was attempting to smoke and dropped a match in some hay which was stored in the corn crib, together with about 30 bushels of corn. The alarm was quickly given over phone, but when the neighborhood arrived the three buildings which stood close together were in a mass of flames and their attention was directed to saving a building which stood a short distance away. Blankets were fastened to the eaves and men stationed on the roof dashed water, which was carried in buckets and handed up by means of a ladder. But for the heroic work of those present no doubt the residence would have been destroyed as the wind was in the right direction to carry the flames.
