

LOOKING BACK in Dwight history this week, we view the Grand Centrale Hotel, which stood where Harmony Park's southwestern corner is now located. It later became a nurses' quarters for the veteran's hospital, then was razed. Below, the South entrance to Renfrew Park. The ornate ironwork on the inside of the entranceway was removed as cars replaced carriages — and then grew wider.

GRAND CENTRAL HOTEL, DWIGHT, ILL.

Photo by Crandall