OUR PAPER.

We are constantly asked the question by those who professing friendship for us, if we write all our own articles. To this question so often asked we answer emphatically once for all YES. Since the issue of our first number we have conducted our own Editorial department and have written every article appearing in its pages and will probably continue to do so till we enlarge—which will be in a few months; then we propose giving those outsiders—who are now forcing matter upon us, a chance, if they write to suit us. As it is we can fill our own little sheet once a week without much trouble and with a style of reading matter that evidently suits our readers, as we sell entirely out, in from six to eight hours after going to press, and in some instances have to make an extra reprint, last week we struck off three hundred copies and had to print one hundred and fifty more to supply the demand and then did not print enough.

We are constantly refusing articles, which if sent to the COURIER and published; would make that really pretty sheet with its clean new type, a very readable one and a credit to any town in the state. We often wonder if like ourself they are flooded with matter with request for publication. If not, we ask as a kindness of those who HONOR us that they hereafter direct their favors to that office.

The only gentleman, we thus far, have consented to open our columns to, since our first number is Mr. S. T. K. Prime who asked their use for a few Didactic articles on the principles of Agriculture and elementary Geology, the high privilege so graciously accorded by us was never taken advantage of, by Mr. Prime and our readers we presume have lost much, as we know Mr. Prime to be fully capable. As it is, we are willing to receive articles from any one who will embody an idea in their writing, or from any one, from whom we can extract one. We respectfully decline all verses; our contributors seem to have no genius for so called poetry, and hardly any for common doggerel, therefore we don't want to see any more come to our office.

BURGLARY.

On the night of the FOURTH while Mr. H. Eldredge and family were attending the Congregational festival, some thief taking advantage of his absence entered the store by the back window and relieved one of the drawers of some thirty dollars left there by some inadvertence in the evening. The robbery was evidently premeditated, as a few evenings before a fine dog that used to sleep nightly in the store was poisoned.

Those midnight thefts are of frequent occurrences in Dwight and measures should be adopted to ferret out the rascals; they have gone long enough unwhipt of justice and have grown bold in their immunity from justice and when caught should be made an example of to the full extent of the law.
