"RESULTS" ALL THAT COUNT

Advancement in Business Office or Factory Seldom Has Much to Do With Personal Matters.

It frequently happens that when one receives a raise in wages or is otherwise advanced that one who is left behind may say of the promoted one, "He (or she) thinks he is better than I am."

Of course, it may be that the successful one only "thinks" he is better. It may be a case of conceit; it may be an unjust advance. Such things do happen. But more likely than not you as a critic overlook the very thing for which the other was advanced. It is possible, it is probable, that in the advancement all the characteristics that you do or do not like in the other were overlooked. The foreman, superintendent or employer who did the promoting may have never given thought to the lighter characteristics of the fortunate one. He simply measured results; he just got down to the "solid rocks" of the quantity and quality of goods made, delivered, packed, sold, or the letters written, accounts kept or whatever the work of the "better" one was.

You can save a great deal of time and hasten your own advancement by measuring success through results and not through personal peculiarities. Try to forget the personal popularity or unpopularity of one advanced, and to be equally successful find out what he or she does; do not bother about what he or she thinks he is—Exchange.

MADE IT MATTER OF RECORD

Mark Twain Bound to Satisfy His Better Half That He Had Obeyed Her Injunction.

Samuel L. Clemens immensely admired Grover Cleveland, also his young wife, and his visits to Washington were not infrequent. Mrs. Clemens was not always able to accompany him, and he has told us how once (it was his first visit after the president's marriage) she put a little note in the pocket of his evening waistcoat, which he would be sure to find when dressing, warning him about his department. Being presented to Mrs. Cleveland, he handed her a card on which he had written, "He didn't," and asked her to sign her name below those words. Mrs. Cleveland protested that she couldn't sign it unless she knew what it was he hadn't done; but he insisted, and she promised to sign it if he would tell her immediately afterward all about it. She signed, and he handed her Mrs. Clemens' note, which was very brief. It said:

"Don't wear your arctics in the White House."

Mrs. Cleveland summoned a messenger and had the card she had signed mailed at once to Mrs. Clemens at Hartford.—Albert Bigelow Paine, in Harper's Magazine.

You Don't Yawn When Sleepy.

A good, wide, open-mouthed yawn is a splendid thing for the whole body, says a hygienist. A yawn is nature's demand for rest. Some people think they yawn only because they are sleepy. But this is not so. You yawn because you are tired. You may be sleepy also, but that is not the real cause of your yawning. You are sleepy because you are tired, and you yawn because you are tired. Whenever you feel like yawning, just yawn. Don't try to suppress it. And, if you are where you can stretch at the same time that you yawn, just stretch and yawn. This is nature's way of stretching and relaxing the muscles. Indeed, if you are very tired but do not feel like yawning, there is nothing else that will rest you so quickly as to sit on a straight-backed chair, and lifting the feet from the floor, push them out in front of you as far as possible, stretching the arms, putting the head back, opening the mouth wide, and making yourself yawn. Those tense nerves will relax, the contracted muscles will stretch and the whole body will be rested.

Peanut as a "Civilizer."

The peanut seems to be playing the part of "civilizer" in some of the colonial districts of Africa. Traders give a negro a bushel of nuts for seed on condition that he returns four bushels from his crop, and since the yield in good years is twenty fold, the black man generally has a surplus that he can sell at the rate of a shilling a bushel. From a single station in Senegambia there were shipped in one year 29,000 tons. Small boys and scientists have long been in agreement as to the value of the peanut; now statesmen also wish to do it honor, since it seems likely to lead the native African into the paths of agriculture.

Shows Direction of Sound.

A machine has been recently granted a patent by the United States patent office covering a method of determining the direction of a sound wave or of locating a source of sound, and in doing this the waves emanating from such source are divided and the divided parts are compared by bringing first one part and then another through a common conductor. He employs an apparatus including two diametrically opposite receivers, the direction of the source of the sound waves being determined by stopping one of the said receivers, thus indicating into which of the receivers the particular sound wave was received.

J. W. Keys, paving contractor of La Salle, who was awarded the contract for laying the brick pavement in this city this year, arrived here Thursday with his entire equipment consisting of horses, mules, scrapers, wagons, etc., and work on the job will be started immediately. It will require about three and a half months to complete the work.

Large Number Attend Free Lecture.

The free illustrated lecture given in the Opera House Tuesday evening by John I. Gibson, secretary of the Western Michigan Development Bureau, a Michigan corporation, proved to be very interesting and was attended by a large crowd. More than 100 beautiful stereopticon views of western Michigan were shown and spoken of by Mr. Gibson, who proved to be a very able and interesting speaker. Two reels of moving pictures were also shown.

Death of Streator Resident.

John Solomon Baer, an old and well known citizen of Streator and father of W. J. Baer, who is manager of the office of the Central Union Telephone Company in this city, died Wednesday morning at the family home in that city of ulcers of the stomach. The funeral was held in Streator Thursday and burial was made in the River-view cemetery.

Card Party.

A card party was given last Friday evening by Miss Beryl Vickery at her home on West Seminoles street. About twelve guests were present and the evening was spent playing 500. At a late hour dainty refreshments were served after which the party disbanded.

Poetry and Music.

If I had to live my life again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once every week; for perhaps the parts of my brain now atrophied would thus have been kept active through use. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness, and may possibly be injurious to the intellect, and more probably to the moral character, by enfeebling the emotional part of our nature.—Charles Darwin.

Meddling Stage Directors.

In a recent lawsuit regarding the ownership of a play a stage director testified that in thirty-two years' theatrical experience he had never heard of a play being produced as originally written. "The chief duty of a stage director," he said, "is meddling with manuscripts. I have even heard of stage directors who tried to improve on Shakespeare by revamping his works."

Beads Like Amber.

Beads which look rather like clouded amber, but which have the quality of wood, are picked from the Chinese Jinko fern; they are pierced and strung for necklaces or long chains; they are said to obtain a natural polish like ivory with a little wear, says a New York Times writer. They are fairly light in weight and cost so much per bead, so that the string is priced according to length.
