good scheme, and Mr. Harrison put it into execution at once; and the next morning he went out with an ax. There was no intoxicated bear in his field, but only a very much intoxicated neighbor. He was tempted to knock him in the head, but thought better of it.

NICOTINIZED NERVES. The Tobacco Habit Quickly Broken and Nerves Restored—A Balm to Humanity.

A number of our great and most inveterate tobacco smokers and chewers have quit the use of the filthy weed. The talismanic article that does the work is reported not only in more cases than one. Irresistible. Book canvassers should take courage from a story told by an English lecturer on "The Art of Bookbinding."

A man of their profession had called at a house whose occupant met him with a growl.

"It's no use to me, I never read."

"But there's your family," said the canvasser.

"Haven't any family—nothing but a cat."

"Well, you may want something to throw at the cat."

The book was purchased.

Don't Offer a Reward For your lost appetite. All know that it is a valuable piece of personal property, but why so to the expense when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will restore it to you. A course of that unparalleled tonic and corrective not only restores a return of the relish for food, but confers upon the stomach the power to gratify appetite without unpleasant sensations afterward. For the purpose of quickening digestion, arousing a dormant liver or kidneys, and establishing regularity of the bowels, no medicine can exceed this genial family cordial, in which the pure alcoholic principle is modified by blending with it potent elements of the highest efficacy. And the very material of the medicine is a means of overcoming inactivity of any of the organs above mentioned, and, instead, the Bitters. This professionally sanctioned medicine remedies malarial and rheumatic ailments.

Do You Wish the Finest Bread and Cake?

It is conceded that the Royal Baking Powder is the purest and strongest of all the baking powders.

The purest baking powder makes the finest, sweetest, most delicious food.

The strongest baking powder makes the lightest food. That baking powder which is both purest and strongest makes the most digestible and wholesome food.

Why should not every housekeeper avail herself of the baking powder which will give her the best food with the least trouble?

Dr. Haines, of Rush Medical College, Consulting Chemist of the Chicago Board of Health, says: "Royal is not only the purest, but the strongest baking powder with which I am acquainted."

THE last weeks of "Aladdin Jr.," as it is produced at the Chicago Opera House, are announced, and it behooves those who have not seen this gorgeous production to do so at once, as it will not be seen in this city after the 20th performance. At a time when Mr. Henderson's characters are in a re-entrance engagement of this piece has been allotted to Lillian Russell, and it will be a genuine treat by when "Aladdin Jr." takes to the road. BUDS, Society buds, young women just entering the doors of society or women in chaperon, require the wisest care. To be beautiful and charming they must have perfect health, with all its attendant qualities—a clear skin, rosy cheeks, bright eyes and good spirits. At the period of the young woman is especially sensitive, and many nervous troubles, which continue through life, have their origin at this time. If there be any ailment, it should be promptly treated. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best restorative tonic and nerve in existence. It is a remedy specially indicated for those delicate weaknesses and derangements that afflict women at one period or another. You'll find that the woman who has faithfully used the "Prescription" is the picture of health, she looks well and she feels well.

In catarrhal inflammation, in chronic displacements of the uterus, in nervous debility, in bearing down sensations, in disordered stomach, indigestion, fatigue, etc., the trouble is surely dispelled and the sufferer brought back to health and good spirits.

"WOMAN'S ILLS." Mrs. W. R. BATES, of Detroit, Mich., writes: "A few years ago I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which has been a great benefit to me. I am in excellent health now. My only complaint was that I was troubled with 'woman's ills,' but by the use of 'Prescription' and benefited as I have been."

See John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mont., recommending Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to me. I can emphasize his statement. 'It is a positive cure for catarrh of the uterus as directed.'—Mrs. Francis W. Foster, Postal Control Press, Church, Helena, Montana.
