Report of Committee on Mines and Mining.

The following report of the Committee on Mines and Mining was read: State of Illinois, Livingston county, ss. Board of Supervisors, June Term, June 13, A. D. 1912.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Board of Supervisors:

Your Committee on Mines and Mining would beg leave to submit the following report on the matters before them:

That we recommend the appointment of William J. McMillan, of Reading, Illinois, as mine inspector for Livingston county and would recommend that he be allowed the minimum amount allowed by law ($2.00 per day for actual time spent as allowed by statute).

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Ed Miller,
B. F. Colehower,
J. W. Hoover,
A. F. Ruddy,
Henry Rudolph,
Committee.

It was moved by Mr. Zollinger that the report of the committee be adopted.

It was moved by Mr. Balbach as an amendment that in accordance with the vote of the Board at the last meeting that the names of all eligible candidates be presented to the Board, and a selection made by ballot.

Mr. Colehower called for the yeas and nays, and the vote was as follows:

Yeas—Crabb, Phillips, Schimmel, Hoover, Balbach, Lyon, McMillan, Abbey, Fienhold, Cleary, Riley, Melvin, Thomas, Gregg, Hummel, Flesner, Lewis, Walsh—15.

Nays—Frey, Dillon, Colehower, Miller, Harris, Ruddy, McDowell, Moate, Craven, Rudolph, Spafford, Corbett, Zollinger—13.

Years, 18; nays, 13.

The amendment carried, and Mr. Balbach presented the name of James M. Irvin, and Mr. Miller presented the name of William McMillan. Tellers were appointed and the ballot spread. The result was McMillan 16 and Irvin 15.

The vote then being on the original motion to adopt the report of the committee, the same was put and carried.

Resolutions of Respect.

The following resolutions in memory of the late John Kelly, a former Supervisor from Nevada township, were unanimously adopted by a rising vote, on the motion of Mr. Harris:

Memorial Resolutions.

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst John Kelly, late of Holgate, Ohio, who was at one time an honored member of the Board of Supervisors, from Nevada township, and

Whereas, by his integrity and his consistent application to his duties as a member of this board as well as by his upright and honorable conduct as a man and a citizen he has endeared himself to all; therefore, be it resolved, by the Board of Supervisors now in session, that we express in this public manner our appreciation of him as a man and public official, and pay this tribute to his memory, realizing that we have lost a friend and the public a faithful servant.

And be it further resolved, that we hereby extend to the wife and family our heartfelt sympathy in the loss of a kind and loving husband and father, and that these resolutions be spread on the minutes of this board and the clerk be directed to send a copy to the family of our late friend and brother.

B. Craven,
M. Cleary,
R. D. Gregg,
Committee.

Decorations of Court House.

Mr. Riley brought up the question of decorations for the court house during Friday and Saturday, the emancipation days. On motion of Mr. Balbach the matter was left with the Public Property Committee.

Adjournment.

On motion of Mr. Spafford the Board adjourned until the second Tuesday in September.

A true copy.

Mathematics in Ancient Egypt.

Among recent archaeological discoveries in Egypt is that of a roll of papyrus in an excellent state of preservation and dating from the year 1700 B. C. The roll has a long title, and the gist of it, suggests that the Egyptians were good at mathematics. Without doubt the Egyptians of that time possessed a knowledge of the elements of arithmetic. Numerous examples demonstrate that their principal operations with integrals and fractions were by means of addition and multiplication; but subtraction and division were not known in their present form. However, by a longer and more involved process they arrived at results pretty accurately. In the papyrus are found equations, for example: "Ten measures of barley are divided between ten persons in such a way that each succeeding person receives an eighth less than the person immediately preceding him. What proportion does each one get?" Another problem is: "There are seven men, each one of which has seven cats; each cat has eaten seven rats; each rat has eaten seven grains of barley; each grain of barley must have produced seven measures of grain. How much grain has been lost?" The papyrus contains also the calculation as to the area of a circle, the quadrature of a circle, and the cubic measurement of the pyramids.—Harper's Weekly.

Peculiar Affliction.

A case of "giants' disease," or acromegaly, is reported from Low Moor, Bradford, Yorkshire, England. The patient, Mr. Harry Faulker, of Morely-court, Low Moor, a man of thirty, states that he was a normal boy up to the age of fourteen, when his toes and jaw began to grow very large. He continued his employment on the railway at Bradford, but at twenty-one had to cease work, as his frame had grown so much and he had become weak. He was then seven feet tall and weighed over seventeen stone. The utmost caution had to be taken in walking, as his limbs came out of joint easily. He is still growing, and his left hip has become so large as to prevent him from standing upright. He is able to sit up for only a few hours each day, and is provided with a special chair of large proportions. He says that he is never free from pain, and has lost the sight of one eye. Mr. Faulker's parents are both about medium height, as are his brother and sister.

What the "Ads" Say.

Willis—Do you know that the mine we thought was no good has yielded $90,000 in the past two months?
Gillis—Who says so? Our company?
Willis—No; the prospectus of the company that is promoting the mine next to ours.—Puck.

His Disappointment.

"You say he was disappointed in love?"
"He certainly was."
"But I thought he married the girl he loved?"
"So he did. And then he found that two cannot live as cheaply as one."

SPURNS FILTHY LUCRE

ONE MAN FOUND WHO DOES NOT CARE FOR MONEY.

Lure of Comfortable Home, With Greenbacks in Profusion, Unable to Decoy Joseph Flusser From the Life He Loves.

If you were shoveling coal and getting no pay for it and sleeping nights under a wharf and getting such meager bits of food as just happened to fall your way and your brother should come along and discover you after a long, long search and take you by the hand and tell you that he had $2,000 for you and a good home and plenty to eat, would you run away? Then, if running away, that brother should ask the judge to declare that you were crazy, wouldn't your brother have good ground for his move?

That's the situation presented in the singular case of Benjamin Flusser, who keeps a furniture store at 214 Springfield avenue, one of the main business streets of Newark, N. J., who has asked the court to look into the state of mind of his brother, Joseph, who has been sent to the detention ward of Bellevue hospital, New York, because he runs away from money which almost any man will chase for miles and lose his breath over and cheat and lie and scheme and sell gold bricks for. Benjamin had been looking for Joseph since his father died on November 25 last leaving an estate of $14,000, of which $2,000 was Joseph's share. Benjamin was walking along Grand street, New York, when he ran across Joseph busy shoveling coal into a cellar from a sidewalk.

When Benjamin told him what had happened, Joseph said: "I don't want anybody's money; I hate money; give it away and please go away and let me work. I know I am your brother, but I do not want money. I am working; so go away and let me finish my job."

"My brother cannot be in his right senses," says Benjamin. "He will not sleep in a home and has a place under the Williamsburg bridge. He hates to be in a home and won't work in a store. I want to give him a good home, and I could get him a good job, but he will stay with nobody. He runs after wood and coal carts until they are ready to be unloaded and then he helps."

"Sometimes they give him ten cents, sometimes 15 and maybe a quarter. They say he will not take a quarter, saying he does not want any one's money, while lots of times he works and then goes away without looking for any money or waiting for it."

The money-hating brother is forty-four years old and came from Austria. Before leaving Europe he was one day leaning over a bridge watching barges below, when the rail against which he leaned snapped and he fell into his head many feet below, striking a pile of lumber. After that he was semi-conscious for six months, and did not recover his mental or physical strength for a year. That was 28 years ago.

With two of his six brothers, Benjamin and Max, the eccentric one came to Newark. He worked with his brothers for a while, left them and worked in Salomon's tannery for four or five years. This was the longest he had ever stayed in one place, and he had saved several hundred dollars.

The Chicago World's Fair then was advertised and Joseph went to the fair. He lost all his money and became lost to his brothers. They looked for him in Chicago, traced him to various parts, and finally found that he was in New York. From time to time they were told that he had been seen over there, and they went to look for him, but without success.

Max Flusser, a broker, died in Newark, November 25, leaving $14,000, of which $10,000 was in cash and $4,000 in second mortgages. Benjamin Flusser is the administrator of the estate, and, as he says $2,000 is Joseph's share, he wants to protect his brother and put him in some home or institution where he will be cared for. This is the $2,000 that Joseph spurns.

Such a Dunce of a Cook.

Philander C. Knox, secretary of state, is a particular man about the food he eats. In fact, if the dishes do not suit him exactly his appetite fades away to nothing. One day in New York, being in a hurry, he rushed into a cheap restaurant and ordered roast beef. To his intense disgust he found that the beef was not good and immediately proceeded to enunciate a well-developed roar.

To the proprietor, who hurried up, Mr. Knox exclaimed:

"What do you mean by serving spoiled beef?"

"It's that bone-headed cook of mine," said the proprietor. "I told him to cut off that spoiled part before he served the beef!"

Whereupon Mr. Knox lost his appetite for a week.—Popular Magazine.

Golden Eloquence.

"I understand that you arranged the formation of your big trust at a banquet."
"Yes," replied Dustin Stax, "it has long been known that money talks. But it remained for us to develop its capacities as an after dinner speaker."

Queer.

"Women are queer creatures," he remarked sagely.

"What's the matter now?"

"I've noticed that the bigger the meal my wife gets the less she eats herself."

IN THE LAND OF COURTESY

Travel in Spain Made a Pleasure Despite Some Small Physical Discomforts.

When the moment for departure has arrived, the train announcer in a Spanish railway station chants, "Senores viajeros al tren-en!"—"Gentlemen travelers to the train!"—In a rhythmic phrase so weird, foreign and musical that, as Mr. Harry Franck declares, it "sinks into the soul like a voice from the abysmal past."

But now as ever, the Spaniard is more polite than punctual, and the gentleman travelers need not hurry. Their train will not. In one of the rare bits of travel by rail that diversified his "Four Months Afloat in Spain," Mr. Franck reached the station a minute or two after the platform gate was locked.

"The train I had hoped to take had, officially speaking, departed. A railway hanger-on in rags and hemp sandals, I observed, climbed the iron pickets and shouted a word to the engineer. Then, beckoning me to follow, he trotted back and rapped authoritatively on the closed window of the ticket office.

"'Senor,' he said, as the agent looked out, 'be kind enough to sell this caballero a ticket.'"

"The train is gone," answered the agent.

"Not so, señor!" replied the bundle of rags, haughtily. "I am having it held that this cavalier may take it."

"Ah, very well," responded the official; and having sold me the ticket, he handed to the hanger-on the key of the platform gate. As I passed through it, the latter held out his hand, into which I dropped a copper.

"Muchisimas gracias, caballero," he said, bowing profoundly. "And may your grace forever travel with God."

The third-class carriage, "a bare wooden cell of the size of a piano crate," was packed with ten persons, and with all the bags and chattels under which mine of them had been able to tatter to the station. The heap, placed between the two plank benches, equaled a cartload, and was crowned by a crate of cackling hens.

Yet despite undeniable physical discomforts, the delightful manners of the peasant travelers made the journey agreeable. The talk was general and merry; nine times he was invited to share a fellow traveler's lunch; each passenger dropped at a way station departed with the benedictions of his fellow-travelers.—Youth's Companion.

Walnut for Gunstocks.

A number of attempts have been made by gun manufacturers to obtain walnut from the United States for gunstocks, but the wood has invariably been found unsuitable for the high class guns, and it has not heretofore been used for guns of poor quality. The difficulty is not in the strength of the wood, but in the color, which is dark brown, with none of the yellow and light brown streaks that are found so attractive for gunstocks. The walnut that has been used for British gunstocks has come from Italy, Switzerland and France. It is said, however, that the last tree suitable for gunstocks in Italy has apparently been cut, so that the supply is now French, but the prices for the French walnut are going up so high that they may within a few years become prohibitive. The French walnut is now particularly in demand for veneering purposes, it being found more profitable, as a rule, to cut it for veneer than to sell it for gunstocks. Thus it is quite likely that a situation will develop where American walnut gunstocks will be in demand.

How Diviners Are Guided.

Frau Tukory, the wife of a well-to-do Hungarian land owner, who is said to have a special talent for discovering minerals with a divining rod, describes in a Budapest newspaper the different sensations which she experiences.

When searching for a lost vein of silver near a mine in Germany belonging to Professor Pfabl, of Bonn university, she says she felt violent twitches in her right arm. This was a sign to her to turn to the right, and a few yards further on shooting pains in her arms and breathlessness told her that she was above the spot. The vein was found the next day near the surface.

On the other hand, when she discovered petroleum in Hanover, she had a feeling as if her head were being bound tightly with a cloth. Frau Tukory first made a name as a diviner by discovering coal on M. Jan Kubelik's estate in Bohemia.—Vienna Correspondence London Standard.

World-Famous Institution.

Lloyd's recently celebrated its centenary in London, but this does not mean that this great organization for collecting maritime intelligence is but a hundred years old. Its agencies through which every coast in the world is jealously watched were established in November, 1811, but Lloyd's goes back to the seventeenth century when underwriters used to meet at Edward Lloyd's coffee-house, in Tower street, to transact business and exchange information. In 1774 the institution was moved to the Royal Exchange, where it has since remained.
