 There will be a grand ball at Keplinger's hall on Wednesday evening Feb. 14, under the auspices of the Royal Neighbors of Dwight. Everybody cordially invited to attend. Supper will be served in the hall. Good music will be furnished for this occasion.
 Walker's Tonic is the link that picks up the vital force of man in his run down state and binds him to health and strength by recuperating the brain, regulating the action of the Heart and nourishing the Nervous System. C. V. Green, Braceville and A. K. Beltzhoover, Dwight.

There is a difference—a vast difference—between Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey and any other cough, cold or lung remedy. Besides cutting the phlegm and curing the cough or cold at once, it soothes the irritation, heals the bronchials and exhilarates the lungs. Sold by all good druggists. C. V. Green, Braceville and A. K. Beltzhoover, Dwight.
 Sunday evening Feb. 18, there will be a union meeting at the M. E. church at which time the pastor, Rev. Wm. Woolley will preach a sermon, commemorative of Washington's anniversary. The G. A. R. have voted to attend this service in a body and also the W. R. C. and the S. of V. to join with them.
 In all stages of Nasal Catarrh there should be cleanliness. As experience proves, Ely's Cream Balm is a cleaner, soother and healer of the diseased membrane. It is not drying nor irritating, and does not produce sneezing. Price 50 cents at druggists or it will be mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York. Upon being placed into the nostrils it spreads over the membrane and relief is immediate. It is an agreeable cure.
 Hon. A. U. Wyman, Ex-Treasurer of the United States, writes: "Having known of some remarkable cures of Omaha people effected by the use of Dr. Kay's Renovator and Dr. Kay's Lung Balm, I believe that these great remedies are worthy of the confidence of the public." No remedy has ever been discovered which cures so large a per cent of bad cases of stomach, liver and bowel troubles as Dr. Kay's Renovator. Send for proofs of thousands of cures. Sold by druggists at 25c. and $1. For free advice, samples and book, write Dr. B. J. Kay, Saratoga, N. Y. Sold by all druggists.

 DWIGHT, ILLINOIS.

Our Annual Sale of Muslin, Muslin Underwear and Embroideries will begin

MONDAY, FEB. 12, 1900.

Our order for Muslin Underwear was given to an Eastern factory in August of last year, before the very decided advance in Cotton Goods occurred, and we beg to say that many of the articles offered cannot be bought to-day at the prices we shall offer them to our trade, and further, we are of the opinion that the low prices we offer will not be met with again for at least two years, and possibly not for many years, certainly not before the processes of manufacturing are cheapened, as two years ago many thousand acres of cotton were left unpicker, as the low price of the raw material would not pay for gathering.

A Springfield lawyer, says the Ohio State Journal, has a son about ten years old and a daughter about twice that age. The boy has been around the courthouse a good deal with his father and the young woman has a steady beau. The other evening the young man passed the house and the young woman desired to speak to him. "Bobby," she said to her little brother, "won't you please call to Mr. Brown?" Bobby knew the state of affairs and he hurried to the front door and called out in the usual loud monotone of a court bailiff: "John Henry Brown, John Henry Brown, John Henry Brown, come into court!" Mr. Brown came in and Bobby withdrew to a safe place.

Obituary of Samuel T. Walkley, Late Captain Co. "B" 129th Vol. Inf.

We publish below notice and details of the recent death of the late Capt. Samuel T. Walkley, who from 1882 to 1885 was commanding officer of the Dwight Co. B, 129th Ill. Volunteer Inf. He will be remembered in kindness by all old Dwightites as a splendid neighbor and a man of commanding genius. Previous to entering the military service, Capt. Walkley was proprietor of the Dwight stone grist mill, having purchased it from his predecessors Messrs. Case & Bradbury. An exacting disciplinarian, "the boys" when lazing in camp thought him a little severe, but when in a tight place, with battle imminent, Capt. Walkley was in demand as a leader by every private in the regiment. This was because he was an intelligent, educated, capable and tried soldier, who knew no fear, and made no mistakes. His was, without doubt, the brain of the regiment and he should have been its colonel, but the fates did not so decree, and he struggled faithfully through to the end of the war, filling a niche altogether too small for his calibre.

One little incident is recalled by the writer that fairly indicates the fighting captain's makeup. It was at Peach Tree Creek, Ga., July 20, 1864. The army was crawling slowly forward in line of battle momentarily expecting an engagement through a sudden onslaught of the enemy or an opportunity to assume the offensive. Our pike line was almost a line of battle in itself. Constant firing had been going on all day. At noon we stacked arms under the brow of a hill, and on the bank of a creek to make coffee and snatch a bite of raw bacon and hard-tack. No soldier was allowed to remove his accoutrements. Our captain was on that day officer of the picket guard, or properly speaking, officer of the day. Suddenly from over the hill came a ominous roar of artillery, the ceaseless roll of musketry and rising above all was the flendish yell of the charging rebel army. Sooner than I can write it, our army was steadily moving up the hillside, each army seeking to reach the crest first as the point of vantage. Arrivals at the hilltop were almost simultaneous. A dogged resistance of perhaps ten minutes followed in which neither army gained or lost ground, then the confederates faltered and fell back, our own army clinching the opportunity into a victory. It was in the midst of the most desperate fighting that our captain, after being officially relieved of his picket charge, appeared to take command of his company, which up to that time had lost eight men killed and wounded in as many minutes.

Six foot four inches tall, straight as arrow, the lines of command standing out in every feature, conspicuous with the red sash of official assignment, we saw him bearing towards us waving hat on sword tip, and shouting in clarion tones, "Give 'em hell, boys." "Let no man waver," (he was not a profane man), and seeing a struggling detachment of the wavering rebels making for an opening in our lines on the left, he assumed command of companies B and G, wheeled their right with a rush, and in less than three minutes, two hundred rebel soldiers laid down their arms to one hundred Yankees and were prisoners of war. For this act of bravery, Captain Walkley was made Inspector General of the 1st brigade, 3d division 20th corps and assigned to duty on General (later president) Ben Harrison's staff and brevetted Major. Thus are the old veterans "moving to the pale realms of shade, where each shall take his chamber in the silent halls of death."

From the St. Andrews Bay, Florida, Buoy, of Dec. 28th, 1899:
 Samuel T. Walkley was born in Austintown, Ohio, April 23, 1818.

At the age of 24 he married Adelia Howe, Nov. 10, 1841, remaining in Ohio and carrying on a foundry business, one of the first established in that part of the country. In the year 1848, losing his wife, he left Ohio, and going to Beloit, Wisconsin, engaged in the mercantile business and on April 26, 1851, married Mrs. S. L. Currier. Continuing at Beloit until 1854, he migrated west, to the territory of Kansas, and with others laid out and created the town site of Topeka, now the capital of the state of Kansas.

He then went east and during the troubles in Kansas, bought the machinery for the first flouring mill built and operated in Kansas. Selling out his interest in the mill, he engaged in farming, and about the year 1864 took the preliminary steps towards the organization of a company for the construction of a railroad between Topeka, Kansas, and St. Joseph, Missouri, to connect with the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad at the latter place, and which is now known as the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad system.

There being a famine in Kansas in 1859, he sent his family to Illinois, he following them in the fall of the same year. In 1860, he, with his brother, engaged in the milling business at Dwight, Ill., where he remained until the civil war, or until August, 1862, when he raised a company of one hundred men and going as their captain, was assigned to the 129th regiment of Illinois Volunteer Infantry, the regiment seeing service for three years with General Sherman. After being discharged, he with his family returned to Kansas and resumed farming until 1866, when he went to the Indian Territory as assistant agent for the Keowa, Comanche and Arapahoe Indians for two years.

Upon returning home, his family having moved to Springfield, Missouri, he again engaged in the mercantile business, remaining there for several years, when he returned to Ohio, the climate in the west being too disagreeable.

As he grew older, finding the winters in Ohio too severe for him, he came to Florida in the year 1888, first locating at Farndale, where he took a homestead. As he was getting infirm, clearing and cultivating the new land was too hard for him and he moved to Cromanton, where he built and improved a place that belonged to his son, and there his family still reside.

He went to St. Andrews for medical treatment, but owing to the exhausted state of his system, it was without avail. He died December 19, and was interred in the St. Andrews cemetery. He leaves a wife and three grown sons. He was always honest and upright in his dealings with all mankind and was a Christian in precept and principle.

It's Easy To Take

Thin, pale, anemic girls need a fatty food to enrich their blood, give color to their cheeks and restore their health and strength. It is safe to say that they nearly all reject fat with their food.

is exactly what they require; it not only gives them the important element (cod-liver oil) in a palatable and easily digested form, but also the hypophosphites which are so valuable in nervous disorders that usually accompany anemia. SCOTT'S EMULSION is a fatty food that is more easily digested than any other form of fat. A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health. You can get it in this way.

We have known persons to gain a pound a day while taking it.
