A Happy Coincidence

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

During the second empire in France two country gentlemen, M. Recardier and M. Gallipeaux, met at the chateau of the former, and while discussing some fine old wine Gallipeaux said to his friend:

"Where is your son Louis?"

"Traveling."

"My daughter also is traveling. She will be at home for the autumn ball. It will be her entrance into society."

"My son will be at home about that time. I am looking forward to his coming with pleasant anticipations. He has not been here for ten years. When he was twelve years old I put him to school in Geneva. From there he passed to the university, and since then he has been traveling. But why did you ask about my son?"

"I will tell you. It would give me great pleasure and I should consider myself highly honored to unite our families in the marriage of these two young persons."

"Just what I have been thinking of for some time," replied the other. "How old is your daughter?"

"Marie is twenty."

"And Louis is twenty-two."

It was then and there agreed that the youngsters should marry. That was a time when parents in France arranged marriages for their children.

When Louis Recardier returned to the paternal chateau his father met him at the door, and the two were locked in each other's arms. They chatted for some time, when the father said:

"Louis, it is now time that you settled down at home. I am getting lonesome in my old age and want you with me. I desire also that you should bring a wife into the house and that I may have a grandchild in whom to be interested. I have arranged a match for you with the daughter of an old friend of mine, and it is expected that the marriage shall take place very soon."

The young man's face spoke plainly that this was unwelcome news to him. He made no reply for some time, and when he did it was quite a backset to his father.

"My dear father," he said, "I have always obeyed you and will continue to do so save in this one thing, the choice of a wife. I do not approve of our ancestral custom of parents choosing mates for their children. I am a believer in love and that marriages should be made for love."

"But my word has been pledged. To tell my friend that you will not marry his daughter would be an insult."

"Not since I have never seen her."

M. Recardier argued a long while with his son without effect. The young man had met a girl in his travels and had fallen in love with her. His father was wrapped up in him and would not break with him. A letter was dispatched to M. Gallipeaux announcing that the match must be abandoned. Naturally the latter was much incensed that his daughter should be refused and wrote his old friend a very curt reply.

Louis Recardier's falling in love was one of those cases where persons of opposite sex are drawn together at sight. Louis had attended the opera one evening at Milan, and in a box directly above him and so near him that he could almost touch her sat a young lady between whom and him came an instantaneous spark of love. Louis could not keep his eyes off her, and she, conscious that they were always upon her, gave him an occasional glance, while a faint blush and a restlessness of her fan showed that she was much affected. The next day Louis made an attempt to find the young lady, but was unable to do so. The reason of this was that she had departed early in the morning with a party with whom she was traveling. Louis had returned to France, being expected by his father, hoping to gain permission to set out again to find the girl with whom he had fallen in love at sight.

Not long after the arrival of young Recardier at home the autumn ball came off. Her father remembered that his friend, M. Gallipeaux, had told him that his daughter would be presented to the social world on that occasion, and having heard that Mlle. Gallipeaux was a very charming girl urged his son to attend the ball, hoping that meeting her there he might be attracted to her and the match might yet be brought about. Louis refused to go, being satisfied with nothing but to set out again to find the girl who had enchanted him. Finally his father consented that he should depart, provided he would first attend the ball.

Louis agreed to the condition, attended the ball and was standing listlessly looking at the dancers when suddenly his heart came up into his throat. Who should sail by him in the dance but the girl he had seen at the opera at Milan!

Louis lost no time in securing an introduction, and when he heard the words "Mlle. Gallipeaux" he peeped. He had refused to marry the girl with whom he had fallen in love!

When M. Recardier was informed of the situation he ordered his carriage and drove at once to see his old friend, M. Gallipeaux. He was coldly received, but when he explained the cause of his son's refusal and that Louis was wrapped up in Marie her father was soothed and consented that the marriage should take place at an early date.

Made the Hot Air Work.

Until the aid of science was invoked the work of unloading cars loaded with coal in winter in Philadelphia proved to be a heavy task, for it often happened that whole trainloads arrived with the coal frozen into a solid mass. Science built a concrete and nearly airtight house at Greenwich Point, into which twenty-one loaded coal cars may be backed at one time, like so many pies in an oven. Here in a temperature of 150 or more degrees the solid contents of a car are thawed loose from the sides. In forty minutes or so, the cooking process being complete, the cars are taken from the oven and hoisted over the ship, when the coal runs out easily. That hot air can do to twenty-one cars in forty minutes what it took 100 men a day to accomplish.

Good Bait.

Fish stories are supposed to be unique as stretchers of the imagination, but none beats the story told by a recent British visitor at Washington. It seems that one of his acquaintances, a traveler of some note, had sold a small farm to an Irishman, and the latter was complaining because there were no birds in his garden.

"Set some traps," suggested the traveler, "and they will come."

"Sure an' will they come thin?"

"Yes. I was once in Africa, and there wasn't a woman, I had been told, within 200 miles. I wanted some one to cook, so I hung a pair of earrings and a bracelet on a tree and the next morning found five applicants under the branches."—New York Tribune.

Warning the Flirts.

A popular actress was condemning the flirt.

"The flirt," she said, "has a good time in the present—a good time of a sort in the present—but what about the future? Many a girl is on the shelf to-day because she kept men on the rack yesterday."—Washington Star.

To Think About.

"She seems like a very nice girl."

"One whom it would be safe to marry?"

"Oh, no. No girl is safe enough for that. But she's nice enough to think about marrying if you only know when to stop."—Life.

In the Days of Old.

"How these laundries do mangle your shirts of mail!" said Sir Lancelot.

"Yes, mine always come back shy several rivets," assented Sir Gink.—Pittsburgh Post.

Much Easier.

Candidate of Ideals—Wouldn't you rather be right than president? Practical Friend—Certainly! It is so much easier to be right.—Baltimore American.

FOR POLISHING AUTOMOBILES

THERE IS NOTHING EQUAL TO

Johnson's Prepared Wax

For years Johnson's Prepared Wax has been recognized as the best preparation for polishing floors, woodwork and furniture, but it has just recently come into prominence as an automobile body polish.

Johnson's Prepared Wax preserves the varnish and forms a protection from the weather—it imparts a hard, dry, high gloss which holds the lustre indefinitely, does not collect dust and

"Sheds water like a duck's back."

After cars have been polished with Johnson's Prepared Wax it is easy to keep them good looking—dried mud rubs off like dust, leaving the sheen of the Wax unaffected.

Johnson's Prepared Wax is easy to use—simply apply a light coat and polish immediately with a soft woolen or cheese cloth rag, using long, sweeping strokes.
