“The Dwight Star. Its typographic effulgences will be manifested every seventh day, until quenched by the superior light of the journalistic planet the Dwight Courier.—Pontiac Free Press.

Our friend the reporter for the Press, labors under a mistaken idea when he thinks ‘The Star’ can be quenched by the appearance of a new Journal for public favors; I donot intend to make any political sheet of ‘The Star,’—only an advertiseing and local paper; and as for the Courier, it has failed to make its debut so far, and should such a thing transpire ‘The Star’ will live.

CHIPS.—Hetzal is still in the trade with lots of nice things in the windows.

Eldredge is in full blast with a well selected stock. Who was that young man walking down the Av with the girl dressed in pink?—had better stay away.

Slyder was out after pictures again ‘tother day.’ Avalanche is well known.

Our tonsoral friend ‘Josh’ has refitted his shop in grand style—paper all over. The young lady who was on the street with J—n after 10 n’clock must not do so again. Plantation Bitters. The Quartette singing on the East side on Monday evening was fine,—do so again.

Rain has been visible with the naked eye for the last few days. Mr. James Parsons was severely hurt by a wagon with a heavyload passing over his body on yesterday afternoon. ‘Jimmy’ Stokes has just finished a sign for Mr. Calais the agricultural man,—how nice.
