...h, from which the impressions proceed, while we must admit the former; we should question the existence of the latter in the brute. To know or understand the objects of sense, to distinguish them as such, from each other, and from self as the perceiving subject, is an attribute of intelligence in its strict and proper sense, an attribute of mind. If the brute possesses it, he possesses as really a mind, though not of so high an order, as man.

THIEVES.

The jewelry store of Mr J. V. Lewis was entered by some thief or thieves on Monday night, and a small amount of jewelry and other articles were taken. This is the second time that he has been visited in a like manner within the last six months. Where is the night Police?

BAND SUPPER.

The citizens of Dwight last evening, showed not only their appreciation for their young Band, but a true and just appreciation for Prof. Nann, their teacher.—The supper needs neither comment or puff, it was simply beyond expression the finest thing we have thus far in our short life attended. It was the only true social affair we have yet witnessed in Dwight, and a few more of a like kind yearly, would be a benefit. Every one present, seemed to constitute him or herself, a committee of one, for the promotion of good will, harmony and jollity. At the close of the supper Mr. R. P. Morgan being selected to represent the "Band Ladies" in the presentation of a silver goblet to the Professor, made considerable fun for all present, by pretended embarrassment and want of language for expression. Had we space we would give our readers the benefit of the speech, and the response of the evidently surprised Professor.

The ring cake created no little excitement, and many speculated heavy in cake stock the fortunate man however, was our young friend John Calais, who invested in two pieces and won. The supper we understood netted over $200.

FIRE.

Early yesterday morning the alarm of fire was sounded from the private telegraph of J. D. Webster, that a House in that part of town was on fire, the alarm soon spread, and the fire extinguished.—Loss not estimated.
