One hundred prominent men of Newark, N. J., sat down to a dinner of horse meat the other evening. The dinner was served up in all manner of ways. There were horse steaks and horse chops, horse pot roasts and baked horse, horse rib roasts and horse hash, horse liver, and horse soup. Of course there were other things, but no other meat entered the menu. The garnishings were of the best and most palatable, and there was no lack of that important part, the liquids, to wash down the dinner. Chef Davis prepared the dinner, and he pronounced it the finest dinner, to the eye at any rate, he had ever set before a party of diners. It was intended to prove horse flesh "proper eating," and the diners declared its purpose served.

LOOKING BACKWARD

Review of the Year That Is Past.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Epitome of the General News of the World.

Chronological Recital of All the Important Events in Legislative, Judicial and Commercial Circles—Startling Deeds of Crime—Stirring Incidents in Military Matters—Record of Disasters on Land and Sea—Devastation by Fire and Pestilence—The Year of '94 Made History Rapidly.

Below will be found a concise recital of all the events at home and abroad which go to make up the history of 1894. In America, as in Europe, there has been experienced a period of severe financial depression. The year was marked by the most stupendous disturbance of labor circles in the history of the country, necessitating the employment of government forces for its suppression. Political contests have been nearly as stirring as a national election. The world has been thrilled by tales of horror from devastating forest fires, and death has claimed many illustrious men. The year will long be remembered as one of the most notable of the century. Abroad, the theater of news has been principally in the Orient. There is at present raging the war between Japan and China, and to the astonishment of all civilized nations the island kingdom has worsted its mighty foe in every contest of note. Fort after fort has fallen before Japan's forces, and three separate armies are marching upon the capital of the Flowery Kingdom. The Chinese empire, if not fallen, is humbled, and has already taken initintory steps to sue for peace. Continental Europe has been at peace, and Russia mourns the death of her Czar.

NEW CURRENCY BILL.

SUBSTITUTE FOR CARLISLE'S PLAN INTRODUCED.

So Many Objections to the Old One that Mr. Springer and Secretary Carlisle Decide to Submit a New Measure—News Notes.

Some Important Changes.

After conferences between the Democratic members of the House Committee on Banking and Currency and with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury Mr. Springer introduced a substitute for the Carlisle currency bill. It is substantially a new measure, although some of the sections of the original measure are retained in the new bill.

The very important features make their appearance for the first time in the substitute. The main one will have the effect of allowing the national banking system to run along, without an arbitrary provision that banks must organize under the new system. The original Carlisle bill contemplated that all national banks must reorganize under the new plan. This would have required them to surrender the government bonds which now constitute the basis of their circulation. But the substitute does away with this imperative change.

The other important feature of the substitute is that it does away with the unknown liability of banks to guarantee the notes of all other banks. This feature of the original bill has been much criticised. It contemplated that if a national bank failed its notes would be paid out of its proportion of the general "safety fund" made up by all the banks. But if the assets and safety fund were insufficient to pay the notes of the failed bank, then the comptroller of the currency was to make a pro rata assessment on all the banks of the country. The banks said this prospective assessment shouldered them with an unknown risk. In effect it made them supply insurance on all the notes of banks in which they had no concern.

In view of these criticisms the substitute will do away with the assessment plan. The "safety fund" will be the limit of the joint liability of all the banks for the failure of individual banks. They will, however, be compelled to keep up this safety fund by more rigid provisions than appeared in the original bill.

The new bill is arranged so as to show the new features in parentheses. The first section is as follows:

"(a). That (so much of) all acts and parts of acts as required or authorized the deposit of United States bonds to secure circulating notes issued by national banking associations (or as required such associations to deposit or keep on deposit United States bonds for any purpose except as security for public money) be, and the same hereby are repealed (as to associations organized after the passage of this act); and such notes shall not contain the statement that they are so secured."

Section 2 is changed so that banks can not only deposit legal tenders to secure circulation, but also "currency certificates issued under section 5193 of the revised statues of the United States."

Section 3 is retained entire, except that its provisions are restricted to apply to national banking associations "taking out circulation under this act."

Section 4 inserts "the comptroller of the currency" as the officer to designate the place where notes are to be redeemed.

In Relation to the Safety Fund.

In section 5 provision is made for keeping up the safety fund, and in addition to the terms of the original bill it is provided that "the collection of said tax of one-fourth of 1 per cent. for each half-year shall be resumed and continued until the said fund is restored to an amount equal to 5 per cent. upon the total circulation outstanding. All circulation notes of failed national banks not redeemed on presentation to the treasurer of the United States or an assistant treasurer of the United States shall bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum from the date of the suspension of the bank until thirty days after public notice has been given that funds are on hand for their redemption, and such notes shall constitute a first lien upon all moneys thereafter received into the safety fund."

Section 6, allowing the Secretary of the Treasury to invest money in the safety fund in bonds, is the same as the original bill.

Section 7 is entirely new and takes the place of a section which has been eliminated. The new section is as follows:

"Section 7. That every national banking association heretofore organized and having bonds on deposit to secure circulation may withdraw such bonds upon the deposit of lawful money of the United States, now provided by law, and thereafter such association may take out circulation under this act and be entitled to all the rights and privileges and immunities herein conferred."

Section 8 specifies that the portion of the national banking act to be repealed is limited to so much of section 12 "as directs the Secretary of the Treasury to receive deposits of gold and to issue certificates thereon."

Section 9 is substantially the same as in the original bill.

Section 10, providing for State banks, is also the same as in the original bill, except that in the restrictions on State banks a new provision is made that the guaranty fund maintained by them may include "currency certificates issued under section 5,193 of the revised statutes."

"Section 11. (That any banking association organized under the laws of any State may deposit with the Treasurer of the United States legal tender notes, and receive certificates therefor in the manner provided in section 5,193 of the revised statutes of the United States and) the Secretary of the Treasury may, under proper rules and regulations to be established by him, permit such banks to procure and use in the preparation of their notes the distinctive paper used in printing United States securities; but no State bank shall print or engrave its notes in similitude of a United States note or certificate, or national note."

A Welcome Usher of '95.

The beginning of the new year will have a welcome usher in the shape of a fresh Almanac, descriptive of the origin, nature and uses of the national tonic and alterative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Combined with the descriptive matter will be found calendar and astronomical calculations absolutely reliable for correctness, statistics, illustrations, verses carefully selected, and other mental food highly profitable and entertaining. On this pamphlet, published and printed annually by the Hostetter Company, of Pittsburg, sixty hands are employed in the mechanical department alone. Eleven months are devoted to its preparation. It is procurable free, of druggists and country dealers everywhere, and is printed in English, German, French, Spanish, Welsh, Norwegian, Holland, Swedish and Bohemian.

Nearly Ten a Day.

Three thousand three hundred and forty-one ships, of 7,659,000 tons, passed through the Suez canal in 1893, yielding $38,000,000 in dues. As to the nationality of the vessels, the English were 2,405; German, 272; French, 130; Dutch, 178; Austro-Hungarian, 71; Italian, 97; Norwegian, 50; Ottoman, 34; Spanish, 2; Russian, 24; Portuguese, 10; Egyptian, 5; American, 3; Belgian, 1; Brazilian, 1; Japanese, 1.

HERRMANN, the magician, who comes to the Chicago Opera House next Sunday, Dec. 23, for a fortnight's engagement, including Christmas and New Year, brings with him his newest and latest illusions, "The Artist's Dream" and "Noah's Ark." These two sketches are described briefly in their way, as the first one is called a musical comedy and the second a marvel play. The first, with accompanying music and appropriate dialogue, tells the story of an artist who has painted the picture of his fair sweetheart, which comes miraculously to life before his very eyes. In "Noah's Ark" Herrmann, from a small square frame, which he holds in his hand, calls forth elephants, barnyard of birds and animals, and at last a female figure, emblematic of hope, bursts through the top. But perhaps the most expensive and elaborate of any of Herrmann's acts will be the "Asiatic Bank Mystery" and "The Columbian Transformation," which the conjurer will also present during his engagement. The paraphernalia for "The Asiatic Trunk Trick" alone will have cost a small fortune in itself. Mme. Herrmann will be seen in many new spectacular dance creations and, as a whole, will be as clever an accomplishment to her husband in his entertainment with whom she is so closely identified. Herrmann has also many new sleight-of-hand tricks and the entire entertainment is said to be newer and more elaborate than any ever given by the magician here before.

False Alarm.

The Russian newspapers recently spread the report that the Ministries of Agriculture and Imperial Lands intended to employ women in the work of their departments. The result was a mass of petitions from women and it took a denial in one of the official papers to convince the ladies that they had been disturbed themselves unnecessarily.
