Rudolph Fox, of Pontiac, spent Wednesday evening in this city looking after some business matters and also calling on relatives.

Dr. Chas. Hamilton was in Quincy, Illinois, the first of the week and on Tuesday made an address under the auspices of the Sunday School Union.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rabe, of Chicago, and the former's sister, Lucy, who has been visiting them came down from Chicago Friday for a short visit.

You ought to, and we want you to, attend the service at the Methodist Episcopal church, if you are not attending elsewhere. Meet with us at 9:30 next Sunday morning.

Dr. Chadz Bell went to Chicago, where he will attend a meeting of the Alumni Dental Clinic to be held in that city today. During his absence from the city his office will be closed.

Louis Dierk has taken rooms over Hahn's Grocery Store and has fitted up a studio and photograph rooms there. This gives him more commodious quarters and a better business place than he had previously.

The new adding machine in the office of Frank L. Smith has been attracting a great deal of attention the last week. This probably is the only adding machine in central Illinois that is operated by an electric motor.

News was received yesterday of the death of Miss Anna Burke at the Habneman hospital in Chicago, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis the first of the week. The funeral will be held in this city Monday afternoon.

The new automobile numbers are now ready for delivery and the laws for the registration of all machines, which became effective last year and with which auto owners who have never before registered their machines will have to comply, will be strictly enforced. Many people who have machines now did not have to register until the first of the year. The law is very drastic and heavy fines can be assessed against those who are negligent in complying.

The third grade children in Miss Edborg's room wrote some very good reproductions of the story of "The Pied Piper of Hamelin." Ray Zingrebe's was an excellent story and is printed here to show what the children can do.

The Story of The Piper.

Once upon a time there were so many rats in the town of Hamelin that the people thought they would have to move away. They swarmed in the houses, they ate everything that came their way.

One Saturday all the people went to the mayor to tell him to drive away the rats. But he said, "What can I do?" "Well try, we pay you every year," said the people. While they were talking they heard somebody knocking at the door. "Come in," said the mayor.

Then a strange man came walking in and walked up to the mayor. "You want to get rid of the rats, don't you? I charm anything under the sun," said the stranger. "I can charm birds that fly in the air, clouds in the sky and fish in the sea."

"Can you charm rats?" said the mayor. "Yes," said the man.

"I will free you of your rats for a thousand pieces of gold?" "A thousand! I will give you five thousand." "All right."

So the piper went out and began to play. All the rats in the town followed him down to the river.

Then the piper went down to the edge of the river and all the rats jumped into it.
