Catarrh

Is a disease of the mucous membrane or inner lining of the nose, throat, lungs, stomach, bowels and other organs. It is caused by a cold or succession of colds irritating the delicate surfaces, and is promoted by scrofulous taints in the blood.

It is especially dangerous in persons having a predisposition to consumption.

In these and all other catarrhal cases, Hood's Sarsaparilla so thoroughly renovates the blood and restores strength that it permanently cures.

In fact, because of the character of the disease, and peculiar merit of the remedy, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only common sense treatment for catarrh.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Promises to cure and keeps the promise. No substitute for Hood's acts like Hood's—be sure to get Hood's.

CROWDS GREET HIM.

President McKinley Leaves Canton for Washington.

DEMONSTRATION ALONG THE ROUTE.

Thousands Gather to Cheer the Man Who Has Just Been Elected for a Second Term as President—Speaks at Salem, O.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 8.—President McKinley's trip from Canton toward the national capital has been one continuous ovation to the twice-elected head of the nation. At every stop there has been great outpourings of the people, business has been suspended, and many factories along the line have added their thousands of workers—men and women—to those who have joined in enthusiastic greetings.

The president has appeared at each stop, shaking hands from the rear platform, and making short speeches at the most important towns.

Mrs. McKinley has received her share of the popular tribute, men and women struggling to present her with flowers. Patriotism, the flag and the volunteers' uniform have figured everywhere, and the trip has been in the nature of a triumphal journey to the capital.

He Leaves Canton. The start from Canton was made at 1:35 p. m., amid the boom of cannon, the scream of steam whistles and the clamorous well-wishes of the president's townspeople. Mr. and Mrs. McKinley occupied the private car Olympia at the rear of the train, giving a broad platform, from which the president could greet the crowds and address them. The presidential car had been beautifully decorated with ribbons of red, white and blue, giving a wealth of color. The train arrangements were in charge of Mr. T. E. Stone.

The president made his first speech of the day when the train arrived at Alliance. The town had turned out en masse to meet him with bands and banners. Workmen from the potteries at Sebring came in their aprons, bearing transparencies showing their majesties. The crowd surged up to the train, to the imminent danger of those massed in front. When the president appeared, there were deafening cheers, to which he bowed and smiled acknowledgment.

In the big factory town of Salem the smoke of many stacks hung over the city and the myriad of workmen and working women gave the place the aspect of a hive of industry. A vast concourse of people lined the tracks. The tops of freight cars were used as points of vantage. Little girls bore big American flags. The drum corps was uniformed as United States volunteers.

A huge broom draped with yellow ribbons was carried at the head of the procession. Ladies struggled to throw bunches of chrysanthemums toward Mrs. McKinley. The screech of the factory whistles was deafening.

Another Speech. The president bowed his thanks, and when order was partly secured he said: "You are here to celebrate a victory won, not by a single party, but by the people of all parties. I go back to my public duties at the capital encouraged by your confidence, but deeply conscious of the grave responsibilities which your action of yesterday imposes upon me. I can only ask of all my countrymen, that you give me your support in the solution of the great problems that rest upon the United States; and I am sure that all of us will humbly petition the guidance of that Divine Ruler who has never failed this government through all its vicissitudes from its beginning to the present hour. I thank you, and bid you good afternoon." (Applause and cheering.)

At Other Points. At Leontonia and Columbiana there were like outbursts, crowds besieging the president's car. No speeches were made, but the president reached down and shook many a grimy hand. A drizzling rain began to fall, but this did not deter big crowds from turning out at East Palestine, Egan Valley, New Galilee and New Brighton. At Rochester 3,000 people braved the rain and darkness and gathered in a throng to the president during the momentary stop. Many of the crowd clambered up the rear platform after the train started and hung on until their turn came for a handshake.

It was pretty dark when the train reached Allegheny, but a big crowd was in waiting and a delegation headed by Mayor Diehl, of Pittsburgh, and Mayor Wyman, of Allegheny, clambered aboard. They were received by the president and warm greetings were exchanged. The president asked as to the results in Pennsylvania and evinced great interest when told that the majority would reach 300,000. He asked also as to Pennsylvania's congressional delegation, and received like satisfactory assurances. There were no formal speeches. Meantime the crowds outside were hurraing and the president bowed his acknowledgement. Owing to extensive depot changes it was thought to be risky to stop the train in the midst of a great crowd there, so the presidential cars were detached and run to the suburb of Shadyside, thus avoiding possible danger, but disappointing those who had gathered to give hearty greeting. The president greatly regretted the necessity of this move.

The Definition of a Friend.

An exchange says that some one recently asked the question, "What is a friend?" It is the fellow who will inconvenience himself for you. It is the man who will sit by your bedside when your frame has been touched by disease. It is the man who will come to you when the clouds are black, while the muttering thunder of misfortune grows along the sky. It is the man who will say: "Don't be discouraged. I see you are in trouble, let me help you out." It is not the man who will talk to you in a pleasant manner for policy's sake. It is not the man who will do you a kindness only when he feels he will get in return full value for services rendered. We would not give two cents for the man who would write his name in fancy letters in our friendship album if he would not visit us when we are in trouble.

Crouching

In every cough there lurks, like a crouching tiger, the probabilities of consumption. The throat and lungs become rough and inflamed from coughing and the germs of consumption find an easy entrance. Take no chances with the dangerous foe. For 60 years there has been a perfect cure. What a record! Sixty years of cures.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

soothes and heals the wounded throat and lungs. You escape an attack of consumption with all its terrible suffering and uncertain results. There is nothing so bad for the throat and lungs as coughing. A 25c. bottle will cure an ordinary cough; harder coughs will need a 50c. size; the dollar bottle is cheapest in the long run. "One of my sons was splitting blood with a high fever and was very ill. We could hardly see any signs of life in him. The doctors did him no good. But one bottle of your Cherry Pectoral cured him and saved his life." C. C. ANDERSON, Nov. 19, 1898. Fukuyama, S. Dak.
