ISLE OF PINES.
 Santa Fe villages, (only a pleasant walk from either.) It occupies a permanent concrete and stucco building, has two pools, marble lined, with dressing rooms. Convenient for all visitors, said to have one hundred and forty years' reputation as a most beneficial water for health producing qualities. Temperature of each natural is about ninety degrees.
 Game throughout the Isle is limited to a few deer and several varieties of pigeons. Parrots are a native, over two thousand were exported last year, secured by trapping. They are smaller than the Mexican bird and have equally fine plumage. In the wild state they display no feature of imitation, manifest no trouble in walking or moving by flocks. When tamed they never fly and rarely step without support of their beak. Their only natural song is a piercing squawk, a combination of guinea hen and peacock. An exhibition of wild wisdom versus tame tolerance.

Neuva Gerona, the principal and oldest village, was made the capital in 1826. Today it has about 1500 population, with only a scattering American representation. The buildings are of Spanish architecture, one story, bright colored stucco, red tiled with pillared porticoes. This is the official residence of the present "Alcalde," chief officer under the Cuban Government, a mulatto elected in March for four years, the Americans not having any voice in the selection.

Here J. A. Miller represents the land business. After several years' experience he selected and secured the Santa Ana tract a few miles out and is now making some excellent improvements and sales to permanent residents. A few substantial stucco homes are occupied and some others in course of construction. Cultivation seems to be a future consideration.
 Charles S. Brown, Los Indios, is a holder of large tracts on the south side. His little settlement has an attractive appearance. The Los Indios dock, the only landing point except Neuva Gerona and Jucaro, is four miles away. As the years roll by and fruit prospects materialize, a great future is predicted.

Hammond, Hammond and Baker of Columbus, Ohio, four years ago established the settlement of San Pedro on their 12,000 acre tract in the west valley. They made some good improvements, thirty room hotel, school house, office building and individual residences, the finest frame structures in any settlement; built several substantial bridges, miles of good roads and are erecting a large packing house.

Their promotion scheme includes sales of ten to thirty acre tracts for practical fruit groves, giving a contract to clear, plant, cultivate and care for four years. Two hundred and ninety of these sales represent 800 acres in fruit culture. The several departments of their industry are in charge of competent, practical artists and form the best equipment I have seen for fruit development. They recently purchased another tract of 3600 acres.
 Robert Irwin Wall of Evanston, Ill., is the chief land man at Santa Fe, owning in connection with two land companies large tracts in the vicinity. His residence, one of the most elaborate on the Isle, occupies a prominence in the centre of fifty acres adjoining the villages; marble tile and stucco construction, mahagua interior finish, a single thirty-foot story with eighty-foot porches surrounding a "Patio." Mr. Wall seems to have some exalted anticipation regarding future prosperity in preferring to hold his tracts out of the present market. Possibly his hopes are in annexation.

Santa Barbara has the most prosperous settlement, an excellent hotel, smart town, with several small though livable frame cottages on twenty to forty acre tracts. Oranges and grape fruit just coming into bearing. Vegetables in abundance. The pine apple crop to be harvested in next six weeks of car load visions. Twelve to twenty pounds is no unusual weight. I saw a green one of sixteen pounds.
 McKinley is another live settlement, where energetic land dealers show their ability to successfully represent fascinating fruit growing possibilities for future fortunes.

C. M. Johnson of Havana, Cuba, the original Isle of Pines' land man, made his first purchase fourteen years ago and is still a large owner. He had the honor of escorting our Secretary of State over the Isle on his recent visit, an auto-tour which I later duplicated and during which we both wisely refrained from a national solution of the annexation problem.

Near the center, T. M. Sweatland of Cleveland, Ohio, has a tract of 12,000 acres, known as San Francisco Heights. A prominent mound is occupied by his residence and grounds, the finest and most slightly location for a view of his estate from pillared porches both front and rear. Sunken gardens with tropical trees, plants and flowers form an attractive feature. His sales are exclusively to parties who join him in one hundred acre solid tracts of fruit grove planting in which he assumes one half of the investment. Three of these tracts have two and three years groves and others in process of clearing and planting. The usual method of fruit development is the purchase of a ten acre tract, making contract to clear and plant with two year nursery stock, cultivate and care for four years. The prospective income then dependent upon the crop, transportation and market.

Considered generally outside of climatic conditions, Cuba presents little encouragement for American homes under the present Cuban shack occupation and government, through social association or civilized harmony.
 The Isle of Pines, with four-fifths American ownership, even though subject to Cuban control and government, has established American settlements, which connecting links of occupied cultivation may eventually cover the entire Isle. The climate offers superior features of comfort and fully protects citrus fruit, tobacco and vegetable production.
 This was my fifth winter in Cuba and first on the Isle of Pines. During my visit on the Isle, I was fortunate enough to meet with most agreeable people in all the settlements, who made special effort to show every courtesy a tourist traveler could wish. "Americans are not contented."
 No matter where they chance to dwell, The air they hear is sweeter scented, In some far distant Cuban dell, Across the Gulf the fields are greener, And 'tis claimed the fruit more fair; The groves and homes are so much cleaner
 While the fish grow larger over there, Later they learn no country fairer, Than the old home they so well know, There are no zephyrs sweeter, rarer, Than those which through those gateways blow."

For Relief From Insomnia.

If you really do not sleep soundly, if you lie awake much of the night and toss about, something soothing is needed in addition to deep breathing. If it is possible, walk in a park watching the reflection of the evening stars in the water, or the moon shining through the trees. Then a brisk walk home.

SEE and TRY a DE LAVAL Cream Separator

We do not believe that a farmer who knows anything about farm machinery could be induced to buy any separator other than a De Laval after he had seen the latest improved De Laval machine and had given it a trial.

It is a fact that 99% of all separator buyers who do SEE and TRY a DE LAVAL machine before buying, purchase the DE LAVAL and will have no other. The 1% who do not buy the DE LAVAL are those who allow themselves to be influenced by some other consideration besides real genuine separator merit.

If you are thinking about buying a cream separator we will consider it a favor if you will permit us to set up a De Laval for you on your own place and have you give it a fair trial.

You will be under no obligation to buy the machine if it does not make good all our claims, and should you decide to keep it and cannot conveniently pay cash, you may do so on such easy terms that it will actually save its cost while you are paying for it.
