ONE YEAR AGO.

g for your voice, Nellie e so soft and low,
used to speak to me
year ago.

vere with me, darling,
uture looked so bright, ght my treasure
ag from my sight,

best to save, Nellie,
ou could not stay,
an angel whisper,
st come with me away.

owed my head and wept ew it must be so;
rn you lost, beloved one e year ago. L. C.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

Happiness and sorrow are the measures of our mortal life. We willingly sorb the moments of gladness, and orrow's hours make their own impression.

True Love is a natural sacrament; and if ever a young man thanks heaven for having saved what is good and nothing in his soul, it is when he thinks of offering it to the woman he loves.

Slander.—A man who will stab at another's reputation by insinuation and slandering is far worse than a thief.
Things you may replace, but character, once lost, is all but irredeemable, and, as a great writer has said, a word is enough to ruin a man.

FRANK W. CHILDS,

He Must be a Yankee.—A man in the country announces that his golden wedding will come off in just thirty years from now, and offers a liberal discount on any presents his friends then design to make him.

FACTIAE.

Why are old maids the most charming of all people?—Because they are matchless,—Punch.

Lots.—For the benefit of the "future historian," we will state that the reason the chief city in Utah is called Salt Lake was because, in the choice for wives, Brigham Young got lots (Lot's)
