The matter of closing their stores at 6 o'clock in the evening commencing January 1, is being discussed by the Dwight merchants. This custom was followed last year with great success, and can be done again this year just as well as not. It gives both merchants and clerks a chance to have a little time to themselves, and the customers, when they once understand the stores will close at six, will find time to do their shopping prior to that hour.

It has been a custom of Mr. Oughton to do this every year, and he gives out most of this meat to friends about Dwight. He has one of the most beautiful homes in Livingston county, surrounded by an extensive and well kept park which is thrown open to the public most of the time. Mr. Oughton has been connected with the Keeley Institute at Dwight practically since it was established and much of the world-wide success of the Keeley Cure is due to him. He is a broad-minded gentleman, liberal in his views and of kindly nature. Such a man as has made the world better by living in it and has not trampled upon the rights of others.—Fairbury Blade.

KISSEL KAR

"Every Inch a Car"

Wide range of throttle control makes gear changing unnecessary in all ordinary driving—you can drive "on high" as fast or as slow as you want to go—the Kissel Kar takes the hills on "high" at easy speed, without rushing.

The elimination of sharp joints and corners, the outboard of the panels—the general moulded effect of the 1913 bodies with the generous wheelbase emphasizing the long, low lines, give the Kissel Kar unsurpassed dignity and individuality.
