The November Woman's Home Companion.

Woodrow Wilson, democratic candidate for the Presidency, contributes to the November Woman's Home Companion an interesting article which is really a message to women. In it he develops the idea that those with whom we entrust our government at Washington ought, as he expresses it, to "keep house" for the whole people.

Mr. S. Seymour Thomas made the picture of Governor Wilson for the cover. It is a study he made for his own use in painting a portrait of the Governor which is not yet finished.

The November Companion contains many other entertaining special articles, among which are :"Women of the Campaign;" "The Girl in the Small Town;" "A Successful Stepmother;" "A Patient's Account of Days in the Hospital;" and "The Training of a Child."

Fiction is contributed by Justus Miles Forman, Kathleen Norris, Isabel Gordon Curtis, Beulah Marie Dix, Ward Muir and others.

In the household, fashions, cooking, home decorations and handicraft departments special attention is given to practical suggestions for Christmas—how various kinds of attractive gifts can be made, economically.

THEN AND NOW.

Kewanee Star-Courier: Down in Golden there is a country merchant who handles buggies, as many country merchants do. The other day a young man came in and asked to look over his line. He selected one that seemed to please him and asked the price. The merchant replied promptly that it was $65.

"Gee!" ejaculated the young man. "You sold my dad one of the same make and almost exactly like it for $50."

"Did I? I know I sold him one of these buggies, but I do not recall the price. Do you remember about when he got it? If you can tell me I'll look it up." The young man thought it was about sixteen or eighteen years ago, so the merchant, referring to his books, replied:

"You are right. I did sell him one of the same make and charged for it $50. Your father paid it with 300 bushels of corn. Now, I'll tell you what I'll do. You bring me 300 bushels of corn and I'll sell you this buggy for $65; you may hitch on behind it a wagon worth also $65; behind that I will hitch a mower worth $45; and to that I will attach a cultivator worth $30; and to that I will tie a baby carriage worth $10."

That is the difference between free trade times sixteen years ago and protective tariff now. There are things in the tariff schedule that need changing, but does anybody want a situation like that of free trade days?

WHAT ROOSEVELT SAID.

"Mr. Taft can be trusted."

"I believe with all my heart that nowhere within the borders of our great country can there be found another man who will as vigilantly and efficiently as Mr. Taft support the rights of the workingman."

Mr. Taft is "the true friend of no class, but of the people as a whole."

"He has incurred the bitter hostility of the bigoted."

"During the ten years of my intimate acquaintance with him he has been one of the men upon whose judgment and aid I could always rely in doing everything possible for the cause of the workingman."

"There is in him not the slightest tinge of weakness."

"The honest man of means can feel safe in his hands."—Theodore Roosevelt, Sept. 9, 1908.

If there is one body of men more than another whose support I feel I have a right to challenge on behalf of Secretary Taft it is the body of wage-workers of the country. A stauncher friend, a fairier and truer representative, they cannot find within the borders of the United States. He will do everything in his power for them except to do that which is wrong; he will do wrong for no man and therefore can be trusted by all men. —Theodore Roosevelt.
