The KITCHEN CABINET

"THROUGH-OTHER" NORA.

S A colleen, my Nora, Had been all before her, And they came from afar and a-neighbor, But Nora, ma chree, Is a thorough to me. Since her housekeeping ways are so queer,

For a cat-and-dog life, Is a "through-other" wife, And though, bedad, Nora's a daisy, I would really like A shillelah or pike, When Mavourneen is shiftless and lazy.

Now, wid order and care, There'd be room for us there, (Just Nora, myself and the pig). If she'd sweep a bit more, And keep things off the floor, Wan room wud be almost too big!

So I think some folne day, I'll be rumm' away, To Killarney, Tralee or Athlone, And me some prates and ewig, In a cabin we'll live all alone.

"Through-other" is an Irish expression meaning careless, untidy, shiftless. It is the same peculiarity which in the neighboring Scotland is called "ne'er-do-well." It has reference, especially, to domestic concerns. It is the chief fault of the Irish peasantry that they are not neat; not systematic; not orderly. And it is a fault in which they are, alas, not alone. Many a woman in all countries, everywhere, is there who forgets the salt, puts too much soda in the muffins; has ever a germ-laden dishcloth and pots with broken lids. All these are "through-other" tricks. They are fatal to the peace which should prevail in the household. The "through-other" woman works harder; her hours are longer; her lot is harder than that of the systematic, tidy, orderly woman whose work is managed with regularity, system and forethought.

There are many "Pats" in the world, and happy is the wife who gives them no excuse, by her house-keeping, to go running away,

In a cabin, wid prates and ewig.

Uncle Sam and the Doctor.

Dr. Wiley, the man of pure food fame, says that benzoate of soda is a harmful preservative. Yet, in defiance of this opinion, a recent order was given for 600 gallons of tomato catsup—intended for navy consumption—the same "to be preserved by benzoate of soda." Which looks very much as though Uncle Sam and his doctor disagree.

AN OLD TIME HANGING.

The Dark Day When "Old Jennie" Was Executed in Maryland.

"As dark as the day when old Jennie was hung" is one of the many quaint sayings that for generations has been used on the lower eastern shore of Maryland, but from the accounts that have been given by those who lived in old Jennie's day there never has been a day since that time as dark as the day on which she was executed for wholesale murder in the neighborhood in which she lived.

The old murderess was publicly hanged in 1815 in the old jail yard at Princess Anne, and all those who remembered that particular day have passed into the great beyond long ago. The murderess was a white woman, tall and angular, and it was said that she resembled what was popularly supposed to be a witch far more than she did the up to date woman of that day. In fact, local history records that she practiced witchcraft. No one ever knew where she came from, she having "dropped down" very mysteriously into the neighborhood, where she killed a family of four.

Old Jennie was not hanged on a scaffold. In those days murderers were executed with as little trouble and expense as possible. The wizen faced terror of old Somerset was placed in a cart drawn by two oxen and placed directly under a stout limb of an old oak tree which stood in the jail yard. The rope was fixed in rude fashion around her neck amid the burrachs of the crowd and the curses of the doomed woman, and when all was in readiness a bunch of fodder was placed ten paces from the oxen's heads, and they were given the word to start. Obeying the command, they made a bee line for the fodder and left old Jennie dangling at the end of the rope.

That day, it has been told thousands of times, was the darkest ever known in this section. Chickens remained on their roosts throughout the entire day, while candles by the score burned in the houses that the servants might see to do their work. The local scientists of that day were at a loss to account for the strange phenomenon, and the graphic descriptions which they gave of it and which were recorded years ago make interesting reading.

The darkies and superstitious whites of those days naturally thought that the end of time had come. A great many negroes declare today that the ghost of old Jennie may be seen stalking around on the edge of the woods near where she committed her crimes any time on a dark, cloudy night, and they are very careful not to encounter her—Oriole (Md.) ### Enumerators.

A civil service examination for candidates for census enumerators was held under the civil service board of the Dwight postoffice last Saturday. The board consists of Irwin Baker, C. V. Bower and Earl Losee.

There were thirteen applicants and the Frank L. Smith real estate officials kindly donated the rooms in rear of their offices for the examination.

Among those examined were John Hayes, Bert Terwilliger, of Dwight; T. W. Davis, of Nevada; Fred Ahern, Frank Gorman, Jno. Brown, Round Grove; Messrs. Morrow and Murphy, of Odell; two from Emington; one from each Long Point and Reading, and the only girl, Miss Laura Harwood, of Manville.

There were just thirteen, but no one seemed to be superstitious, and they were a good bunch.

The papers were opened and sealed up again in the presence of the applicants, and they, or anyone else, will not know their standing until they are notified by the civil service commission from Washington, D. C.

On April 15 the enumerators will begin making their calls from house to house and asking questions which will seem impertinent. Good citizens who have nothing to conceal will tell the census man all he wants to know, but bad ones will threaten to kick him out. But the census man is an officer of the government, and there is a penalty provided for refusing to answer questions or for interfering in any way with his work.

The population schedule will be 16 by 23 inches in size, printed front and back, with fifty lines on each side, one for each person enumerated.

The thirty-two questions are classified under thirteen groups:

The first is "Location," and under this head the enumerator must write the house number, street, and number in the family.

Under the subject "Name," for each person whose place of abode on April 15 was in the family being enumerated, the census taker is instructed to enter the surname first, then the given name and middle initial, if any. He must include every person living on April 15, 1910, and must omit children born since that date.

The third group, "Relationship," calls for a statement of the relationship which the person enumerated bears to the head of the family in which he resides.

The "Personal Description" group asks for the sex, color, or race—that is, whether, white, black, mulatto, Chinese, Japanese or Indian; age at last birthday; whether single, married, widowed or divorced; the number of years of present marriage, and under the subject of "Mother of how many children," the number of children each woman has had and the number now living.

The group relating to "Nativity" requires answers stating the place of birth of the person enumerated and also of his or her father and mother. The instructions are that if either is born in the United States the enumerator must give the state or territory, but if of foreign birth he must give the country.

The two questions regarding "Citizenship" apply to foreign born persons only, and call for a statement of the year of immigration to the United States, and, in the case of adult males, whether naturalized or alien.

The next question requires the enumerator to ascertain whether the person is able to speak English, or if not, to give the language spoken.

There are five questions touching upon occupation. The first calls for the trade or profession of, or particular kind of work done by the person being enumerated, such as, to quote the schedule, "spinner, salesman, laborer, etc."

The schedule further contains inquiries as to whether the person enumerated is a survivor of the union or confederate army or navy, whether blind in both eyes, and whether deaf and dumb.

The field work on the census must be completed May 15, 30 days after it begins.

Shadowed By Three is a Thriller

RECENT EXPOSE OF WHITE SLAVERY THE THEME OF PLAY.

No Presentation of the Last Decade Gives Better Insight of This Much-Talked-of Subject.

The denizens of the Chicago levee district sustained almost as great a shock when W. F. Mann first presented his unusual dramatic episode, "Shadowed by Three," as it did during the initial hours of the McCann investigation. The play was indeed a dramatic reproduction of the facts and conditions brought out in that sensational trial. Mr. Mann was a daily attendant at the McCann trial and with stenographer at his side noted down the salient points of the court proceeding. Indeed, so closely did he follow the developments of McCann's downfall that he has caused certain of the verbatim reports of the cross examination to be duplicated in the lines of "Shadowed by Three." The ringing periods of Attorney Wayman's denunciation of pandering and graft re-echo in the climaxes of "Shadowed by Three" with telling effect, that cause the righteous to applaud and the guilty minded to shrink with fear and conscious remorse.

CHICAGO THEATERS.

Olympic.

A remarkable gathering of clergymen of Chicago, the greatest ever assembled in this city for any purpose other than religious, met Monday afternoon, February 7, in the Olympic Theatre, where they were the guests of the management and Cohan and Harris to witness a special performance of "The Fortune Hunter."

With the opening of the play, and especially through its first act, where the fortune hunter starts on his marriage-for-money quest and is shown in the light of a dissipated youth, the audience of ministers were in critical mood and the laughs that come from regular lay audiences were missed by the actors. The character of the simple, lovable old druggist of the village in the second act won the clerics and as the story of regeneration of young Duncan through the finding of himself and with the stimulus of "work and church" was told, the clergymen warmed and while not in such boisterous manner as other audiences enjoyed the comedy with frankly expressed approval. Their applause was genuine and their expressions of praise after the performance were general and generous.

Chicago Opera House.

The problem of a funny play without recourse to suggestion has been solved by Sewell Collins who in the farce "Miss Patsy" now at the Chicago Opera House, has evolved a series of funny situations which absolutely convulse an audience without the slightest trace of risqueness or suggestion. In the play "Miss Patsy" the fun results from perfectly natural complications and the entire entertainment is vibrant with youth and beauty. Miss Gertrude Quinlan who has made an instantaneous hit as the blundering Miss Patsy, is surrounded by a coterie of female loveliness. The critics have discovered in Miss Josephine Brown the most perfect type of beauty of the season. Miss Frances Ring is the second of the three famous Ring sisters. Then there are in "Miss Patsy" Maude Earle, Gladys Turner, Beth Harkness, Jennie LaMont, Hazel Tucker, Adeline Dunlap and Annie Buckley. The male contingent includes Laurence Wheat, Thomas Meligan, Forrest Wiman, Dan Mason, W. E. Bonney, Arthur Hoyt and Frank D. Dee.

Auditorium.

With its wonderful cast of stars, headed by Eva Tanguay, said to be the highest salaried comedienne in the world, Ziegfeld's famous Revue "Follies of 1909" returns to Chicago to the Auditorium Theatre, after an absence of less than two months.

"Follies of 1909" is in two acts and eighteen scenes written by Harry Smith, with music by Maurice Levi, and staged by Julian Mitchell. Some of the big scenes are "The Court of Venus," "Hammerstein's Private Office," "Lobby of the Metropolitan Opera House," "Nell Brinkley's Bathing Beach," "The New York Polo Grounds," "Seigel and Cooper's Store," "In a Wheat Field," "The African Jungle," "At the North Pole," and "Hampton Roads at Night,"—in which the presentation of a battleship by each State of the Union to Uncle Sam is

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE

The Angel of the Crimea

In her home in the West End of London, passing the days of the late Autumn of her life in an invalid chair, lives a white-haired, sweet-faced, kindly-voiced noble woman, whom the world knows as Florence Nightingale. Born in 1820 in Florence, Italy, the daughter of a wealthy Englishman, under his loving tutelage she mastered the classics and literature, became a good musician and learned several languages.

She had a genius for helpfulness, a consecration to humanity that found expression in sweet ministrations of love and care of the sick and suffering. In nursing she saw a noble career for women and in 1849 went to a Protestant school for nurses, on the Rhine. On her return to England she assumed management of a sanitarium for invalid governesses. In 1854 England was roused to a white heat of indignation by the revelations of the horrors of the hospital service of the Crimea. Government incompetency, imbecile red tape, rascally dishonest and criminal neglect in treating the sick and wounded soldiers made mere war itself a paradise of mercy by contrast. Dante's Inferno seemed a mild bit of imagination in the face of the real horrors at Scutari, with four miles of beds huddled in one three-story house.

Florence Nightingale volunteered to lead a band of women to transform the hospitals in the name of humanity, and in November, 1854, with thirty-eight nurses she reached Scutari. Her magic touch brought order out of chaos; the sunshine, sweetness and soothing peace of woman's work filled the rooms; the ghastly mortality was reduced to a minimum; soldiers wounded and dying kissed the shadow of the angel of the Crimea as it fell across their countenances or reverently touched the hem of her garment as she passed near them. Often for twenty hours at a stretch she stood giving her orders—the noble leader of her little army of peace; and her kindness, wisdom, sweetness, energy, influence and inspiration seemed inexhaustible.

For two years she kept up the fight and with health impaired returned to England, shunning all publicity. The £50,000 testimonial tendered her by the people, she refused, but finally accepted to found a training school for nurses. By penny subscriptions the soldiers secured enough to erect a statue to her memory, but this, too, she rejected. For nearly fifty years she has been an invalid, and yet this "Grand Old Woman of England" at the age of eighty-sevens still serene, sweet, helpful and contented, with a name that will be hallowed as long as the British army and the British nation shall endure.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Dwight readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. Not another remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit.

Neil Corbett, E. Mazon Ave., Dwight, Ill., says: "I strongly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, having found them to be a reliable remedy. I hope that my endorsement will be read by some other sufferer of kidney trouble. I was afflicted with pains in my back for months when the kidney secretions became unnatural. I was led to believe that I had kidney complaint. I then got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and their use brought relief. I now have no cause for complaint." (Statement given May 8, 1907.)

A SECOND STATEMENT.

On January 21, 1910, Mr. Corbett was interviewed and he said: "You may continue to publish my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. I still use this remedy occasionally when my kidneys are disordered and I never fail to get the desired relief."
