Poor Old Granny Shankland says something about insane asylums in his Saturday issue. Granny is safe. He hasn't sufficient gray matter to work on. It is necessary to have been some time to become insane, so Shank is safe. A weak minded institution is what he needs.

Old Granny Shankland was around the street Saturday after the STAR AND HERALD came winning like a two year old kid with a sore finger, but since he sold himself and his alleged paper for a few dollars he has been a worse bore than ever. He hasn't sense enough to know no one wants him around, and that he is an eye sore in the community. He is finding out what other boodlers have found out and that is that while one may gain a few dollars to rattle in his pocket at the immediate time he sells himself, that those that buy him and everyone else has no use for him afterwards. The fount from which all of Shank's blessings have flowed has flown.
